Administration Unveils Brighter Budget

Raising Debt Limit May Be Unnecessary

Spending, Deficit, Debt To Be Under Early Predictions

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27 (AP)—The Eisenhower administration today unveiled a new, brighter budget which it hailed as a "turning point" in the struggle to put the government in the black.

It estimated that spending, the deficit and the national debt will all prove to be two billion dollars less at the end of the present fiscal year than was previously predicted.

The budget indicated that, barring some new emergency, the peak of spending for national security is past. Such spending has formed the major part of federal budgets for years.

The new estimates made a special session of Congress this fall to raise the legal debt limit appear less likely.

The new budget for fiscal year 1954—July 1 this year to June 30 next year—made the following major estimates:

$3.8 Billion Deficit Seen

The government will spend $72,100,000,000 and have net receipts of $68,300,000,000. It will wind up the year with a deficit of $3,800,000,000, and a national debt of $271,100,000,000.

But there were indications that the government was cautiously withholding possibly better fiscal news. It looked as if receipts—badly overestimated last year—had been underestimated this time. If it turns out that way, and spending estimates are not off, the government would go less deeply in the red.

The new year-end national debt figure was $1,900,000,000 lower than Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey predicted to Congress as late as July 29, when he made an unsuccessful plea for a hike in the legal debt limit from the present 275 billion to 290 billions.

Corporation Tax Is Key

However, whether Congress will be called into special session to enact a higher debt limit will depend on how much temporary borrowing the Treasury must do in the present low-tax-receipt months before it can begin reducing the debt with the heavy spring tax receipts.

Much still depends upon the size of corporation taxes falling due Sept. 15. Higher - than - estimated corporation payments would reduce the amount of temporary borrowing necessary to tide the government over to the spring months. That would give the Treasury a better chance to squeak through this fiscal year on its remaining three billion dollars borrowing authority.

The new fiscal 1954 budget revision also disclosed that previous

Revised Budget For '54 At Glance

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27 (AP)—Here are the main estimates in the administration's revised budget for fiscal 1954, compared with estimates made in May and July by the administration, estimates in former President Truman's budget for fiscal 1954 and performance in fiscal 1953, ended last June 30. $69,687,000,000, Revenue Record, Collected By U. S.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27 (AP)—The setting $69,687,000,000 from the public last fiscal year, and the individual taxpayer accounted for most of the increase.

This was disclosed today in a report on internal revenue collections in fiscal 1953, ended last June 30, by Revenue Commissioner T. Coleman Andrews. Andrews said total collections were 7.2 per cent higher than in the previous year.

The dollar increase was $4,677,000,000, and of this, individual income and employment taxes constituted $3,517,000,000.

Corporation Tax Increase Small

Andrews' report also said:

Taxes paid by corporations increased by the smallest percentage of any tax classification. Corporations paid income and profits taxes amounting to $21,467,000,000 in fiscal 1952 and in 1953 paid $21,595,000,000. This was an increase of $128,000,000, or 0.6 per cent.

The increase in personal income and employment taxes (including old age insurance, unemployment insurance and railroad retirement payments) was 10.4 per cent. Individuals paid $33,738,000,000 in fiscal 1952 toward the government's upkeep and for social security. In fiscal 1953 they paid $37,255,000,000.

Gift Tax Take Up Most

This made individual tax payments the biggest single source of revenue, with corporation taxes next. No other class of taxes ran over three billion dollars per year.

The biggest increase in fiscal 1953, percentagewise, was in gift tax collections, which rose 29.2 per cent from 83 million dollars in fiscal 1952 to 107 million last year.

The next biggest percentage increase was in collections of excise taxes paid by manufacturers. Manufacturers paid $2,296,000,000 in excise taxes in fiscal 1952 and $2,863,000,000 in fiscal 1953 an increase of 24.7 per cent.

Manufacturers' excise taxes thus were the third largest source of income to the government. They were followed closely by alcohol taxes which totaled $2,781,000,000 in fiscal 1953, an increase of 9.1 per cent over the previous year. Next came miscellaneous taxes, at $2,061,000,000, an increase of 3 per cent.

Three Federal Agencies Will Dismiss 3,000

USIA, VA And REA Will Reduce Forces Due To Fund Cuts

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27 (AP)—More than 3,000 government workers are being dismissed from their jobs under payroll reduction actions announced today by three separate agencies.

The biggest cut is being made by the newly organized U. S. Information Agency, which announced it is reducing its force from 8,200 to 6,200 and is abolishing more than 500 vacant positions. All but about 700 of those affected are foreigners.

1,000 VA Employes Affected

About 1,000 Washington employes of the Veterans Administration are being dropped in another action, and the Rural Electrification Administration announced it is dismissing 37 of its 1,059 employes, reassigning 11 others to lower paid jobs, and laying off 22 accountants.

The U. S. Information Agency was formed Aug. 1 to take over the Voice of America and other overseas information programs formerly operated by the State Department.

About 105 million dollars was spent on these activities last year and Congress cut the appropriation to 75 million for this year.

Notices Start Going Out

In announcing a series of economies, including the staff cutback, Director Theodore C. Streibert expressed confidence that "we can develop an effective, hard-hitting program with the funds now available."

Streibert said dismissal notices started going out today to about 300 Americans serving abroad, 200 in Washington, 200 with the Voice of America in New York and 70 with the motion picture service in New York.

Jeweler Shoots, Kills His Estranged Wife, Two Sons And Himself

NEW YORK, Aug. 27 (AP) — A jeweler today shot and killed his estranged wife and two sons, then took his own life—the third tragedy of a week at a Bronx apartment development.

Dead were Jack Howard, 38; his wife, Ruth, 36, and their sons, Stanley, 9, and Harvey, 5.

Police had not determined what led to the shooting.

The husband and wife were dead when officers reached the scene. The two sons, critically injured by shots in the head, died within hours without regaining consciousness.

Police quoted neighbors as saying Howard, less than five feet tall, had a domineering attitude. The couple separated legally about a year ago.

Singer Wins Divorce

SANTA MONICA, Calif., Aug. 27 (AP)—Singer Helen Forrest won a divorce from actor Paul Holohan today on testimony that "our careers clashed from the beginning."

The 34-year-old vocalist, who has sung for Harry James, Benny Goodman and Artie Shaw, asked no alimony and said a property settlement was reached out of court.

Another Fragment Of Peary Flag Is Found By Explorers

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27 (AP) — From out of the far north comes word that explorers have found a piece of Adm. Robert Peary's flag, one of the most celebrated, widely traveled and torn up flags in history.

The story from Ottawa, Ont., didn't go into details. It merely said that two Canadians, Geoffrey Hattersley-Smith and Robert Blackabar, had picked up relics of three polar expeditions.

Among the relics was a piece of Peary's flag.

The news stirred old memories at the headquarters of the National Geographic Society here. For this is the third piece of the famous flag to be recovered.

For 15 years on his trips to the north Peary wore the flag around his middle. He probably had two reasons for this. It would be handy for unfurling purposes if he ever reached the North Pole, and in the meantime it furnished additional warmth.

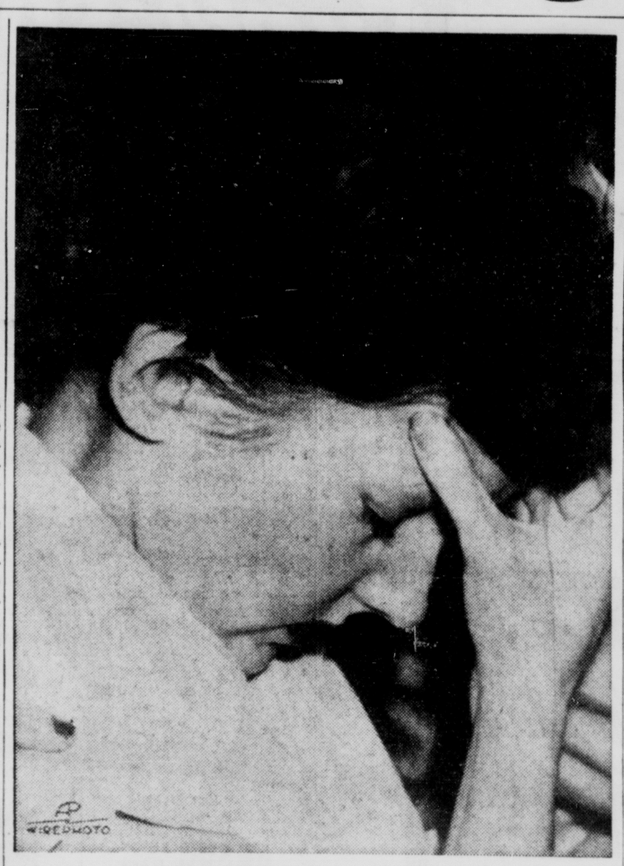

But Peary had another quaint habit. Whenever he reached a historic spot, he'd tear off a piece of the flag and leave it there.

One he left at Cape Morris, in Jesup, Greenland, the world's northernmost tip of land. Another he left at Cape Thomas Hubbard, on Axel Heiberg Island, the westernmost point of land he reached. And the third he left at Cape Columbia, the northernmost point of land in Canada.

It was from Cape Columbia that he jumped off for his two dashes toward the pole, including the successful one of April 6, 1909.

These three pieces have been recovered.

Pleads Not Guilty

Mildred McDonald, 25, bows her head as she goes to court in Somerville, Mass., for arraignment on a murder charge in the death o fthe 14-year-old sister of her former boy friend. New York police, who captured the pretty stenographer, said she signed a statement saying she fired "several shots" at Mary Di Rocco because she thought she was "being belittled." She pleaded not guilty and was held without bail.

Gov. M'Keldin Permits Negro Killer To Hang

BALTIMORE, Aug. 28 (Friday) (AP)—Lott Glover, 33-year-old Washington Negro, died on the state penitentiary gallows early today for the slaying of a Beltsville filling station attendant. His death was the first execution in Maryland in four years.

The trap was sprung at 12:03 a.m. Glover was pronounced dead 15 minutes later by the prison physician.

The execution came after Gov. Theodore R. McKeldin refused to intervene.

It was the first scheduled hanging he had permitted since he took office in January, 1951. McKeldin had commuted all seven of the previous death sentences to come before him.

McKeldin has been criticized by one judge, some legislators, and others for intervening in the seven previous cases.

In them, he followed a policy that no man should die if there were a shred of doubt about his guilt or if there were good reason to believe him insane.

There were no impassioned last minute pleas today for Glover. Milton B. Allen, Baltimore attorney appointed to be his counsel, consulted with the governor's office about the plea for commutation he filed almost a month ago. He did not take any new action.

Allen had called attention to a difference of expert opinion on Glover's sanity.

He was convicted of slaying James A. Beacraft, 49, in an attempted holdup on Jan. 29, 1952. Beacraft was beaten to death with a pair of pliers.

Police intercepted Glover about 24 hours later on a bus bound from Washington to Baltimore. He already was wanted for a Sheepshead Bay tavern murder in Brooklyn, N. Y.

Glover pleaded insanity at the outset and was taken to Crownsville State Hospital for examination by mental experts. On June 3, 1952, while being escorted from his ward to the dental clinic, he broke away from two guards and escaped the hospital.

An anonymous tip resulted in his recapture two weeks later at Trenton, N. J., where he had talked his way into a partnership in a cigar and candy stand.

Pa. Motorist Finds Baby In Paper Bag

MCKEESPORT, Pa., Aug. 27 (AP)—A paper bag wriggling alongside the highway didn't seem the proper thing to William J. Diehl, 53, of McKeesport as he drove home from work last night.

Diehl stopped his car and discovered the paper bag was not only wriggling—it was also crying.

Investigating, Diehl found inside the bag a day-old baby boy.

Firestone Plants Hit By Walkouts

[By The Associated Press]

Tires joined telephones Thursday as a series of unrelated wage disputes led to another strike against the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co., and more strike threats.

The CIO United Rubber Workers pulled 24,000 production employes out of Firestone plants in eight cities. The strike came after negotiations to reach a new wage agreement failed. These negotiations were expected to set the pattern for similar talks with other major rubber concerns.

On the telephone front, violence in two cities marked the strike of Indiana Bell Telephone Co. Employes, now in its fifth week. Police said parading pickets broke windows in Bell exchanges at Michigan City and Anerson, Ind. There was no sign of a break in wage negotiations.

In New York, talks were resumed in an effort to avert a possible strike by 22,000 long distance telephone operators in 40 states.

FBI Arrests Two Fugitive Red Leaders

Thompson, Steinberg Arrested In Hideout High Up In Sierras

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27 (AP) — The FBI tonight announced the arrest of two fugitive Communist leaders, Robert George Thompson and Sidney Steinberg in a hideout 8,000 feet up in the Sierra Mountains near Sonora, Calif.

The FBI also announced its agents had arrested Carl Edwin Rasi, 40; Samuel I. Coleman, 42; and Mrs. Shirley Keith Kremen, 21, on charges of harboring the two fugitive Communist leaders.

Thompson Convicted In 1949

Thompson was one of the 11 Communist leaders convicted on Oct. 14, 1949, for violation of the Smith Act.

Thompson disappeared when ordered to report to the federal court, July 2, 1951, for commitment to his three-year prison term. He had also been fined $10,000. His bond was forfeited and he had been hiding in the Communist party ."underground," the FBI said.

Steinberg In "Underground"

Steinberg has been evading arrest in the Communist "underground," the FBI added, since June 20, 1951, when 21 Communist party leaders were indicted in New York City for violation of the Smith Act.

The FBI said the arrests occurred on the premises located high in the Sierra Mountains in a sparsely settled community near Yosemite National Park, in Tuolumne County between Sonora and Twain Hearts, Calif. The cabin was rented for a 4-month period last June, by Mrs. Shirley Kremen, the FBI added.

Reds Thwarted As German Food Relief Resumed

BERLIN, Aug. 27 (AP)—West German police using batons and water hoses tonight broke up demonstrations by 5,000 Communists seeking to interfere with the distribution of American-donated food to East Germans.

The Communist rowdies failed to prevent 80,000 hungry East Germans from collecting their food parcels as the giant relief program went into high gear after an 11-day slowdown for reorganization.

The Red demonstrators appeared at two points of the inter-sector border, yelling slogans and threatening the people waiting patiently in line for the parcels. Sixty-four persons were arrested.

The biggest demonstration was in the Wedding district of the French sector where Communists scattered leaflets attacking the American food relief plan. On the British sector border, near the famous Tiergarten Park, the Communists shot over rockets that rained propaganda leaflets when they burst.

Van Fleet In Formosa

144 Grinning Yanks Freed

PANMUNJOM, Friday, Aug. 28 (AP)—Under sunny skies, more American warriors came back grinning and shouting today from the North Korean land of captivity.

They laughed and cheered as Russian-built Molotov trucks ground to a stop in front of the Allied repatriation center. They jumped down unaided from the truck beds as their names were called out.

A Coloradoan, Cpl. Neil H. Arnspringer of Grand Junction, was the first man off the trucks.

There were 100 Americans in the first two groups and 100 whistling South Koreans.

In all, 144 Americans, 4 British, 2 South Africans and 250 South Koreans were promised in today's exchange.

The Reds today will have repatriated 2,422 Americans. That left only 891 to go to reach the total of 3,313 the Communists said they held.

West Big 3 Bars Security Council Morocco Action

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Aug. 27 (AP)—The United States and Britain joined France today in a solid Western Big Three blow rejecting Arab-Asian demands for U. N. Security Council action on French Morocco.

The present trouble there centers on the dethronement and exile of the old sultan and the installation of a new one last week by the French. And the problem behind that act was the persistent demand by Moroccan nationalists for independence from France.

Question Goes To Assembly

Although debate continues next week, the Big Three stand dooms prospects for getting the Moroccan issue on the Security Council agenda, since it now cannot count on the required seven votes from the 11 Council members. It also means that the question will be presented to the 60-nation General Assembly which convenes next month.

The United States view, expressed today, is that the question is not one affecting international peace and security.

The debate extends into next week because Russia's Andrei Y. Vishinsky said he would not be ready to speak until Monday. The debate now is only on whether a full-blown debate should be held. The merits of the question itself are not supposed to be argued.

Not U. S. Stand On Colonialism

Pakistan and Lebanon will furnish the petitioners with two sure votes. Others who will either vote no or abstain may be found among Chile, Colombia, Greece, Denmark and China.

Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., fresh from a morning victory over an Arab-Asian combination supporting India for a Korean Peace Conference seat, told the Council in the afternoon that he was not expressing the United States stand on colonialism.

President Welcomed To Denver By Posse

FRASER, Colo., Aug. 27 (AP)—A colorful Western posse greeted President Eisenhower on his arrival here from Denver today for a 6-day vacation in the Colorado Rockies.

The 16-man, Grand county posse was drawn up on horseback as the President, smiling broadly, stepped from his car at the entrance to the ranch of an old friend Aksel Nielsen of Denver.

Canadian Prospector Held For Murder Of Pa. Hunters

GASPE, Que., Aug. 27 (AP)—Canadian authorities today arrested a 37-year-old ore prospector for the murder of two young Pennsylvania hunters whose bear-gnawed bodies were found in the Gaspe wilderness last June.

A coroner's jury today held the prospector, Wilbert Coffin, responsible for the deaths of Richard Lindsay, 17, of Hollidaysburg, Pa., and Fred Claar, 20, of East Freedom, Pa. He was immediately arrested on a murder warrant by provincial police.

Crown Prosecutor Noel Dorion said Coffin will be arraigned in nearby Perce tomorrow. It is probable that he will be tried only on the charge of murdering Lindsay.

The skeletal remains of young Lindsay's father, Eugene H. Lindsay, 47, was also found in the woods. An earlier jury declared that his body had been so thoroughly stripped to the bone by marauding bears that it was impossible to determine cause of death.

That jury had determined the two youngsters were shot to death before the bears got at them "by person or persons unknown."

The elder Lindsay had $700 in cash with him when he went into the bush. No trace of the money has ever been found.

Coffin, who has been held as a material witness for two weeks, did not take the stand today on advice of counsel. Instead, he waited in police custody outside the parish hall where the jury met.

Earlier he had admitted that he met the three Pennsylvanians while slugging through the Gaspe forest on June 10. He was the last person known to have seen them alive.

American Plan Adopted By UN Political Group

Limits Korea Peace Talks To Belligerents, Russia On Red Side

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Aug. 27 (AP)—India failed today to get enough votes for a seat in the Korean peace conference. The U. N. Political Committee approved instead an American-backed plan limiting the peace talks to the belligerents, plus Russia on the Communist side.

The crucial vote on India was 27-21 with 11 abstentions. This gave India a majority in the committee. It fell short, however, of the two-thirds majority required in the General Assembly and it gave the chief American delegate, Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., the first major victory of his U. N. career.

The Assembly will convene at 10:30 a.m. tomorrow and is expected to confirm the committee decisions without change. An Indian spokesman said India will not withdraw despite the certain prospect of defeat.

Soviet Moves Rejected

The committee rejected by large votes two Soviet attempts to include six belligerents and nine neutrals in the peace conference. Beaten at every turn, Russia's Andrei Y. Vishinsky then voted for a Western resolution containing the provision that Russia could attend the conference if the other side, Red China and North Korea, desires it. The final vote on Russian participation was 55-2. Uruguay and Nationalist China voted "no" and Argentina and South Africa abstained. India did not participate in the voting.

The belligerents on the U. N. side in the Korean War were Australia, Belgium, Canada, Colombia, Ethiopia, France, Greece, Luxembourg, Netherlands, New Zealand, Philippines, Thailand, Turkey, Britain, United States and South Africa.

Truce Pact Approved

In brief, the committee:

1. Approved the armistice agreement concluded in Korea on July 27.

2. Reaffirmed the U. N. objective in Korea as the achievement by peaceful means of a unified, independent and democratic Korea.

3. Welcomed the political (peace) conference recommended by both sides in the armistice agreement.

4. Recommended that the U. N. side be composed of those countries which sent troops to fight with U. N. forces and who wish to attend the conference.

5. Recommended that the governments taking part in the conference act independently and be bound only by decisions to which they agree. This means the veto will be in force.

6. Asked the United States, in consultation with the participating U. N. countries, to arrange with the other side the date and site of the conference. Geneva has the inside track for the place.

7. Reaffirmed the U. N. intention to carry on its program of relief and rehabilitation in Korea and appealed to all member governments to contribute to this task.

Accused Slayer Collapses, Weeps

SOMERVILLE, Mass., Aug. 27 (AP)—Slim, brown-haired Mildred McDonald, whose youthful appearance belies her 25 years, was lodged in jail tonight after sobbingly pleading innocent to a murder charge in the gun-knife slaying of a 14-year old girl whose brother allegedly "brushed her off."

The 113-pound stenographer collapsed in District Court during a brief arraignment. She had been brought from New York by train to Boston and then driven here for a tearful reunion with her schoolteacher father, Alfred, whom she embraced as she cried: "Daddy."

Earlier today, little Mary Di Rocco, who was shot five times and stabbed in her home Monday, was buried after a funeral mass. Her mother, Rose, collapsed at the graveside after raising her tear-stained eyes skyward and crying out forgiveness of the alleged slayer:

"God I forgive her. You forgive her too."

The McDonald girl was arrested Tuesday night in New York by an alert policeman who recognized her from her picture. After hours of questioning she admitted the slaying.

Administration Unveils Brighter Budget

Raising Debt Limit May Be Unnecessary

Spending, Deficit, Debt To Be Under Early Predictions

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27 (AP)—The Eisenhower administration today unveiled a new, brighter budget which it hailed as a "turning point" in the struggle to put the government in the black.

It estimated that spending, the deficit and the national debt will all prove to be two billion dollars less at the end of the present fiscal year than was previously predicted.

The budget indicated that, barring some new emergency, the peak of spending for national security is past. Such spending has formed the major part of federal budgets for years.

The new estimates made a special session of Congress this fall to raise the legal debt limit appear less likely.

The new budget for fiscal year 1954—July 1 this year to June 30 next year—made the following major estimates:

$3.8 Billion Deficit Seen

The government will spend $72,100,000,000 and have net receipts of $68,300,000,000. It will wind up the year with a deficit of $3,800,000,000, and a national debt of $271,100,000,000.

But there were indications that the government was cautiously withholding possibly better fiscal news. It looked as if receipts—badly overestimated last year—had been underestimated this time. If it turns out that way, and spending estimates are not off, the government would go less deeply in the red.

The new year-end national debt figure was $1,900,000,000 lower than Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey predicted to Congress as late as July 29, when he made an unsuccessful plea for a hike in the legal debt limit from the present 275 billion to 290 billions.

Corporation Tax Is Key

However, whether Congress will be called into special session to enact a higher debt limit will depend on how much temporary borrowing the Treasury must do in the present low-tax-receipt months before it can begin reducing the debt with the heavy spring tax receipts.

Much still depends upon the size of corporation taxes falling due Sept. 15. Higher - than - estimated corporation payments would reduce the amount of temporary borrowing necessary to tide the government over to the spring months. That would give the Treasury a better chance to squeak through this fiscal year on its remaining three billion dollars borrowing authority.

The new fiscal 1954 budget revision also disclosed that previous

Revised Budget For '54 At Glance

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27 (AP)—Here are the main estimates in the administration's revised budget for fiscal 1954, compared with estimates made in May and July by the administration, estimates in former President Truman's budget for fiscal 1954 and performance in fiscal 1953, ended last June 30. $69,687,000,000, Revenue Record, Collected By U. S.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27 (AP)—The setting $69,687,000,000 from the public last fiscal year, and the individual taxpayer accounted for most of the increase.

This was disclosed today in a report on internal revenue collections in fiscal 1953, ended last June 30, by Revenue Commissioner T. Coleman Andrews. Andrews said total collections were 7.2 per cent higher than in the previous year.

The dollar increase was $4,677,000,000, and of this, individual income and employment taxes constituted $3,517,000,000.

Corporation Tax Increase Small

Andrews' report also said:

Taxes paid by corporations increased by the smallest percentage of any tax classification. Corporations paid income and profits taxes amounting to $21,467,000,000 in fiscal 1952 and in 1953 paid $21,595,000,000. This was an increase of $128,000,000, or 0.6 per cent.

The increase in personal income and employment taxes (including old age insurance, unemployment insurance and railroad retirement payments) was 10.4 per cent. Individuals paid $33,738,000,000 in fiscal 1952 toward the government's upkeep and for social security. In fiscal 1953 they paid $37,255,000,000.

Gift Tax Take Up Most

This made individual tax payments the biggest single source of revenue, with corporation taxes next. No other class of taxes ran over three billion dollars per year.

The biggest increase in fiscal 1953, percentagewise, was in gift tax collections, which rose 29.2 per cent from 83 million dollars in fiscal 1952 to 107 million last year.

The next biggest percentage increase was in collections of excise taxes paid by manufacturers. Manufacturers paid $2,296,000,000 in excise taxes in fiscal 1952 and $2,863,000,000 in fiscal 1953 an increase of 24.7 per cent.

Manufacturers' excise taxes thus were the third largest source of income to the government. They were followed closely by alcohol taxes which totaled $2,781,000,000 in fiscal 1953, an increase of 9.1 per cent over the previous year. Next came miscellaneous taxes, at $2,061,000,000, an increase of 3 per cent.

Another Fragment Of Peary Flag Is Found By Explorers

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27 (AP)—From out of the far north comes word that explorers have found a piece of Adm. Robert Peary's flag, one of the most celebrated, widely traveled and torn up flags in history.

The story from Ottawa, Ont., didn't go into details. It merely said that two Canadians, Geoffrey Hattersley-Smith and Robert Blackabar, had picked up relics of three polar expeditions.

Among the relics was a piece of Peary's flag.

The news stirred old memories at the headquarters of the National Geographic Society here. For this is the third piece of the famous flag to be recovered.

For 15 years on his trips to the north Peary wore the flag around his middle. He probably had two reasons for this. It would be handy for unfurling purposes if he ever reached the North Pole, and in the meantime it furnished additional warmth.

But Peary had another quaint habit. Whenever he reached a historic spot, he'd tear off a piece of the flag and leave it there.

One he left at Cape Morris, in Jesup, Greenland, the world's northernmost tip of land. Another he left at Cape Thomas Hubbard, on Axel Heiberg Island, the westernmost point of land he reached. And the third he left at Cape Columbia, the northernmost point of land in Canada.

It was from Cape Columbia that he jumped off for his two dashes toward the pole, including the successful one of April 6, 1909.

These three pieces have been recovered.

Three Federal Agencies Will Dismiss 3,000

USIA, VA And REA Will Reduce Forces Due To Fund Cuts

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27 (AP)—More than 3,000 government workers are being dismissed from their jobs under payroll reduction actions announced today by three separate agencies.

The biggest cut is being made by the newly organized U. S. Information Agency, which announced it is reducing its force from 8,200 to 6,200 and is abolishing more than 500 vacant positions. All but about 700 of those affected are foreigners.

1,000 VA Employes Affected

About 1,000 Washington employes of the Veterans Administration are being dropped in another action, and the Rural Electrification Administration announced it is dismissing 37 of its 1,059 employes, reassigning 11 others to lower paid jobs, and laying off 22 accountants.

The U. S. Information Agency was formed Aug. 1 to take over the Voice of America and other overseas information programs formerly operated by the State Department.

About 105 million dollars was spent on these activities last year and Congress cut the appropriation to 75 million for this year.

Notices Start Going Out

In announcing a series of economies, including the staff cutback, Director Theodore C. Streibert expressed confidence that "we can develop an effective, hard-hitting program with the funds now available."

Streibert said dismissal notices started going out today to about 300 Americans serving abroad, 200 in Washington, 200 with the Voice of America in New York and 70 with the motion picture service in New York.

Jeweler Shoots, Kills His Estranged Wife, Two Sons And Himself

NEW YORK, Aug. 27 (AP) — A jeweler today shot and killed his estranged wife and two sons, then took his own life—the third tragedy of a week at a Bronx apartment development.

Dead were Jack Howard, 38; his wife, Ruth, 36, and their sons, Stanley, 9, and Harvey, 5.

Police had not determined what led to the shooting.

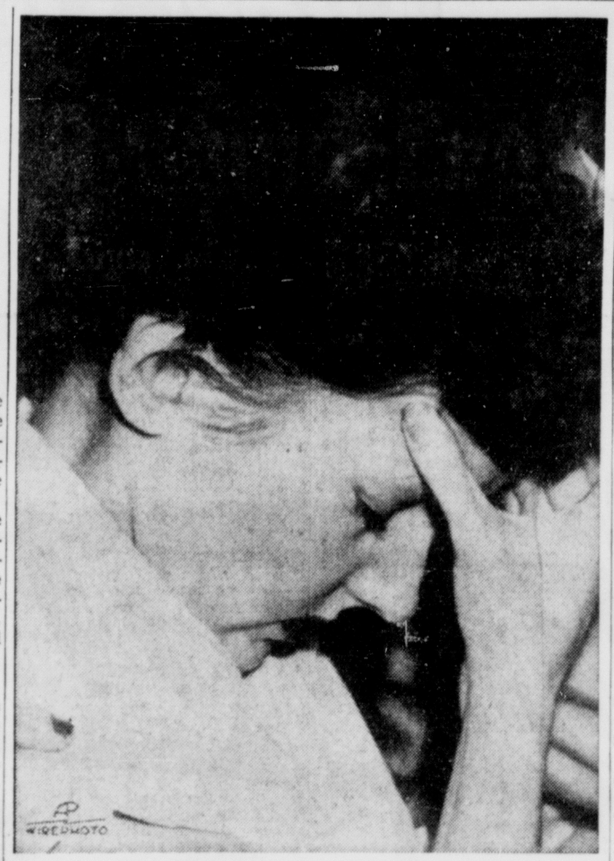

The husband and wife were dead when officers reached the scene. The two sons, critically injured by shots in the head, died within hours without regaining consciousness.

Police quoted neighbors as saying Howard, less than five feet tall, had a domineering attitude. The couple separated legally about a year ago.

Singer Wins Divorce

SANTA MONICA, Calif., Aug. 27 (AP)—Singer Helen Forrest won a divorce from actor Paul Holohan today on testimony that "our careers clashed from the beginning."

The 34-year-old vocalist, who has sung for Harry James, Benny Goodman and Artie Shaw, asked no alimony and said a property settlement was reached out of court.

Pleads Not Guilty

Mildred McDonald, 25, bows her head as she goes to court in Somerville, Mass., for arraignment on a murder charge in the death o fthe 14-year-old sister of her former boy friend. New York police, who captured the pretty stenographer, said she signed a statement saying she fired "several shots" at Mary Di Rocco because she thought she was "being belittled." She pleaded not guilty and was held without bail.

Gov. M'Keldin Permits Negro Killer To Hang

BALTIMORE, Aug. 28 (Friday) (AP)—Lott Glover, 33-year-old Washington Negro, died on the state penitentiary gallows early today for the slaying of a Beltsville filling station attendant. His death was the first execution in Maryland in four years.

The trap was sprung at 12:03 a.m. Glover was pronounced dead 15 minutes later by the prison physician.

The execution came after Gov. Theodore R. McKeldin refused to intervene.

It was the first scheduled hanging he had permitted since he took office in January, 1951. McKeldin had commuted all seven of the previous death sentences to come before him.

McKeldin has been criticized by one judge, some legislators, and others for intervening in the seven previous cases.

In them, he followed a policy that no man should die if there were a shred of doubt about his guilt or if there were good reason to believe him insane.

There were no impassioned last minute pleas today for Glover. Milton B. Allen, Baltimore attorney appointed to be his counsel, consulted with the governor's office about the plea for commutation he filed almost a month ago. He did not take any new action.

Allen had called attention to a difference of expert opinion on Glover's sanity.

He was convicted of slaying James A. Beacraft, 49, in an attempted holdup on Jan. 29, 1952. Beacraft was beaten to death with a pair of pliers.

Police intercepted Glover about 24 hours later on a bus bound from Washington to Baltimore. He already was wanted for a Sheepshead Bay tavern murder in Brooklyn, N. Y.

Glover pleaded insanity at the outset and was taken to Crownsville State Hospital for examination by mental experts. On June 3, 1952, while being escorted from his ward to the dental clinic, he broke away from two guards and escaped the hospital.

An anonymous tip resulted in his recapture two weeks later at Trenton, N. J., where he had talked his way into a partnership in a cigar and candy stand.

Pa. Motorist Finds Baby In Paper Bag

MCKEESPORT, Pa., Aug. 27 (AP)—A paper bag wriggling alongside the highway didn't seem the proper thing to William J. Diehl, 53, of McKeesport as he drove home from work last night.

Diehl stopped his car and discovered the paper bag was not only wriggling—it was also crying.

Investigating, Diehl found inside the bag a day-old baby boy.

Firestone Plants Hit By Walkouts

[By The Associated Press]

Tires joined telephones Thursday as a series of unrelated wage disputes led to another strike against the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co., and more strike threats.

The CIO United Rubber Workers pulled 24,000 production employes out of Firestone plants in eight cities. The strike came after negotiations to reach a new wage agreement failed. These negotiations were expected to set the pattern for similar talks with other major rubber concerns.

On the telephone front, violence in two cities marked the strike of Indiana Bell Telephone Co. Employes, now in its fifth week. Police said parading pickets broke windows in Bell exchanges at Michigan City and Anerson, Ind. There was no sign of a break in wage negotiations.

In New York, talks were resumed in an effort to avert a possible strike by 22,000 long distance telephone operators in 40 states.

Californians Flee Huge Forest Fire

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif., Aug. 27 (AP)—Sheriff's cars equipped with loudspeakers drove through smoke and sparks on mountain roads tonight, ordering the evacuation of residents in the path of a forest fire sweeping toward communities in the Lake Arrowhead district.

A dozen patrol cars, supplemented by jeeps, spread the alarm on back roads around Alpine and Twin Peaks after the roaring flames leaped the scenic Rim of the World Highway in two places and raced through the crowns of pines up the side of Strawberry Peak.

FBI Arrests Two Fugitive Red Leaders

Thompson, Steinberg Arrested In Hideout High Up In Sierras

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27 (AP) — The FBI tonight announced the arrest of two fugitive Communist leaders, Robert George Thompson and Sidney Steinberg in a hideout 8,000 feet up in the Sierra Mountains near Sonora, Calif.

The FBI also announced its agents had arrested Carl Edwin Rasi, 40; Samuel I. Coleman, 42; and Mrs. Shirley Keith Kremen, 21, on charges of harboring the two fugitive Communist leaders.

Thompson Convicted In 1949

Thompson was one of the 11 Communist leaders convicted on Oct. 14, 1949, for violation of the Smith Act.

Thompson disappeared when ordered to report to the federal court, July 2, 1951, for commitment to his three-year prison term. He had also been fined $10,000. His bond was forfeited and he had been hiding in the Communist party "underground," the FBI said.

Steinberg In "Underground"

Steinberg has been evading arrest in the Communist "underground," the FBI added, since June 20, 1951, when 21 Communist party leaders were indicted in New York City for violation of the Smith Act.

The FBI said the arrests occurred on the premises located high in the Sierra Mountains in a sparsely settled community near Yosemite National Park, in Tuolumne County between Sonora and Twain Hearts, Calif. The cabin was rented for a 4-month period last June, by Mrs. Shirley Kremen, the FBI added.

Reds Thwarted As German Food Relief Resumed

BERLIN, Aug. 27 (AP)—West German police using batons and water hoses tonight broke up demonstrations by 5,000 Communists seeking to interfere with the distribution of American-donated food to East Germans.

The Communist rowdies failed to prevent 80,000 hungry East Germans from collecting their food parcels as the giant relief program went into high gear after an 11-day slowdown for reorganization.

The Red demonstrators appeared at two points of the inter-sector border, yelling slogans and threatening the people waiting patiently in line for the parcels. Sixty-four persons were arrested.

The biggest demonstration was in the Wedding district of the French sector where Communists scattered leaflets attacking the American food relief plan. On the British sector border, near the famous Tiergarten Park, the Communists shot over rockets that rained propaganda leaflets when they burst.

Van Fleet In Formosa

White Sox Win For Trucks, 6-4

CHICAGO, Aug. 27 (AP)—Jim Rivera's triple with the bases loaded in the third inning tonight gave Virgil Trucks and the Chicago White Sox, a 6 to 4 victory over the Boston Red Sox before 23,270. The crowd raised the Comiskey Park attendance above the million mark for the third straight year.

144 Grinning Yanks Freed

PANMUNJOM, Friday, Aug. 28 (AP)—Under sunny skies, more American warriors came back grinning and shouting today from the North Korean land of captivity.

They laughed and cheered as Russian-built Molotov trucks ground to a stop in front of the Allied repatriation center. They jumped down unaided from the truck beds as their names were called out.

A Coloradoan, Cpl. Neil H. Arnspringer of Grand Junction, was the first man off the trucks.

There were 100 Americans in the first two groups and 100 whistling South Koreans.

In all, 144 Americans, 4 British, 2 South Africans and 250 South Koreans were promised in today's exchange.

The Reds today will have repatriated 2,422 Americans. That left only 891 to go to reach the total of 3,313 the Communists said they held.

West Big 3 Bars Security Council Morocco Action

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Aug. 27 (AP)—The United States and Britain joined France today in a solid Western Big Three blow rejecting Arab-Asian demands for U. N. Security Council action on French Morocco.

The present trouble there centers on the dethronement and exile of the old sultan and the installation of a new one last week by the French. And the problem behind that act was the persistent demand by Moroccan nationalists for independence from France.

Question Goes To Assembly

Although debate continues next week, the Big Three stand dooms prospects for getting the Moroccan issue on the Security Council agenda, since it now cannot count on the required seven votes from the 11 Council members. It also means that the question will be presented to the 60-nation General Assembly which convenes next month.

The United States view, expressed today, is that the question is not one affecting international peace and security.

The debate extends into next week because Russia's Andrei Y. Vishinsky said he would not be ready to speak until Monday. The debate now is only on whether a full-blown debate should be held. The merits of the question itself are not supposed to be argued.

Not U. S. Stand On Colonialism

Pakistan and Lebanon will furnish the petitioners with two sure votes. Others who will either vote no or abstain may be found among Chile, Colombia, Greece, Denmark and China.

Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., fresh from a morning victory over an Arab-Asian combination supporting India for a Korean Peace Conference seat, told the Council in the afternoon that he was not expressing the United States stand on colonialism.

President Welcomed To Denver By Posse

FRASER, Colo., Aug. 27 (AP)—A colorful Western posse greeted President Eisenhower on his arrival here from Denver today for a 6-day vacation in the Colorado Rockies.

The 16-man, Grand county posse was drawn up on horseback as the President, smiling broadly, stepped from his car at the entrance to the ranch of an old friend Aksel Nielsen of Denver.

Canadian Prospector Held For Murder Of Pa. Hunters

GASPE, Que., Aug. 27 (AP)—Canadian authorities today arrested a 37-year-old ore prospector for the murder of two young Pennsylvania hunters whose bear-gnawed bodies were found in the Gaspe wilderness last June.

A coroner's jury today held the prospector, Wilbert Coffin, responsible for the deaths of Richard Lindsay, 17, of Hollidaysburg, Pa., and Fred Claar, 20, of East Freedom, Pa. He was immediately arrested on a murder warrant by provincial police.

Crown Prosecutor Noel Dorion said Coffin will be arraigned in nearby Perce tomorrow. It is probable that he will be tried only on the charge of murdering Lindsay.

The skeletal remains of young Lindsay's father, Eugene H. Lindsay, 47, was also found in the woods. An earlier jury declared that his body had been so thoroughly stripped to the bone by marauding bears that it was impossible to determine cause of death.

That jury had determined the two youngsters were shot to death before the bears got at them "by person or persons unknown."

The elder Lindsay had $700 in cash with him when he went into the bush. No trace of the money has ever been found.

Coffin, who has been held as a material witness for two weeks, did not take the stand today on advice of counsel. Instead, he waited in police custody outside the parish hall where the jury met.

Earlier he had admitted that he met the three Pennsylvanians while slugging through the Gaspe forest on June 10. He was the last person known to have seen them alive.

American Plan Adopted By UN Political Group

Limits Korea Peace Talks To Belligerents, Russia On Red Side

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Aug. 27 (AP)—India failed today to get enough votes for a seat in the Korean peace conference. The U. N. Political Committee approved instead an American-backed plan limiting the peace talks to the belligerents, plus Russia on the Communist side.

The crucial vote on India was 27-21 with 11 abstentions. This gave India a majority in the committee. It fell short, however, of the two-thirds majority required in the General Assembly and it gave the chief American delegate, Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., the first major victory of his U. N. career.

The Assembly will convene at 10:30 a.m. tomorrow and is expected to confirm the committee decisions without change. An Indian spokesman said India will not withdraw despite the certain prospect of defeat.

Soviet Moves Rejected

The committee rejected by large votes two Soviet attempts to include six belligerents and nine neutrals in the peace conference. Beaten at every turn, Russia's Andrei Y. Vishinsky then voted for a Western resolution containing the provision that Russia could attend the conference if the other side, Red China and North Korea, desires it. The final vote on Russian participation was 55-2. Uruguay and Nationalist China voted "no" and Argentina and South Africa abstained. India did not participate in the voting.

The belligerents on the U. N. side in the Korean War were Australia, Belgium, Canada, Colombia, Ethiopia, France, Greece, Luxembourg, Netherlands, New Zealand, Philippines, Thailand, Turkey, Britain, United States and South Africa.

Truce Pact Approved

In brief, the committee:

1. Approved the armistice agreement concluded in Korea on July 27.

2. Reaffirmed the U. N. objective in Korea as the achievement by peaceful means of a unified, independent and democratic Korea.

3. Welcomed the political (peace) conference recommended by both sides in the armistice agreement.

4. Recommended that the U. N. side be composed of those countries which sent troops to fight with U. N. forces and who wish to attend the conference.

5. Recommended that the governments taking part in the conference act independently and be bound only by decisions to which they agree. This means the veto will be in force.

6. Asked the United States, in consultation with the participating U. N. countries, to arrange with the other side the dat. and site of the conference. Geneva has the inside track for the place.

7. Reaffirmed the U. N. intention to carry on its program of relief and rehabilitation in Korea and appealed to all member governments to contribute to this task.

Accused Slayer Collapses, Weeps

SOMERVILLE, Mass., Aug. 27 (AP)—Slim, brown-haired Mildred McDonald, whose youthful appearance belies her 25 years, was lodged in jail tonight after sobbingly pleading innocent to a murder charge in the gun-knife slaying of a 14-year old girl whose brother allegedly "brushed her off."

The 113-pound stenographer collapsed in District Court during a brief arraignment. She had been brought from New York by train to Boston and then driven here for a tearful reunion with her schoolteacher father, Alfred, whom she embraced as she cried: "Daddy."

Earlier today, little Mary Di Rocco, who was shot five times and stabbed in her home Monday, was buried after a funeral mass. Her mother, Rose, collapsed at the graveside after raising her tear-stained eyes skyward and crying out forgiveness of the alleged slayer:

"God I forgive her. You forgive her too."

The McDonald girl was arrested Tuesday night in New York by an alert policeman who recognized her from her picture. After hours of questioning she admitted the slaying.

ABA Would Limit Pact Powers Of President

Lawyers Ignore Appeal By Dulles

BOSTON, Aug. 27 (AP)—The House of Delegates of the American Bar Association reaffirmed today its support of a proposed amendment to restrict treaty-making powers of the President despite the opposition of Secretary of State Dulles and the ABA's section on international law.

In addressing the association's 75th anniversary convention yesterday Dulles criticized the amendment whose chief sponsor is Sen. Bricker (R-Ohio). Today, the Committee on International and Comparative Law called upon the association to reverse its stand in the matter.

At last year's meeting in San Francisco, the ABA approved the "principle" limiting presidential treaty-making powers. It reaffirmed the stand at a February meeting in Chicago.

The vote, taken after two hours' debate, was 117 to 33.

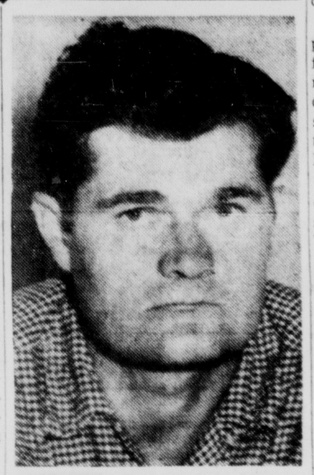

In its report the international section said the Constitution "should not be altered or tinkered with in the absence of the clearest showing of urgent need."

It said further that supporters of the amendment, still pending, had shown neither a need which only an amendment can fill, nor "any present evil which can be countered only in this drastic manner."

Sen. Bricker addressed a section meeting earlier in the week in support of his proposal.

Atty. Gen. Brownell told the convention today he had placed the National Lawyers Guild on his list of subversive organizations. The guild, which claims 2,000 members, was described by Brownell as the legal mouthpiece of the Communist party.

Replying, Earl B. Dickerson, guild president, said in New York that the charges listed by the attorney general in his order to the organization to show cause why it should not be listed as "subversive" were unfounded.

CAUGHT—Jack Gordon White (above), 34, one of the FBI's 10 "most wanted" men, was captured by FBI agents and Seattle police on the waterfront at Seattle yesterday afternoon. White is wanted on armed robbery charges in Ashville, N. C., and for offenses in Boise, Idaho. (AP Wirephoto)

Little Polio Victim Gets Note From Mamie

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., Aug. 27 (AP)—One of the happiest girls in Colorado Springs is Barbara Cornetta, 17, a victim of polio. She received a letter from Mamie Eisenhower.

A girl friend had written the summer White House, asking that a cheery note be sent to Barbara. One came, signed "Mamie Doud Eisenhower" which read:

"The President and I have just heard of your recent illness. I know the days in the hospital are hard for you, since you are young and pretty. But be of good cheer. The President joins me in warm good wishes for your speedy recovery."

Bank Messenger Slugged, Robbed By Two Bandits

EAST RUTHERFORD, N. J., (AP)—Two fast-moving daylight bandits made a smooth getaway today with $37,000 snatched from a bank messenger who was pistol-slugged trying to prevent their escape.

The perfectly timed holdup took place in front of the branch office of the Rutherford National Bank here during mid-morning shopping hours at a busy intersection.

One shot fired by a holdup-man missed James Maloney, of Rutherford, but as he kept chasing the gunman, the fugitive clubbed the messenger to the sidewalk with the pistol butt.

Maloney, whose 69th birthday was today, was treated at Hackensack Hospital for scalp wounds and released. Another bank guard, Fred Dehr, of Lyndhurst, was unhurt.

The money, in a cash bag, was being delivered from the bank's main office to the branch. As the station wagon with the two bank employes halted in front of the branch, Maloney went to the back of the vehicle, and was handed the bag by Dehr.

One bandit suddenly appeared behind Maloney, snatched the bag, and ran to the getaway car which had slipped in back of the bank vehicle.

As Maloney tried to stop the bandit, the thug fired a shot, then slugged the messenger.

Nation Sizzles With No General Relief In Sight

[By The Associated Press]

Waning August turned up the burners again Thursday and most of the nation sizzled.

Chicago, in the center of a temporary torrid zone that extended from the Rockies to the Atlantic, marked up a new high for the date of 97.4. It was the second consecutive day of record heat, and more of the same was expected Friday.

Temperatures in the 90s were common in the wide expanse of sun-baked land from the Missouri Valley to the East Coast.

No general relief was sighted.

Contempt Of Court Action Filed Against Film Censors

BALTIMORE, Aug. 27 (AP) — A contempt of court action was filed today against the Maryland Board of Motion Picture Censors because of its refusal to approve the film "Street Corner" after a judge had okayed it for commercial showing.

Albert R. Sklar, attorney for a motion picture distributor, filed the action in City Court, charging the board with disobeying a court order.

Board chairman Sidney R. Traut announced through counsel yesterday that Judge Herman M. Mose had agreed to waive his order approving the picture pending an application for another court hearing based on "new evidence."

Judge Moser, now vacationing at Atlantic City, held on Aug. 20 that the board had been "arbitrary and capricious" in disapproving certain medical reels in the film. He ruled the film was educational in helping warn youths of sex disease problems.

Sklar in his action today complained that the board had arranged for a new hearing without notifying him.

Judge Moser will hear the contempt motion Sept. 14. It was filed with Judge Joseph L. Carter who has directed the board to answer within 10 days.

Raising Debt

Eisenhower administration claims to have reduced appropriation 13 billion dollars under what former President Truman asked were about 3¼ billions too high when all accounts were in.

Administration and congressional action sliced $12,971,000,000 from the appropriation requests Truman made in his final budget message last January. This was the basis for the claim to have cut appropriations' by 13 billions.

But the revised fiscal 1954 budget issued today by the Budget Bureau emphasized that Congress reappropriated $2,416,000,000 of expiring appropriations, and took other actions adding an additional $442,000,000 to the government's spending authority. Also, the Budget Burea said, the government will have to ask for supplemental appropriations, when Congress reconvenes, of $419,000,000.

ABA Would Limit Pact Powers Of President

Lawyers Ignore Appeal By Dulles

BOSTON, Aug. 27 (AP)—The House of Delegates of the American Bar Association reaffirmed today its support of a proposed amendment to restrict treaty-making powers of the President despite the opposition of Secretary of State Dulles and the ABA's section on international law.

In addressing the association's 75th anniversary convention yesterday Dulles criticized the amendment whose chief sponsor is Sen. Bricker (R-Ohio). Today, the Committee on International and Comparative Law called upon the association to reverse its stand in the matter.

At last year's meeting in San Francisco, the ABA approved the "principle" limiting presidential treaty-making powers. It reaffirmed the stand at a February meeting in Chicago.

The vote, taken after two hours' debate, was 117 to 33.

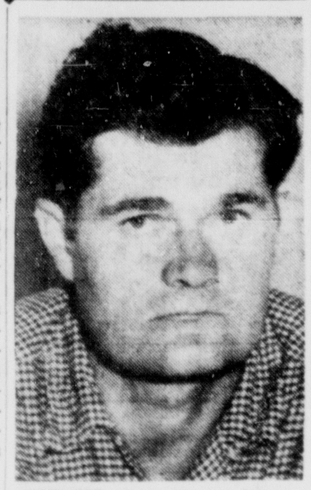

In its report the international section said the Constitution "should not be altered or tinkered with in the absence of the clearest showing of urgent need."

It said further that supporters of the amendment, still pending, had shown neither a need which only an amendment can fill, nor "any present evil which can be countered only in this drastic manner."

Sen. Bricker addressed a section meeting earlier in the week in support of his proposal.

Atty. Gen. Brownell told the convention today he had placed the National Lawyers Guild on his list of subversive organizations. The guild, which claims 2,000 members, was described by Brownell as the legal mouthpiece of the Communist party.

Replying, Earl B. Dickerson, guild president, said in New York that the charges listed by the attorney general in his order to the organization to show cause why it should not be listed as "subversive" were unfounded.

CAUGHT—Jack Gordon White (above), 34, one of the FBI's 10 "most wanted" men, was captured by FBI agents and Seattle police on the waterfront at Seattle yesterday afternoon. White is wanted on armed robbery charges in Ashville, N. C., and for offenses in Boise, Idaho. (AP Wirephoto)

Little Polio Victim Gets Note From Mamie

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., Aug. 27 (AP)—One of the happiest girls in Colorado Springs is Barbara Cornetta, 17, a victim of polio. She received a letter from Mamie Eisenhower.

A girl friend had written the summer White House, asking that a cheery note be sent to Barbara. One came, signed "Mamie Doud Eisenhower" which read:

"The President and I have just heard of your recent illness. I know the days in the hospital are hard for you, since you are young and pretty. But be of good cheer. The President joins me in warm good wishes for your speedy recovery."

Bank Messenger Slugged, Robbed By Two Bandits

EAST RUTHERFORD, N. J., (AP)—Two fast-moving daylight bandits made a smooth getaway today with $37,000 snatched from a bank messenger who was pistol-slugged trying to prevent their escape.

The perfectly timed holdup took place in front of the branch office of the Rutherford National Bank here during mid-morning shopping hours at a busy intersection.

One shot fired by a holdup-man missed James Maloney, of Rutherford, but as he kept chasing the gunman, the fugitive clubbed the messenger to the sidewalk with the pistol butt.

Maloney, whose 69th birthday was today, was treated at Hackensack Hospital for scalp wounds and released. Another bank guard, Fred Dehr, of Lyndhurst, was unhurt.

The money, in a cash bag, was being delivered from the bank's main office to the branch. As the station wagon with the two bank employes halted in front of the branch, Maloney went to the back of the vehicle, and was handed the bag by Dehr.

One bandit suddenly appeared behind Maloney, snatched the bag, and ran to the getaway car which had slipped in back of the bank vehicle.

As Maloney tried to stop the bandit, the thug fired a shot, then slugged the messenger.

Nation Sizzles With No General Relief In Sight

[By The Associated Press]

Waning August turned up the burners again Thursday and most of the nation sizzled.

Chicago, in the center of a temporary torrid zone that extended from the Rockies to the Atlantic, marked up a new high for the date of 97.4. It was the second consecutive day of record heat, and more of the same was expected Friday.

Temperatures in the 90s were common in the wide expanse of sun-baked land from the Missouri Valley to the East Coast.

No general relief was sighted.

Contempt Of Court Action Filed Against Film Censors

BALTIMORE, Aug. 27 (AP) — A contempt of court action was filed today against the Maryland Board of Motion Picture Censors because of its refusal to approve the film "Street Corner" after a judge had okayed it for commercial showing.

Albert R. Sklar, attorney for a motion picture distributor, filed the action in City Court, charging the board with disobeying a court order.

Board chairman Sidney R. Traut announced through counsel yesterday that Judge Herman M. Mose had agreed to waive his order approving the picture pending an application for another court hearing based on "new evidence."

Judge Moser, now vacationing at Atlantic City, held on Aug. 20 that the board had been "arbitrary and capricious" in disapproving certain medical reels in the film. He ruled the film was educational in helping warn youths of sex disease problems.

Sklar in his action today complained that the board had arranged for a new hearing without notifying him.

Judge Moser will hear the contempt motion Sept. 14. It was filed with Judge Joseph L. Carter who has directed the board to answer within 10 days.

Raising Debt

Eisenhower administration claims to have reduced appropriation 13 billion dollars under what former President Truman asked were about 3¼ billions too high when all accounts were in.

Administration and congressional action sliced $12,971,000,000 from the appropriation requests Truman made in his final budget message last January. This was the basis for the claim to have cut appropriations by 13 billions.

But the revised fiscal 1954 budget issued today by the Budget Bureau emphasized that Congress reappropriated $2,416,000,000 of expiring appropriations, and took other actions adding an additional $442,000,000 to the government's spending authority. Also, the Budget Burea said, the government will have to ask for supplemental appropriations, when Congress reconvenes, of $419,000,000.

Ike's Message Indicates Iran To Get U. S. Help

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27 (AP) — President Eisenhower provided evidence today that the United States has decided to assist—with dollars and political support — Iran's new anti-Communist, anti-Mossadegh government.

Such a decision has been rumored here the last day or so and it is expected to result in early, formal assurances to Premier Fazollah Zahedi that he can count on American financial help in the near future.

According to present thinking these assurances should bolster the credit position of the Iranian government, now suffering from lack of an outlet for its oil reserves. This should enable the government to meet its most pressing financial problem, which is payment of army and civil service salaries and some debts owed to army suppliers.

What the President did today was to permit the release at his Denver vacation headquarters of a message to Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi offering "sincere felicitations" on the Shah's return from a brief exile. He had been forced to flee by former Premier Mossadegh, who was deposed by elements loyal to the Shah a week ago. The Shah's man, Zahedi, then formed a government and got the young ruler home again.

Eisenhower also expressed to the Shah his good wishes "for every success in your effort to promote the prosperity of your people and to preserve the independence of Iran."

The message was released after it had been delivered to the Shah. It was the kind of gesture which diplomats expected would mean much to the Shah and his new government at a time when they are reportedly looking to the United States to give them a hand at stabilizing their country.

U. S. Ambassador Loy Henderson spent more than an hour yesterday conferring with Zahedi on Iran's problems and Zahedi's policy ideas and reportedly received an urgent appeal for prompt U. S. financial aid.

Transient Will Die For Kidnaping Girl, 9

WATERTOWN, S. D., Aug. 27 (AP) —A transient from St. Paul, Minn., was sentenced to death here today for the kidnaping of a 9-year-old Watertown girl last June 27.

Arthur Dove, 41, showed no outward emotion when he was sentenced by Circuit Judge R. F. Manson to die in the electric chair.

The death penalty had been recommended by a jury of eight men and four women.

Dove had also been charged with rape and indecent molestation of the girl he was accused of enticing beneath a freight shed but was tried only on the kidnaping charge.

Dummy That "Bleeds" Used In First Aid Class

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27 (AP) — A dummy which "bleeds" has been developed by the Navy to help train first aid workers who would go into action in the event of atomic attack.

The life-size manikin, made of plastic and fiberglass, is equipped with mechanical arrangements for pumping simulated blood to the sites of make-believe wounds of the leg, arm, abdomen, chest and mouth.

There's also an arrangement for demonstrating choking due to a foreign object in the throat.

The Navy says the dummy "challenges the viewer to decide what first aid measures he would apply to each of the simulated wounds."

Woman Pilot, 61, Flies Ocean

SHANNON AIRPORT, Ireland, Aug. 27 (AP)—Mrs. Marion Hart, an American woman still ready for adventure at 61, flew the Atlantic today in a small single engine plane. She plans to keep going on a lone air tour of Europe and perhaps on to India or Africa.

The intrepid New York sportswoman piloted her Beechcraft sports plane from Newfoundland to Ireland—2,500 miles over open sea —and made it look as simple as a routine airline flight.

A little tired on arrival here, she walked into the airport lounge, downed a large glass of Irish whiskey and said: "Now I feel better."

Her navigator—copilot on the 13½ hour flight was Wayne Vetterlein, 30, of Shawnee-on-Delaware, Pa. Vetterlein is an Atlantic route copilot for Pan American Airways.

Their flight, which Mrs. Hart called "a beautiful crossing in bright moonlight," was the first direct crossing in a single engine plane from west to east since the 1930s.

After resting at Shannon tonight and tomorrow, Mrs. Hart said she would take off for either London or Paris and then "I may go on to India or Africa."

"G-G" Didn't Mean Good Government

NEW YORK, Aug. 27 (AP) — Pickets, seeking to pressure the city health department into releasing the polio preventive gamma globulin, marched around City Hall today. One carried a sign reading "We Want GG."

A passerby stopped another and asked what the sign meant.

"Why gamma globulin," was the answer.

"How do you like that?" exclaimed the questioner. "I thought they wanted good government."

India And "Our Side"

The United States objects to India as a U. N. member in the Korean political conference on the indisputable ground that India has not been a belligerent in Korea. Also the generally benevolent attitude of India toward Red China is repugnant to us.

From the start in Korea Indian leaders have repeatedly declared that military action must be secondary to a political settlement in Korea. And these leaders have preferred to rely for a settlement on moral suasion rather than on collective U. N. military action.

And from before the start in Korea, India has steadily asked for the admission of Red China to the U. N. India on December 30, 1949, three months after the founding of the Chinese People's Republic, became the second non-Communist nation to recognize Red China. The following month India voted in the U. N. Security Council for a Soviet resolution to exclude from that body the Chinese Nationalist delegate.

Since then, despite Red Chinese intervention in Korean hostilities, India has openly worked for admission of Red China to the U. N. An Indian resolution to that effect had been defeated by a vote of 33 to 16 in the Assembly on September 19, 1950. India had voted on the same day for a similar Russian resolution, also defeated.

India supported the original Security Council resolution of June 27, 1950, for military sanctions against North Korea. But India has sent no combat forces to Korea, though a large Indian field ambulance served with U. N. forces there.

Prime Minister Nehru of India sent notes to Stalin and U. S. Secretary of State Acheson in July 1950, urging the admission of Red China to the U. N. in the interest of facilitating a peace settlement in Korea. And as U. N. troops were regaining the 38th Parallel, India's Sir Benegal Rau declared the U. N. Political and Security Committee (October 3, 1950) that U. N. invasion of North Korea would increase international tension in the Far East. An Indian vote calling for a cease-fire and negotiated peace at the parallel was defeated on the following day, 32 to 24.

The assembly on October 7, 1950 adopted a U. S.-backed resolution giving authority to General MacArthur to "take all appropriate steps" to "ensure conditions of stability throughout Korea." The vote was 47 to 5, with India among the abstaining.

India and 11 other Asian nations succeeded in getting the assembly to set up a three-man truce committee on December 14, 1950. The United States went along with the majority in order "to preserve the unity of the free world." But the Red Chinese rejected the committee's proposals. That led to the U. S. resolution barnding Red China an "aggressor," adopted by the Assembly on February 1, 1951, by a 44 to 7 vote, with eight nations abstaining. India voted No.

A full-dress Indian truce plan was presented to the U. N. in November 1952, and was at first opposed by the United States on the ground that it might allow enforced repatriation of prisoners of war. The resolution branding Red China an "aggressor," adopted by a vote of 54 to 5 on December 3, though it had been rejected in advance by Red China.

World Alcoholism

That alcoholism is a major health problem is being more and more stressed. The World Health Organization is devoting special attention to it and has appointed a special consultant in this field, Dr. E. M. Jellinek, former staff member of the Yale School of Alcoholic Studies.

At the annual meeting of the World Federation for Mental Health, held at Vienna, Austria, Dr. Jellinek made a report, the first of its kind, on alcoholism in the leading European and American countries. He found that France has the largest alcoholic problem in Europe. In fact, France's alcoholism is a leading topic of conversation in European capitals.

Dr. Jellinek found that the problem is more acute in the rural areas of France than in the cities, which is the reverse of conditions in the United States. What France is doing about this problem is not apparent from dispatches about Dr. Jellinek's report. Most Americans think of the French as primarily a nation of wine drinkers, but consumption of cognac and other hard liquors is enormous.

In the United States, where the Alcoholics Anonymous movement originated, government and private recognition of the alcoholic problem, and means of dealing with it, have made considerable progress in the last decade. The concept of alcoholism as an illness rather than some form of moral failure, is progressing. As wider and more suitable facilities are provided and as medical research widens, treatment of alcoholism will without doubt become more effective.

Music-Makers All

Music training as part of school curricula is amazingly on the increase. This far transcends learning to read easy music and sing from the conventional school song book. It consists of actual instruction in the use of band and string instruments for those who have acquired a sense of rhythm in the lower grades.

Pride in this knowledge is never more in evidence than when boy and girl bands swing along the streets, and in the great improvement of late years in high school orchestras.

Where such instruction is offered, the youngsters generally take to it eagerly. Dr. John C. Kendel, vice president of the American Music Conference, estimated at Chicago that whereas six years ago, in 1947, such free instruction was given to 2,500,000 pupils, the number this year will aggregate 7,000,000, an increase of 180 per cent.

Educators are undoubtedly correct in saying that this music training results in confidence and poise. It may even contribute to lessening juvenile delinquency.

At all events, the child school-trained in music will be grateful for it as an adult as having contributed to a rounded culture increasingly necessary with the passage of time.

How To Keep Well

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

A New Type Of Inflamed Vein

During the winter of 1950, a group of 22 nurses at St. Mary's Hospital in Huntington, W. Va., experienced severe, incapacitating pain over the veins of the lower extremities. The disease had all the outward manifestations of the usual vein inflammation (thrombophlebitis) but subsequent studies proved it was different. Furthermore, the large number of cases that appeared in so short a time suggested transmission from one to another like an epidemic disorder.

Dr. John S. Pearson, in conservative medical style, hesitated at first to report the disease as new but ultimately was encouraged to do so because no one else had seen anything like it previously. A 19-year-old student nurse was the first to seek medical attention. She had been suffering from pain in one leg for two days which became so severe she was unable to continue working. Examination disclosed slight puffiness of the involved leg and the vein was hardened and exquisitely tender. Squeezing the left calf caused unbearable distress.

These complaints and findings were compatible with thrombophlebitis and she was treated accordingly. With bed rest, pain subsided in six days and temperature in 12. On the 17th hospital day she was discharged and reported back for duty after convalescing a week in the nurse's home. Shortly thereafter the disturbance returned and in the succeeding month came back for the third time. Her physician became concerned about a clot breaking off into the blood stream and traveling elsewhere in the body and suggested the operation usually done to prevent this complication. Permission was granted but when the vein was exposed, there was no clot, indicating that thrombophlebitis did not exist.

Then things began to happen. In the ensuing months more and more girls came down with the malady. This too, made the physician suspicious that he was dealing with something new because circulatory disorders are not contagious and it would be most unusual for 22 girls to develop thrombophlebitis within a short period of time. More veins were removed, prepared for microscopic examination, and sent to various authorities for study. They all confirmed the rare nature of the inflammation. Meanwhile an attempt was made to track down the offending agent and scientists from the communicable disease laboratory, National Institute of Health, spent several days studying the blood and serum but results were negative. Several treatments were tried, including penicillin, streptomycin, and the newer antibiotics. Cortisone and ACTH also were given without a startling response. Of all the remedies tried, good old fashioned bed rest helped most.

In thrombophlebitis, symptoms are the same but the venous passageway is obstructed by a clot. Involvement of the surface veins is not as serious because there are other veins to take over the duty of the ailing member. In such instances, the disease process subsides in less than 10 days without after effects. When a deep vein is involved, however, the obstructing clot may interfere with circulation to the involved extremity. The leg swells and the temperature rises but tenderness seldom occurs because the vein is deep and surrounded by muscle, fat and skin. This disorder is more serious because of the danger that the clot might break off. Penicillin and other antibiotics help as well as the anticoagulants which discourage further clot formation.

Plans For Defense Against H-Bomb Speed Up Since Announcement From Russia; Officers' Lunch Hours Now Limited At Pentagon

WASHINGTON — Now that Russia has the terrible H-bomb, Civil Defense authorities are rushing plans to evacuate every major city in the United States at the first warning of an air attack. For the stark truth is that Soviet bombers, streaking low over our radar at night, cannot be stopped.

While it's been decided to evacuate major cities, a lot of other problems remain unsolved and undecided. One of the biggest problems is how to get the advance warning in time to organize a mass evacuation. Even on short notice, however, Civil Defense experts still think the best solution is to alert the population to flee out of town as fast as possible.

Bomb shelters can be built to withstand the force of an atomic blast, but the scorching, searing devastation of a hydrogen explosion can reduce a city the size of New York to charcoal in one blow. As a result, Civil Defense authorities have decided it is no use to build shelters, more practical to concentrate on mass-evacuation plans.

In fact, Civil Defense has already tangled with the military behind the scenes over what to do with the people, once they are evacuated. Civil Defense planners prefer to let each individual work out his own problem, and drift back into town at his leisure after the danger is over.

Military leaders want to organize the construction and factory workers, however, so they can be whisked back into town at once to rebuild the blitzed factories or to resume production without delay if the town is spared.

Surprise Raids Are Easy

Meanwhile, it is our air raid warning net that has Civil Defense officials worried. The Air Force has built an invisible wall of radar across the Canadian border and down both coasts. Each major city is also ringed with radar and anti-aircraft guns. Only gaps are along our southern frontier, which is relatively safe from Russian long-range bombers.

However, it's revealing no secret that Soviet bombers, flying low at night, could escape detection until right on top of the radar screen. Only then would our radar-guided night fighters start seeking them out and attacking them one at a time. While this grim game of hide-and-seek was going on, the majority of the bombers would be certain to get through to New York, Pittsburgh, Chicago, Detroit, Washington — particularly if they crashed the radar wall at scattered points of course, Air Force scientists are working feverishly in secret Boston laboratories to find a foolproof air raid warning system. They have invented one device, which should give the United States several hours advance notice of any suspicious flights over one route enemy bombers might take to the United States — provided the new device works. However, scientists fear that electronics equipment can be depended upon only half the time in certain climates.

No Attack Soon

As for the likelihood of a Soviet H-Bomb attack, our experts are convinced the Russians have not yet consolidated the H-bomb ingredients into an actual bomb, though this is just a matter of time. Our own scientists have built a bomb, which is so large it can barely be squeezed into the bomb-bay of our biggest planes. However, it will be difficult to drop the bomb without destroying the plane that carries it.

Russia's long-range bomber, the TU-4, can be modified to carry an H-bomb in time. Meanwhile, the Russians could convert submarines into makeshift H-bombs that could be exploded along our coast, spreading radioactive spray that would kill all life for miles inland.

The Navy has posted picket ships, equipped with sensitive sonar devices, along the coast to listen for marauding submarines. However, even the Navy acknowledges that this sonar barrier is not foolproof.

Until a better warning net is invented, the Air Force argues that the best defense against a Russian H-attack is the power to retaliate. Only the Air Force has the means to deliver A-bombs and H-bombs to the Rusian heartland. Just as Russian planes can penetrate our defenses, Air Force planes can get through the Russian defenses by saturation raids — namely, hitting Russia from several sides at once.

Yet it was the Air Force, our first line of defense, that took the entire $5 billion defense cut.

No Pentagon AWOLS

Top brass around the Pentagon are having trouble these days getting the afternoon off. With such efficiency experts as Charlie Wilson and his assistant, Roger Kyes, in the driver's seat, even high ranking officers have to watch their working hours.

Last week at a luncheon of the seventh annual convention of the Air Force Association, toastmaster Jimmy Doolittle rose after Roger M. Kyes had given the main address and exceptional service awards had been presented to three top aircraft designers and builders: Donald Douglas, James Kindelberger, Fredrick Rentschler.

"In conclusion," said Doolittle, "I have been asked to announce that there is a bus waiting at the 16th Street entrance to take officers back to the Pentagon."

The FBI And Civil Rights

The term, civil rights, has to do with the Constitution of the United States. This document guarantees to every person living in this land specific unalienable rights. Had the first 10 amendments to the Constitution not been adopted, it is very doubtful that that document could have been ratified by the 13 sovereign states which then formed the more perfect union.

It is the federal Constitution which guarantees these rights, not state laws or municipal ordinances. Therefore, it is, by the organic law of our land, a normal function of our federal government to prevent any person or group of persons, any state or municipality, from invading these rights. The 14th and 15th Amendments were added to the Constitution to strengthen those provisions of it.

It was never intended that all the imaginable rights of the individual should be guaranteed by the Constitution. What we have are a limited number of specific protections which are so worded as to leave little doubt as to what they originally meant, although as the country grew larger and life more complicated, even those simple statements of truth have caused controversies.

The law provides that in a narrow, limited field, the FBI has jurisdiction over some civil rights —not, as in the totalitarian countries, to protect the government, but in the distinctively American concept of protecting the individual. This jurisdiction is specified in Sections 241 and 242, Title 18, United States Code, (supplement 1951), and in a few other sections. The FBI jurisdiction, in the words of J. Edgar Hoover, runs as follows:

"Two or more persons conspiring to injure, oppress, threaten or intimidate any citizen in the free exercise or enjoyment of any right or privilege secured to him by the Constitution or laws of the United States, or because of his having exercised the same; or

"Two or more persons going in disguise on the highway, or on the premises of another, with intent to prevent or hinder his free exercise or enjoyment of any right or privilege so secured."

These clauses involve generally involuntary servitude, slavery and election law violations. Further, Hoover defines the FBI's function as applying to:

"A person acting under color of any law, statute, ordinance, regulation or custom, willfully deprived, or caused to be deprived from any inhabitant rights, privileges or immunities secured or protected by the Constitution or laws of the United States; or

"A person acting under color of any law, statute, ordinance, regulation or custom willfully subjected, or caused to be subjected, any inhabitant to different punishment, pains or penalties than prescribed for the punishment of citizens, on account of such inhabitant being an alien, or by reason of his color or race."

In matters of this nature, as in all others, the functions of the FBI, under the law, are purely investigative. The FBI is not a national police force. It does not bring anyone before a grand jury for indictment. That is the function of the Department of Justice. When, as during the period from 1942 to 1947, the FBI was instructed to stay out of the Atomic Energy Commission's screening or protective functions, it stayed out. That is probably why we lost the atomic and hydrogen bombs. In a word, the FBI is the investigative agency of the attorney general's office, and when it is not permitted to function properly, the conduct of the Department of Justice is usually derelict.

During 1952, an increasingly large number of civil rights matters arose, due perhaps to the fact that for the first time in many years the Department of Justice was headed by a competent, law-enforcing officer, James McGranery, who utilized his investigative arm, the FBI, to its fullest extent.

Three governors, Fine of Pennsylvania, Battle of Virginia, and Dewey of New York, recently spoke in opposition to this function of the FBI. They cannot object to the FBI performing efficently the duties placed upon this bureau by Congress; their objection can only be to the law itself. Until and unless Congress changes the law, the Department of Justice should enforce it and the FBI should investigate cases that arise from it.

In too many instances, officials take it upon themselves to decide which laws they will enforce and which they will abandon. As long as a matter stands on the statute books, it should be enforced; else we have government not by law but by whim.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — Mail is piling high in the office of the Internal Security Committee of the Senate as the public asks for copies of its latest report, which for the first time piece together the story of the Communist conspiracy in the United States.

It was mentioned the other day in these dispatches that copies of the new report could be obtained by writing to the Internal Security subcommittee but, through a telegraphic error, the room number was given as 413 instead of the correct address: Room 423, Senate Office Building, Washington D. C. As a consequence, the office staff of a senator who wasn't on the committee at all was unnecessarily bothered, for which this correspondent expresses regret.

It is significant, however, that the public is taking such a wide interest in the story of Communist infiltration. It is unfortunate that all information necessary for a judgment of the devices used by Communists to deceive American citizens isn't immediately available.

Questioned By Picard

Thus, for example, in recent weeks the Communists have undertaken to distribute copies of articles appearing in so-called "liberal" publications which attempt to advise individuals how to avoid testifying before congressional committees by claiming immunity under the Fifth Amendment of the Constitution.

Up to now it has been taken for granted that a mere refusal of a person to testify on the ground that to do so would tend to incriminate him would relieve him of the necessity of giving testimony. Federal Judge Frank A. Picard of Michigan is the first jurist to express a doubt whether the Constitution was intended to give such immunity to persons who were lying and could be proved to be liars. His comment was given in the case of Guss Polites, who admitted being a member of the Communist party until 1938, when he says he resigned. The issue was whether he had sworn falsely when he said he had not been for 10 years before he asked for naturalization a member of an organization advocating the overthrow of the United States Government by force. So the court naturally asked him if he was still "a member of the Communist party today." But he refused to answer on the ground that he didn't have to do so under the Fifth Amendment and that to answer would tend to incriminate him.

Judge Picard ordered the citizenship revoked, but he said he did not rule on the basis of the defendant's refusal to answer but solely on the evidence furnished by competent witnesses that Polites was in fact a member during the 10 years and knew its purpose was to seek the overthrow of the American government by violence. But Judge Picard felt the occasion justified a comment as to the possible limitations which courts might consider some day with respect to the Fifth Amendment's immunity. He wrote in his formal opinion:

"There are those in this country who undoubtedly believe that the Fifth Amendment should justifiably be utilized whenever the occasion presents. This court does not impugn their sincerity. We only question the rationale of their conclusions. For the ordinary crimes prohibited by our Constitution or acts of Congress—yes. But we are not fully convinced it was the intention of the founding fathers that the Fifth Amendment should be available where one's loyalty to that Constitution becomes suspect by refusal to answer a question of this nation. As stated in Brown vs. Walker, 161 US 591, the amendment should not be construed 'to protect witnesses against every possible detriment which might happen to them from their testimony, nor to unduly impede, hinder or obstruct the administration of criminal justice.' So while this court permitted defendant the cloak provided by the Fifth Amendment, we did so with many misgivings. The shield may easily become a sword . . .

Denunciation Supreme Privilege

"It must be remembered that the very oath which this defendant took at the time he became an American citizen required that he would 'support and defend the Constitution and laws of the United States against all enemies, foreign and domestic.' Still he insisted at this trial upon exemption from testifying as to whether or not he is a Communist, even in the light of what we know about that party today . . .

"New conditions alter cases. The situation in the world is not normal. Security at home today demands trust in each other. As in times gone by, Cicero gave emphasis to pride of country by shouting 'I am a Roman,' it is our opinion that all true Americans should be even more anxious to cry out, 'I am an American,' at every opportunity, and if denying membership in a certain organization is deemed the slightest aid to promoting our security, denunciation of membership therein should be considered a supreme privilege of not a duty, particularly when you have taken the oath which our Supreme Court has said 'relates to a state of mind and is a promise of future conduct.'

"In the case at bar, it is a paradox that this defendant seeks protection of the flag in an American court but evidently only long enough so that the party or philosophy in which he will not deny membership can destroy that Constitution and trample upon that flag, robbing everybody else of the very liberties and freedoms of which he now takes advantage. His current refusal to testify is in our opinion more evidence of his fraud at the time he took the oath."

Matter Of Fact

By STEWART ALSOP

Summing Up: I

WASHINGTON

Somebody in Europe recently suggested an idea for a political cartoon. The cartoon was to show President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles roaring along at breakneck speed in a vehcile labelled, perhaps, "American World Leadership." Dulles was to be nudging Eisenhower, and saying nervously, "Don't look now, but nobody's following us."

The idea may be a bit premature. But it is perfectly easy to foresee a situation, starting perhaps with a French failure to ratify the European Army pact, in which the United States will be going one way and all its allies going the other. There is no one in Europe who does not agree that the American-led Western coalition is in a frighteningly shaky condition. And there is no one, including the administration's major representatives abroad, who does not agree that this is largely because American prestige, and thus the American capacity to lead, has fallen off disastrously in recent months.

This has, in fact, been the subject of a series of warning messages to Washington from the most successful Eisenhower appointees abroad, Ambassador to Great Britain Winthrop Aldrich and Ambassador to France Douglas Dillon. These Aldrich-Dillon cables have dealt particularly with the impact of McCarthyism on American prestige.

McCarthy Becomes Symbol

These cables have been taken so seriously in Washington that the effect of McCarthyism on American foreign policy is reliably reported to have become a subject for official review by the highest American policy-making body, the National Security Council. The subject is one which certainly deserves to be taken seriously in Washington.

Such episodes as the Cohn-Schine junket and the book-burning nonsense have made the United States look ridiculous, which is something no great power can afford to look. McCarthyism, and its twin, McLeodism, are reducing all but the bravest American foreign representatives to timid automatons, which is also something no great power can afford. But there is no use laboring the obvious.

Whit is not so obvious is why the Europeans themselves should take so serious, and indeed such a wide exaggerated view of the McCarthy phenomenon. After all, every democracy has its demagogues, as the Europeans have good reason to know.

The fact is that McCarthyism is a convenient symbol of all Europe fears about America. Their fear of McCarthy has been, first, a fear of America dominated by the Congressional extremists, Asia-firsters, and isolationists, with President Eisenhower rendered powerless. The bettter informed Europeans, at least, have been somewhat reassured by President Eisenhower's now evident determination to be master in his own house. But McCarthy remains a symbol of an American foreign policy so rigid and inflexible, so hag-ridden by dogma, as to render war inevitable.

"Suppose," one high British official remarked recently, "that the Russians came to your people with a blank sheet of paper signed by Malenkov and Molotov, and asked you to fill in your own terms for a settlement. You'd be so scared of dealing with the Russians that you'd indignantly refuse."

"Great Failure" Cited

After the American elections Europeans braced themselves for the great change in American foreign policy which had been promised in the campaign. They had nightmares about war-like American adventures in Eastern Europe and Asia. Now they fear American policy, not because it might change, but because it seems incapable of change.

American representatives abroad, for example, have been ordered not even to discuss an alternative to EDC. EDC, if it is ever ratified, obviously rules out an agreed European settlement. An agreed European settlement is no doubt impossible. But the great failure of American policy in the last few months has been the failure to demonstrate, once and for all, that this is so.

The amazing European response to Churchill's famous May 11 speech, calling for an attempt to reach a peaceful settlement with the Russians, is a phenomenon which should be carefully pondered in Washington. No European leader, from left to right, can dare to criticize this proposal, which Washington denounced as "irresponsible."

The fact is that ever since 1950 American policy in Europe has been squarely based on the assumption that the division of Europe into two parts, with the Red Army on the Elbe, is a permanent condition of life. For the Europeans, this is a well nigh intolerable condition.

India supported the original Security Council resolution of June 27, 1950, for military sanctions against North Korea. But India has sent no combat forces to Korea, though a large Indian field ambulance served with U. N. forces there.

Prime Minister Nehru of India sent notes to Stalin and U. S. Secretary of State Acheson in July 1950, urging the admission of Red China to the U. N. in the interest of facilitating a peace settlement in Korea. And as U. N. troops were regaining the 38th Parallel, India's Sir Benegal Rau declared the U. N. Political and Security Committee (October 3, 1950) that U. N. invasion of North Korea would increase international tension in the Far East. An Indian vote calling for a cease-fire and negotiated peace at the parallel was defeated on the following day, 32 to 24.

The assembly on October 7, 1950 adopted a U. S.-backed resolution giving authority to General MacArthur to "take all appropriate steps" to "ensure conditions of stability throughout Korea." The vote was 47 to 5, with India among the abstaining.

India and 11 other Asian nations succeeded in getting the assembly to set up a three-man truce committee on December 14, 1950. The United States went along with the majority in order "to preserve the unity of the free world." But the Red Chinese rejected the committee's proposals. That led to the U. S. resolution barnding Red China an "aggressor," adopted by the Assembly on February 1, 1951, by a 44 to 7 vote, with eight nations abstaining. India voted No.

A full-dress Indian truce plan was presented to the U. N. in November 1952, and was at first opposed by the United States on the ground that it might allow enforced repatriation of prisoners of war. The resolution branding Red China an "aggressor," adopted by a vote of 54 to 5 on December 3, though it had been rejected in advance by Red China.

World Alcoholism

That alcoholism is a major health problem is being more and more stressed. The World Health Organization is devoting special attention to it and has appointed a special consultant in this field, Dr. E. M. Jellinek, former staff member of the Yale School of Alcoholic Studies.

At the annual meeting of the World Federation for Mental Health, held at Vienna, Austria, Dr. Jellinek made a report, the first of its kind, on alcoholism in the leading European and American countries. He found that France has the largest alcoholic problem in Europe. In fact, France's alcoholism is a leading topic of conversation in European capitals.

Dr. Jellinek found that the problem is more acute in the rural areas of France than in the cities, which is the reverse of conditions in the United States. What France is doing about this problem is not apparent from dispatches about Dr. Jellinek's report. Most Americans think of the French as primarily a nation of wine drinkers, but consumption of cognac and other hard liquors is enormous.

In the United States, where the Alcoholics Anonymous movement originated, government and private recognition of the alcoholic problem, and means of dealing with it, have made considerable progress in the last decade. The concept of alcoholism as an illness rather than some form of moral failure, is progressing. As wider and more suitable facilities are provided and as medical research widens, treatment of alcoholism will without doubt become more effective.

Music-Makers All

Music training as part of school curricula is amazingly on the increase. This far transcends learning to read easy music and sing from the conventional school song book. It consists of actual instruction in the use of band and string instruments for those who have acquired a sense of rhythm in the lower grades.

Pride in this knowledge is never more in evidence than when boy and girl bands swing along the streets, and in the great improvement of late years in high school orchestras.

Where such instruction is offered, the youngsters generally take to it eagerly. Dr. John C. Kendel, vice president of the American Music Conference, estimated at Chicago that whereas six years ago, in 1947, such free instruction was given to 2,500,000 pupils, the number this year will aggregate 7,000,000, an increase of 180 per cent.

Educators are undoubtedly correct in saying that this music training results in confidence and poise. It may even contribute to lessening juvenile delinquency.

At all events, the child school-trained in music will be grateful for it as an adult as having contributed to a rounded culture increasingly necessary with the passage of time.

How To Keep Well

A New Type Of Inflamed Vein

During the winter of 1950, a group of 22 nurses at St. Mary's Hospital in Huntington, W. Va., experienced severe, incapacitating pain over the veins of the lower extremities. The disease had all the outward manifestations of the usual vein inflammation (thrombophlebitis) but subsequent studies proved it was different. Furthermore, the large number of cases that appeared in so short a time suggested transmission from one to another like an epidemic disorder.

Dr. John S. Pearson, in conservative medical style, hesitated at first to report the disease as new but ultimately was encouraged to do so because no one else had seen anything like it previously. A 19-year-old student nurse was the first to seek medical attention. She had been suffering from pain in one leg for two days which became so severe she was unable to continue working. Examination disclosed slight puffiness of the involved leg and the vein was hardened and exquisitely tender. Squeezing the left calf caused unbearable distress.

These complaints and findings were compatible with thrombophlebitis and she was treated accordingly. With bed rest, pain subsided in six days and temperature in 12. On the 17th hospital day she was discharged and reported back for duty after convalescing a week in the nurse's home. Shortly thereafter the disturbance returned and in the succeeding month came back for the third time. Her physician became concerned about a clot breaking off into the blood stream and traveling elsewhere in the body and suggested the operation usually done to prevent this complication. Permission was granted but when the vein was exposed, there was no clot, indicating that thrombophlebitis did not exist.

Then things began to happen. In the ensuing months more and more girls came down with the malady. This too, made the physician suspicious that he was dealing with something new because circulatory disorders are not contagious and it would be most unusual for 22 girls to develop thrombophlebitis within a short period of time. More veins were removed, prepared for microscopic examination, and sent to various authorities for study. They all confirmed the rare nature of the inflammation. Meanwhile an attempt was made to track down the offending agent and scientists from the communicable disease laboratory, National Institute of Health, spent several days studying the blood and serum but results were negative. Several treatments were tried, including penicillin, streptomycin, and the newer antibiotics. Cortisone and ACTH also were given without a startling response. Of all the remedies tried, good old fashioned bed rest helped most.

In thrombophlebitis, symptoms are the same but the venous passageway is obstructed by a clot. Involvement of the surface veins is not as serious because there are other veins to take over the duty of the ailing member. In such instances, the disease process subsides in less than 10 days without after effects. When a deep vein is involved, however, the obstructing clot may interfere with circulation to the involved extremity. The leg swells and the temperature rises but tenderness seldom occurs because the vein is deep and surrounded by muscle, fat and skin. This disorder is more serious because of the danger that the clot might break off. Penicillin and other antibiotics help as well as the anticoagulants which discourage further clot formation.

Plans For Defense Against H-Bomb Speed Up Since Announcement From Russia; Officers' Lunch Hours Now Limited At Pentagon

WASHINGTON — Now that Russia has the terrible H-bomb, Civil Defense authorities are rushing plans to evacuate every major city in the United States at the first warning of an air attack. For the stark truth is that Soviet bombers, streaking low over our radar at night, cannot be stopped.

While it's been decided to evacuate major cities, a lot of other problems remain unsolved and undecided. One of the biggest problems is how to get the advance warning in time to organize a mass evacuation. Even on short notice, however, Civil Defense experts still think the best solution is to alert the population to flee out of town as fast as possible.

Bomb shelters can be built to withstand the force of an atomic blast, but the scorching, searing devastation of a hydrogen explosion can reduce a city the size of New York to charcoal in one blow. As a result, Civil Defense authorities have decided it is no use to build shelters, more practical to concentrate on mass-evacuation plans.

In fact, Civil Defense has already tangled with the military behind the scenes over what to do with the people, once they are evacuated. Civil Defense planners prefer to let each individual work out his own problem, and drift back into town at his leisure after the danger is over.

Military leaders want to organize the construction and factory workers, however, so they can be whisked back into town at once to rebuild the blitzed factories or to resume production without delay if the town is spared.

Surprise Raids Are Easy

Meanwhile, it is our air raid warning net that has Civil Defense officials worried. The Air Force has built an invisible wall of radar across the Canadian border and down both coasts. Each major city is also ringed with radar and anti-aircraft guns. Only gaps are along our southern frontier, which is relatively safe from Russian long-range bombers.

However, it's revealing no secret that Soviet bombers, flying low at night, could escape detection until right on top of the radar screen. Only then would our radar-guided night fighters start seeking them out and attacking them one at a time. While this grim game of hide-and-seek was going on, the majority of the bombers would be certain to get through to New York, Pittsburgh, Chicago, Detroit, Washington — particularly if they crashed the radar wall at scattered points of course. Air Force scientists are working feverishly in secret Boston laboratories to find a foolproof air raid warning system. They have invented one device, which should give the United States several hours advance notice of any suspicious flights over one route enemy bombers might take to the United States — provided the new device works. However, scientists fear that electronics equipment can be depended upon only half the time in certain climates.

No Attack Soon

As for the likelihood of a Soviet H-Bomb attack, our experts are convinced the Russians have not yet consolidated the H-bomb ingredients into an actual bomb, though this is just a matter of time. Our own scientists have built a bomb, which is so large it can barely be squeezed into the bomb-bay of our biggest planes. However, it will be difficult to drop the bomb without destroying the plane that carries it.

Russia's long-range bomber, the TU-4, can be modified to carry an H-bomb in time. Meanwhile, the Russians could convert submarines into makeshift H-bombs that could be exploded along our coast, spreading radioactive spray that would kill all life for miles inland.

The Navy has posted picket ships, equipped with sensitive sonar devices, along the coast to listen for marauding submarines. However, even the Navy acknowledges that this sonar barrier is not foolproof.

Until a better warning net is invented, the Air Force argues that the best defense against a Russian H-attack is the power to retaliate. Only the Air Force has the means to deliver A-bombs and H-bombs to the Rusian heartland. Just as Russian planes can penetrate our defenses, Air Force planes can get through the Russian defenses by saturation raids — namely, hitting Russia from several sides at once.

Yet it was the Air Force, our first line of defense, that took the entire $5 billion defense cut.

No Pentagon AWOLS

Top brass around the Pentagon are having trouble these days getting the afternoon off. With such efficiency experts as Charlie Wilson and his assistant, Roger Kyes, in the driver's seat, even high ranking officers have to watch their working hours.

Last week at a luncheon of the seventh annual convention of the Air Force Association, toastmaster Jimmy Doolittle rose after Roger M. Kyes had given the main address and exceptional service awards had been presented to three top aircraft designers and builders: Donald Douglas, James Kindelberger, Fredrick Rentschler.

"In conclusion," said Doolittle, "I have been asked to announce that there is a bus waiting at the 16th Street entrance to take officers back to the Pentagon."

The FBI And Civil Rights

The term, civil rights, has to do with the Constitution of the United States. This document guarantees to every person living in this land specific unalienable rights. Had the first 10 amendments to the Constitution not been adopted, it is very doubtful that that document could have been ratified by the 13 sovereign states which then formed the more perfect union.

It is the federal Constitution which guarantees these rights, not state laws or municipal ordinances. Therefore, it is, by the organic law of our land, a normal function of our federal government to prevent any person or group of persons, any state or municipality, from invading these rights. The 14th and 15th Amendments were added to the Constitution to strengthen those provisions of it.

It was never intended that all the imaginable rights of the individual should be guaranteed by the Constitution. What we have are a limited number of specific protections which are so worded as to leave little doubt as to what they originally meant, although as the country grew larger and life more complicated, even those simple statements of truth have caused controversies.

The law provides that in a narrow, limited field, the FBI has jurisdiction over some civil rights —not, as in the totalitarian countries, to protect the government, but in the distinctively American concept of protecting the individual. This jurisdiction is specified in Sections 241 and 242, Title 18, United States Code, (supplement 1951), and in a few other sections. The FBI jurisdiction, in the words of J. Edgar Hoover, runs as follows:

"Two or more persons conspiring to injure, oppress, threaten or intimidate any citizen in the free exercise or enjoyment of any right or privilege secured to him by the Constitution or laws of the United States, or because of his having exercised the same; or

"Two or more persons going in disguise on the highway, or on the premises of another, with intent to prevent or hinder his free exercise or enjoyment of any right or privilege so secured."

These clauses involve generally involuntary servitude, slavery and election law violations. Further, Hoover defines the FBI's function as applying to:

"A person acting under color of any law, statute, ordinance, regulation or custom, willfully deprived, or caused to be deprived from any inhabitant rights, privileges or immunities secured or protected by the Constitution or laws of the United States; or

"A person acting under color of any law, statute, ordinance, regulation or custom willfully subjected, or caused to be subjected, any inhabitant to different punishment, pains or penalties than prescribed for the punishment of citizens, on account of such inhabitant being an alien, or by reason of his color or race."

In matters of this nature, as in all others, the functions of the FBI, under the law, are purely investigative. The FBI is not a national police force. It does not bring anyone before a grand jury for indictment. That is the function of the Department of Justice. When, as during the period from 1942 to 1947, the FBI was instructed to stay out of the Atomic Energy Commission's screening or protective functions, it stayed out. That is probably why we lost the atomic and hydrogen bombs. In a word, the FBI is the investigative agency of the attorney general's office, and when it is not permitted to function properly, the conduct of the Department of Justice is usually derelict.

During 1952, an increasingly large number of civil rights matters arose, due perhaps to the fact that for the first time in many years the Department of Justice was headed by a competent, law-enforcing officer, James McGranery, who utilized his investigative arm, the FBI, to its fullest extent.

Three governors, Fine of Pennsylvania, Battle of Virginia, and Dewey of New York, recently spoke in opposition to this function of the FBI. They cannot object to the FBI performing efficently the duties placed upon this bureau by Congress; their objection can only be to the law itself. Until and unless Congress changes the law, the Department of Justice should enforce it and the FBI should investigate cases that arise from it.

In too many instances, officials take it upon themselves to decide which laws they will enforce and which they will abandon. As long as a matter stands on the statute books, it should be enforced; else we have government not by law but by whim.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — Mail is piling high in the office of the Internal Security Committee of the Senate as the public asks for copies of its latest report, which for the first time piece together the story of the Communist conspiracy in the United States.

It was mentioned the other day in these dispatches that copies of the new report could be obtained by writing to the Internal Security subcommittee but, through a telegraphic error, the room number was given as 413 instead of the correct address: Room 423, Senate Office Building, Washington D. C. As a consequence, the office staff of a senator who wasn't on the committee at all was unnecessarily bothered, for which this correspondent expresses regret.

It is significant, however, that the public is taking such a wide interest in the story of Communist infiltration. It is unfortunate that all information necessary for a judgment of the devices used by Communists to deceive American citizens isn't immediately available.

Questioned By Picard

Thus, for example, in recent weeks the Communists have undertaken to distribute copies of articles appearing in so-called "liberal" publications which attempt to advise individuals how to avoid testifying before congressional committees by claiming immunity under the Fifth Amendment of the Constitution.

Up to now it has been taken for granted that a mere refusal of a person to testify on the ground that to do so would tend to incriminate him would relieve him of the necessity of giving testimony. Federal Judge Frank A. Picard of Michigan is the first jurist to express a doubt whether the Constitution was intended to give such immunity to persons who were lying and could be proved to be liars. His comment was given in the case of Guss Polites, who admitted being a member of the Communist party until 1938, when he says he resigned. The issue was whether he had sworn falsely when he said he had not been for 10 years before he asked for naturalization a member of an organization advocating the overthrow of the United States Government by force. So the court naturally asked him if he was still "a member of the Communist party today." But he refused to answer on the ground that he didn't have to do so under the Fifth Amendment and that to answer would tend to incriminate him.

Judge Picard ordered the citizenship revoked, but he said he did not rule on the basis of the defendant's refusal to answer but solely on the evidence furnished by competent witnesses that Polites was in fact a member during the 10 years and knew its purpose was to seek the overthrow of the American government by violence. But Judge Picard felt the occasion justified a comment as to the possible limitations which courts might consider some day with respect to the Fifth Amendment's immunity. He wrote in his formal opinion:

"There are those in this country who undoubtedly believe that the Fifth Amendment should justifiably be utilized whenever the occasion presents. This court does not impugn their sincerity. We only question the rationale of their conclusions. For the ordinary crimes prohibited by our Constitution or acts of Congress—yes. But we are not fully convinced it was the intention of the founding fathers that the Fifth Amendment should be available where one's loyalty to that Constitution becomes suspect by refusal to answer a question of this nation. As stated in Brown vs. Walker, 161 US 591, the amendment should not be construed 'to protect witnesses against every possible detriment which might happen to them from their testimony, nor to unduly impede, hinder or obstruct the administration of criminal justice.' So while this court permitted defendant the cloak provided by the Fifth Amendment, we did so with many misgivings. The shield may easily become a sword . . .

Denunciation Supreme Privilege

"It must be remembered that the very oath which this defendant took at the time he became an American citizen required that he would 'support and defend the Constitution and laws of the United States against all enemies, foreign and domestic.' Still he insisted at this trial upon exemption from testifying as to whether or not he is a Communist, even in the light of what we know about that party today . . .

"New conditions alter cases. The situation in the world is not normal. Security at home today demands trust in each other. As in times gone by, Cicero gave emphasis to pride of country by shouting 'I am a Roman,' it is our opinion that all true Americans should be even more anxious to cry out, 'I am an American,' at every opportunity, and if denying membership in a certain organization is deemed the slightest aid to promoting our security, denunciation of membership therein should be considered a supreme privilege of not a duty, particularly when you have taken the oath which our Supreme Court has said 'relates to a state of mind and is a promise of future conduct.'

"In the case at bar, it is a paradox that this defendant seeks protection of the flag in an American court but evidently only long enough so that the party or philosophy in which he will not deny membership can destroy that Constitution and trample upon that flag, robbing everybody else of the very liberties and freedoms of which he now takes advantage. His current refusal to testify is in our opinion more evidence of his fraud at the time he took the oath."

Matter Of Fact

By STEWART ALSOP

WASHINGTON

Somebody in Europe recently suggested an idea for a political cartoon. The cartoon was to show President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles roaring along at breakneck speed in a vehicle labelled, perhaps, "American World Leadership." Dulles was to be nudging Eisenhower, and saying nervously, "Don't look now, but nobody's following us."

The idea may be a bit premature. But it is perfectly easy to foresee a situation, starting perhaps with a French failure to ratify the European Army pact, in which the United States will be going one way and all its allies going the other. There is no one in Europe who does not agree that the American-led Western coalition is in a frighteningly shaky condition. And there is no one, including the administration's major representatives abroad, who does not agree that this is largely because American prestige, and thus the American capacity to lead, has fallen off disastrously in recent months.

This has, in fact, been the subject of a series of warning messages to Washington from the most successful Eisenhower appointees abroad, Ambassador to Great Britain Winthrop Aldrich and Ambassador to France Douglas Dillon. These Aldrich-Dillon cables have dealt particularly with the impact of McCarthyism on American prestige.

McCarthy Becomes Symbol

These cables have been taken so seriously in Washington that the effect of McCarthyism on American foreign policy is reliably reported to have become a subject for official review by the highest American policy-making body, the National Security Council. The subject is one which certainly deserves to be taken seriously in Washington.

Such episodes as the Cohn-Schine junket and the book-burning nonsense have made the United States look ridiculous, which is something no great power can afford to look. McCarthyism, and its twin, McLeodism, are reducing all but the bravest American foreign representatives to timid automatons, which is also something no great power can afford. But there is no use laboring the obvious.

Whit is not so obvious is why the Europeans themselves should take so serious, and indeed such a wide exaggerated view of the McCarthy phenomenon. After all, every democracy has its demagogues, as the Europeans have good reason to know.

The fact is that McCarthyism is a convenient symbol of all Europe fears about America. Their fear of McCarthy has been, first, a fear of America dominated by the Congressional extremists, Asia-firsters, and isolationists, with President Eisenhower rendered powerless. The bettter informed Europeans, at least, have been somewhat reassured by President Eisenhower's now evident determination to be master in his own house. But McCarthy remains a symbol of an American foreign policy so rigid and inflexible, so hag-ridden by dogma, as to render war inevitable.

"Suppose," one high British official remarked recently, "that the Russians came to your people with a blank sheet of paper signed by Malenkov and Molotov, and asked you to fill in your own terms for a settlement. You'd be so scared of dealing with the Russians that you'd indignantly refuse."

"Great Failure" Cited

After the American elections Europeans braced themselves for the great change in American foreign policy which had been promised in the campaign. They had nightmares about war-like American adventures in Eastern Europe and Asia. Now they fear American policy, not because it might change, but because it seems incapable of change.

American representatives abroad, for example, have been ordered not even to discuss an alternative to EDC. EDC, if it is ever ratified, obviously rules out an agreed European settlement. An agreed European settlement is no doubt impossible. But the great failure of American policy in the last few months has been the failure to demonstrate, once and for all, that this is so.

The amazing European response to Churchill's famous May 11 speech, calling for an attempt to reach a peaceful settlement with the Russians, is a phenomenon which should be carefully pondered in Washington. No European leader, from left to right, can dare to criticize this proposal, which Washington denounced as "irresponsible."

The fact is that ever since 1950 American policy in Europe has been squarely based on the assumption that the division of Europe into two parts, with the Red Army on the Elbe, is a permanent condition of life. For the Europeans, this is a well nigh intolerable condition.

Nehru Urged To Free Ex-Kashmir Premier

NEW DELHI, India, Aug. 27 (AP)—The general secretary of the national conference governing disputed Kashmir today appealed to India's Prime Minister Nehru to free Sheikh Mohammed Abdullah, jailed ex-Premier of the princely Himalayan state.

Abdullah was overthrown Aug. 9 in an Indian-backed coup after reports became current that he was leaning towards an independent Kashmir instead of one united with India. Nehru disclaimed responsibility for the violent events in Kashmir, but today's appeal indicated that the new authorities in Kashmir consider him the boss.

The general secretary, Maulana Sayeed Masoodi, told Nehru in a printed statement that India could never win a plebescite for control of Kashmir so long as Abdullah is jailed.

"The common people," Masoodi said, "who could never imagine such a catastrophe as the arrest of Sheikh Abdullah have got into a state of mind from which it is not so easy to pull them out.

"If, during the few months before plebescite preliminaries begin, the mind of the people is to be made capable of correct (i. e. pro-Indian) political thinking, then there is only one way to do it and that is the immediate release of Sheikh Abdullah."

A United Nations-supervised plebiscite is scheduled to decide whether Kashmir shall join India or Pakistan. The two countries have fought bitterly over control of the strategic mountain area since they gained independence from Britain in 1947.

When the dispute came before the United Nations, the Security Council ordered a plebiscite to be supervised by U. S. Adm. Chester K. Nimitz. This order has never been carried out because of Indian refusal to co-operate.

Nehru met with Pakistan Prime Minister Mohammed Ali last week and the two issued statements after the conference indicating that they had reached agreement on terms for holding a plebiscite by the end of April, 1954.

Nehru, however, proposed that Nimitz be replaced as plebiscite administrator by an Asian or representative of a small country.

Today Ali refused to consider this saying that Nimitz had been appointed by the Security Council with India's consent and Pakistan would not repudiate the council action.

Masoodi is a member of the Indian Parliament from the section of Kashmir occupied by Indian troops. Observers said that despite his official position, Masoodi might be thrown into jail for his statement.

Another Kashmir representative, Mohammed Kabari, was arrested in Srinagar, capital of Kashmir.

Skirt Extremes Are Avoided By American Buyers In Paris

By NADEANE WALKER

PARIS, Aug. 27 (AP)—Christian Dior has raised skirts in his latest fashion creations, but U. S. buyers have avoided extremes of either length or shortness in buying styles here for American women.

First pictures of the new fashions are to be published tomorrow. They show what U. S. fashion experts soon will be offering the American women.

"We never pick freaks, just because they're new," explained Mme. Odette Tedesco and Miss Stella Hanania, buyers for I. Magnin in San Francisco. "Everything has to be wearable, functional, and smart—carrying the new lines but not extreme. Since we buy for the custom-made trade, elegance is important."

With these rules of thumb, the buyers chose Givenchy's slim, double-breasted, cape-collared suit in black wool. The band of velvet which circled the cape collar is typical of the season's trimmings.

Macy's Sidney Gittler, keeping an eye out for what he calls "the coming look," bought Dior's "Tuileries," a black and red wool street coat with the lines of a bulky barrell, and Givenchy's rug-weave clutch coat with fur collar. Mr. Gittler found Dior's skirts "a real fashion revolution," and bought generously from the collection, predicting that "short skirts will be adopted in America by spring at latest."

"I buy Paris styles for inspiration and ideas," said Miss Elizabeth Fairall, vice president of Garfinkel's, Washington. "We don't buy much for reproduction, but for our windows, fashion shows, and so on.

"For example, I took Dior's evening dress called 'Fanny' because it is one of the youngest and most exquisite gala dresses I have seen, and because I'm sure the girls will love it. I picked Fath's 'Jezabel,' a novelty they call a canasta dress (it has a Turkish skirt), because it will look sensational on the runway at a fashion show."

Andrew Goodman, of Bergdorf Goodman's, New York, had other reasons for his choices.

"We buy things that are too high-styled to be copied, and the ones that other buyers haven't touched," he explained. "Our Paris purchases are for the made-to-order trade, so we take the exact materials, buttons and trimmings, and usually do 4 to 25 copies of each, at prices which start at $450 for a dress and $500 for a suit."

Two of his choices were Balmain's long strapless evening sheath, cut to hug the figure and made in one of the newest materials of the season, white satin with a floral print in red velvet, and Dior's "Gitane" (or "Gypsy"), a dancing dress of floral print on a dark, sheer ground, with matching elbow-length gloves.

Bergdorf Goodman's also took Heim's "Coup de Foudre," an ankle-length dance dress with a big ruched skirt, in the new velvet on satin print—this time red on grey, with a red stole.

These few buyer choices—among many others—accurately picked up the major trends of the season: winter prints (surprising because they have always been reserved for summer), velvet trimmings, big high collars and big bulky coats (as well as fitted redingotes), heavy, rug-weave woolens, fur trimmings, slinky evening sheaths as well as big-skirted ball gowns, and the daytime silhouette that tapers from a wide, sloping shoulder line to a narrow or cupped hem.

One thing the U. S. buyers had to forego with regret: the lavish embroideries which adorn Parisian evening and cocktail fashions. For, as Andrew Goodman explained, "we can't get them copied in America at any price."

Nehru Urged To Free Ex-Kashmir Premier

NEW DELHI, India, Aug. 27 (AP)—The general secretary of the national conference governing disputed Kashmir today appealed to India's Prime Minister Nehru to free Sheikh Mohammed Abdullah, jailed ex-Premier of the princely Himalayan state.

Abdullah was overthrown Aug. 9 in an Indian-backed coup after reports became current that he was leaning towards an independent Kashmir instead of one united with India. Nehru disclaimed responsibility for the violent events in Kashmir, but today's appeal indicated that the new authorities in Kashmir consider him the boss.

The general secretary, Maulana Sayeed Masoodi, told Nehru in a printed statement that India could never win a plebescite for control of Kashmir so long as Abdullah is jailed.

"The common people," Masoodi said, "who could never imagine such a catastrophe as the arrest of Sheikh Abdullah have got into a state of mind from which it is not so easy to pull them out.

"If, during the few months before plebescite preliminaries begin, the mind of the people is to be made capable of correct (i. e. pro-Indian) political thinking, then there is only one way to do it and that is the immediate release of Sheikh Abdullah."

A United Nations-supervised plebiscite is scheduled to decide whether Kashmir shall join India or Pakistan. The two countries have fought bitterly over control of the strategic mountain area since they gained independence from Britain in 1947.

When the dispute came before the United Nations, the Security Council ordered a plebiscite to be supervised by U. S. Adm. Chester K. Nimitz. This order has never been carried out because of Indian refusal to co-operate.

Nehru met with Pakistan Prime Minister Mohammed Ali last week and the two issued statements after the conference indicating that they had reached agreement on terms for holding a plebiscite by the end of April, 1954.

Nehru, however, proposed that Nimitz be replaced as plebiscite administrator by an Asian or representative of a small country.

Today Ali refused to consider this saying that Nimitz had been appointed by the Security Council with India's consent and Pakistan would not repudiate the council action.

Masoodi is a member of the Indian Parliament from the section of Kashmir occupied by Indian troops. Observers said that despite his official position, Masoodi might be thrown into jail for his statement.

Another Kashmir representative, Mohammed Kabari, was arrested in Srinagar, capital of Kashmir.

Skirt Extremes Are Avoided By American Buyers In Paris

By NADEANE WALKER

PARIS, Aug. 27 (AP)—Christian Dior has raised skirts in his latest fashion creations, but U. S. buyers have avoided extremes of either length or shortness in buying styles here for American women.

First pictures of the new fashions are to be published tomorrow. They show what U. S. fashion experts soon will be offering the American women.

"We never pick freaks, just because they're new," explained Mme. Odette Tedesco and Miss Stella Hanania, buyers for I. Magnin in San Francisco. "Everything has to be wearable, functional, and smart—carrying the new lines but not extreme. Since we buy for the custom-made trade, elegance is important."

With these rules of thumb, the buyers chose Givenchy's slim, double-breasted, cape-collared suit in black wool. The band of velvet which circled the cape collar is typical of the season's trimmings.

Macy's Sidney Gittler, keeping an eye out for what he calls "the coming look," bought Dior's "Tuileries," a black and red wool street coat with the lines of a bulky barrell, and Givenchy's rug-weave clutch coat with fur collar. Mr. Gittler found Dior's skirts "a real fashion revolution," and bought generously from the collection, predicting that "short skirts will be adopted in America by spring at latest."

"I buy Paris styles for inspiration and ideas," said Miss Elizabeth Fairall, vice president of Garfinkel's, Washington. "We don't buy much for reproduction, but for our windows, fashion shows, and so on.

"For example, I took Dior's evening dress called 'Fanny' because it is one of the youngest and most exquisite gala dresses I have seen, and because I'm sure the girls will love it. I picked Fath's 'Jezabel,' a novelty they call a canasta dress (it has a Turkish skirt), because it will look sensational on the runway at a fashion show."

Andrew Goodman, of Bergdorf Goodman's, New York, had other reasons for his choices.

"We buy things that are too high-styled to be copied, and the ones that other buyers haven't touched," he explained. "Our Paris purchases are for the made-to-order trade, so we take the exact materials, buttons and trimmings, and usually do 4 to 25 copies of each, at prices which start at $450 for a dress and $500 for a suit."

Two of his choices were Balmain's long strapless evening sheath, cut to hug the figure and made in one of the newest materials of the season, white satin with a floral print in red velvet, and Dior's "Gitane" (or "Gypsy"), a dancing dress of floral print on a dark, sheer ground, with matching elbow-length gloves.

Bergdorf Goodman's also took Heim's "Coup de Foudre," an ankle-length dance dress with a big ruched skirt, in the new velvet on satin print—this time red on grey, with a red stole.

These few buyer choices—among many others—accurately picked up the major trends of the season: winter prints (surprising because they have always been reserved for summer), velvet trimmings, big high collars and big bulky coats (as well as fitted redingotes), heavy, rug-weave woolens, fur trimmings, slinky evening sheaths as well as big-skirted ball gowns, and the daytime silhouette that tapers from a wide, sloping shoulder line to a narrow or cupped hem.

One thing the U. S. buyers had to forego with regret: the lavish embroideries which adorn Parisian evening and cocktail fashions. For, as Andrew Goodman explained, "we can't get them copied in America at any price."

New System Proposed For Women's Wear

Finding patterns for home sewing or ready-to-wear garments that fit may soon no longer be a problem for you.

A new commercial standard of body measurement for women's patterns and apparel is being proposed to garment and pattern manufacturers, says clothing specialist, Helen Shelby, University of Maryland Extension Service.

Under the new standard height, the hip, waist and bust measurements are the most important factors for determining the type and size of garment.

If and when the system is adopted by clothing and pattern companies, the difficulty of finding a good fit will be eased. Miss Shelby points out that it will take some time for manufacturers and shoppers to depart from the traditional idea of size 16 or 34 and think in terms of 16 R or 16 S plus.

At the present there is much difference in the size system used by the two industries. Chances are, if you buy a size 14 in a ready made dress, you'll take a size 16 or 18 pattern.

Already some manufacturers of women's garments are using the new system of body measurement. Several mail order houses are using it, too. They give full instructions, with charts for figuring your size, to follow before placing your order.

New System Proposed For Women's Wear

Finding patterns for home sewing or ready-to-wear garments that fit may soon no longer be a problem for you.

A new commercial standard of body measurement for women's patterns and apparel is being proposed to garment and pattern manufacturers, says clothing specialist, Helen Shelby, University of Maryland Extension Service.

Under the new standard height, the hip, waist and bust measurements are the most important factors for determining the type and size of garment.

If and when the system is adopted by clothing and pattern companies, the difficulty of finding a good fit will be eased. Miss Shelby points out that it will take some time for manufacturers and shoppers to depart from the traditional idea of size 16 or 34 and think in terms of 16 R or 16 S plus.

At the present there is much difference in the size system used by the two industries. Chances are, if you buy a size 14 in a ready made dress, you'll take a size 16 or 18 pattern.

Already some manufacturers of women's garments are using the new system of body measurement. Several mail order houses are using it, too. They give full instructions, with charts for figuring your size, to follow before placing your order.

OLD MOREHEAD HOME—One of the oldest buildings on Mechanic Street is shown partly dismantled after workers began razing it to make room for a used car lot. The century-old home owned by the Morehead family of Cumberland was purchased recently by George L. Carney, LaVale, who plans to lease the cleared lot to Eiler Chevrolet Inc. Carney said the old log house was built by a Mr. Wilson who later sold it to the Moreheads.

By LARRY T. GRECO

Workers last week began razing one of the oldest homes on Mechanic Street to make room for a used car lot.

According to George L. Carney, LaVale, owner of Carney's Auto Parts Company, North Mechanic Street, who purchased the historic building and lot, said the covered log house was owned by the Morehead family since 1866.

Historic facts about the house at 223 North Mechanic Street, are scanty, but Carney said he believes the structure was built by a Mr. Wilson who later sold it to the Morehead family.

Carney added the house will be torn down and the lot cleared. It adjoins the Eiler Chevrolet Inc. garage and will be leased to the company for expansion of Eiler's used car lot.

Next to the old building is Gramlich Alley which is still paved with brick. It was given to the City of Cumberland by Francis M. Gramlich, the late father-in-law of Mrs. Emma M. Gramlich, 93, of 243 North Centre Street.

Remembers Old Spring

Mrs. Gramlich still remembers when the alley, which runs from Mechanic to Centre Streets, used to have a water spring at the Centre Street end. The spot is now occupied by Marple's Jewelry Store, 234 North Centre Street. The old alley still exists today and is owned by the City of Cumberland.

Mrs. Gramlich said the alley was crossed by an old millrace, and a wooden foot bridge connected the alley's two ends. She remembers when children used to play in the water of the stream. Later the stream was filled in and is now part of today's Bow Street.

The old Morehead house was last owned by Howard B. Morehead who is now living with relatives here. He is a descendant of William Morehead who established the oldest stove house in Cumberland. The business was later taken over by his sons.

William Morehead came to Cumberland as a young man from Chambersburg, Pa. where he was born in 1832. While here he learned the trade of tinner under James McGill and in 1860 purchased the business of his old employer. It was located at 11 Baltimore Street. In the early days and in later years, tinning of every kind was handled. Before modern manufacturing turned out housewares in large quantities all such articles were made by hand and Mr. Morehead was an expert at his work.

Had Large Factory

The business grew steadily and soon Mr. Moorehead's sons, John E. and Howard B. Moorehead, the youngest, joined him. It was carried on at the old stand until 1897. In 1904 a building at 17-19 North Mechanic Street was purchased and equipped with every known facility for the large manufacturing and merchandising business. This building is now owned by the Knights of Columbus and includes the Spa Bar.

At that time the business was the largest in Cumberland and everything in metal work known to the trade was produced including architectural sheet metal, steel ceilings, cornices, skylights, blast pipes, railroad and factory work, copper, tin and galvanized iron gutters. The firm maintained a reputation for quality roofing.

Howard B. Morehead, the youngest son, an expert sheet metal worker, gave his special attention to the roofing branch of the business.

Howard, from whom Carney purchased the old building at 223 North Mechanic Street, was born here May 9, 1879. Like his brother, he is a Democrat and a Lutheran, and fraternally he affiliates with Lodge No. 60, Knights of Pythias, and with the Knights of Maccabees. He is listed as secretary for The Maccabees Tent No. 18.

OLD MOREHEAD HOME—One of the oldest buildings on Mechanic Street is shown partly dismantled after workers began razing it to make room for a used car lot. The century-old home owned by the Morehead family of Cumberland was purchased recently by George L. Carney, LaVale, who plans to lease the cleared lot to Eiler Chevrolet Inc. Carney said the old log house was built by a Mr. Wilson who later sold it to the Moreheads.

Unflavored Gelatine Changes Guise To Fit A Lifetime Of Menus

Unflavored gelatine has the magic of making other foods, as well as the very art of cooking, more dramatic.

The fine grains of gelatine in neat envelope measure possess the property of jelling liquid at refrigerator temperature. Thus this staple ingredient starts a distinct branch of food preparation. By gel-cookery one can obtain the simplest of desserts and salads or the most elaborate of food creations. This gelatine can be introduced early to babies, can make rich and festive desserts and main dishes for the gourmet of able digestion, and can still be as spicy or bland as the senior citizen desires.

There are three simple and basic rules for using unflavored gelatine. First, soften in cold liquid. Second, dissolve thoroughly in a hot liquid or over hot water. Third, season or flavor, and if desired, add solid ingredients such as diced fruit, vegetables, meat, etc. One envelope of unflavored gelatine will "gel" up to two cups of liquid. If sugar is used in the recipe, it is counted as part of that liquid because it goes into solution. Up to two cups of solids may be added per envelope of gelatine.

Quickie, clear gelatine desserts or salads can be enjoyed a whole lifetime and with the fruit or vegetable flavor an individual prefers. These can be two-ingredient simple with just an envelope of the gelatine and two cups of fresh, frozen or canned fruit or vegetable juice.

Snow desserts are the clear basic gelatine, slightly thickened by cooling, whipped until light and foamy and with egg whites added.

Then come more elaborate chiffon and Spanish cream dishes with unflavored gelatine, milk and eggs as the basic ingredients. The final result differs from the familiar custard in that the texture is light and fluffy. For chiffon main dish loaves, mayonnaise or salad dressing may be substituted for the eggs.

Finally there are mousses, charlottes and Bavarian creams. These call for the addition of whipped cream or whipped evaporated milk to the clear basic gelatine or to a gelatine, egg and milk base. Main dish mousses may have meat stock or bouillon for the liquid. Diced chicken, tongue, ham, fish or seafood may be added to these beautiful-of-design main dishes.

Unflavored gelatine is all protein . . . no sugar or artificial flavoring has been added. It has long been recognized by the medical profession for its ease of digestion, low sodium content, and ability to neutralize gastric acidity. Its use is recommended on reducing diets, on low sodium, diabetic, peptic ulcer and other liquid and soft diets in order to maintain the protein intake.

PEACH GEL-SALAD

1 No. 2½ can cling peach halves
2 envelopes unflavored gelatine
6 tablespoons lemon juice
2 teaspoons grated lemon rind
⅔ cup sugar
1 8-ounce package cream-style cottage cheese

Drain peaches thoroughly. Reserve syrup; add water to measure 3 cups. Soften gelatine in 1 cup of the cold liquid; heat remaining liquid. Add softened gelatin, lemon juice, lemon rind and sugar; stir until dissolved. Pour into 7 x 11½ x 2 inch glass dish. Chill until consistency of unbeaten egg white. Place 6 peach halves in gelatine, 4 in each side of dish. Gelatine mixture will cover peaches slightly. Put a scoop of cottage cheese in the center of each peach half. Chill until firm. To serve, cut gelatine into 8 squares with a filled peach half in center of each. Remove from dish with pancake turner and place on salad greens. If desired, garnish with a slice of stuffed olive.

YIELD: 8 servings.

Main Dishes To Fit Warm Days

Main dishes with a definite "salad look" appear often on the summer scene. Two good examples: Jellied Chicken Loaf with Egg Dressing, and Shrimp Salad Tarts. Note the emphasis on accessories here. The right garnish for the plate or platter is almost as important as the dish itself.

Jellied Chicken Loaf

Place a 4- to 5-pound stewing chicken in large kettle; barely cover with boiling water. Add 1 carrot, 1 slice onion, 1 stalk celery, several sprigs parsley, 1 tablespoon salt, several whole peppercorns, and 1½ teaspoons Ac'cent. Bring to boil, cover and simmer 2½ to 3 hours, or until tender. Let chicken cool in broth. Remove skin and separate meat from bones. Put meat through food grinder with 1 stalk celery. Strain broth and skim off fat. For remainder of recipe, proceed as follows:

- 2 envelopes (2 tablespoons) unflavored gelatin
- 4½ cups chicken stock (add canned broth, if necessary, to make that amount)
- 2 tablespoons chopped parsley
- 1 teaspoon lemon juice
- ½ teaspoon Worcestershire
- Dash of cayenne
- Salt and celery salt to taste

Soften gelatin in ½ cup cold chicken stock 5 minutes. Dissolve in 1 cup hot chicken stock; add remaining 3 cups stock. Stir in ground chicken and celery, mixing well. Add remaining ingredients. (Taste to be sure mixture is really seasoned with a "zip.") Turn into a loaf pan (10 by 5 by 3 inches) that has been rinsed with cold water. Chill until firm. At serving time, unmold on a platter. Garnish with salad greens and surround loaf with any desired vegetables, such as: asparagus tips, sliced or stuffed tomatoes, celery curls, ripe olives, radishes, etc. Serve with Egg Dressing (below). Serves 8 or more.

Egg Dressing: Mix 1½ cups mayonnaise, 2 chopped hard-cooked eggs, ¼ cup thinly sliced pimiento-stuffed olives, and 2 tablespoons chopped parsley. Season with ½ teaspoon dry mustard, ½ teaspoon Worcestershire, salt and pepper to taste, and a dash of Ac'cent. Chill one hour or more to blend flavors. Makes about 1¾ cups dressing. (Excellent as a dressing for any salad that requires mayonnaise.)

We're All For One--On A Tray

Designed for a time-of-your-life party—our Barbecued Corned Beef Hashburgers. They are easy to cook, attractive to serve and the proof of it all is in the eating. It's a one-tray meal in keeping with modern ranch house living. Let the man-of-the-house carry it triumphantly to porch or yard for popular outdoor eating. It will match the appetites of good neighbors assembled for impromptu get-togethers.

Menus which include foods that can be arranged on one large serving platter or tray are most suitable for transporting to a cool, breezy dining spot. The hashburgers, on toasted buns, are prepared with a minimum of time and effort. Food trays need the impact of color and here it is in the sparkling green of fresh or frozen stringless beans and the relish garnishes.

Barbecued Corned Beef Hashburgers

- 1 (#2) can corned beef hash
- 1/4 cup tomato catsup
- 1 teaspoon prepared mustard
- 1 teaspoon vinegar
- 5 sandwich buns

Open both ends of can and push hash out, leaving it whole. Slice hash crosswise into 5 equal size rounds. Place hash slices in a greased baking dish and brown them in a hot oven (400° F.) for ten minutes, turn hash slices and brown them on other side for ten minutes. Combine catsup, mustard and vinegar and spread over top of hash slices during last ten minutes of baking. Cut buns in half and toast both cut sides. Place a slice of barbecued hash in each bun. Yield: 5 Barbecued Corned Beef Hashburgers.

Shrimp Salad Tarts

- 1 cup coarsely chopped walnuts or pecans
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 2 cups cooked or canned shrimp (whole if small, cut up if large)
- 2 cups diced celery
- Mayonnaise (about 1½ cups)
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 2 teaspoons grated onion
- Salt and pepper to taste
- ½ teaspoon Ac'cent
- 6 to 8 baked 4-in. tart shells
- Additional mayonnaise and paprika for garnishing

Saute nuts gently in butter just until golden brown. Stir frequently and watch carefully! Mix shrimp, celery, and nuts; add enough mayonnaise to moisten mixture nicely; add lemon juice, onion, salt, pepper, and Ac'cent. Chill thoroughly. At serving time, fill tart shells with the mixture, allowing a heaping ½ cup per shell if 6 are to be filled, less for 8 shells. Top salad with a bit of mayonnaise and a dusting of paprika. Place each tart on a plate and garnish with salad greens and assorted relishes—ripe or green olives, radishes, cucumber sticks, carrot curls, hearts of celery, pickles, or whatever you like. Serves 6 heartily, 8 less generously. (Crabmeat, tuna, or chicken may be substituted for the shrimp in this recipe, if preferred.)

PARTY NOTE: Miniature tart shells filled with the above salad fit nicely into an afternoon tea or wedding reception menu.

Check Cooking Technique For Roasts, Steaks, Chops

Roasting, broiling, panbroiling—these are dry heat cookery methods used for roasts, steaks and lamb chops. It's wise to frequently "brush up" on your cooking techniques.

The most important point to remember in meat cookery is using a low temperature. In roasting that means a 300° F. oven for beef, veal, smoked pork and lamb; 350° F. for fresh pork. A roast is more juicy and tender, and there is actually more meat to serve when it is cooked at a low rather than a high temperature.

In roasting, place the meat with the fat side up on a rack in an open roasting pan. Do not add liquid. If you have a roast meat thermometer by all means use it to eliminate any guessing as to when the meat is done. Insert it in the largest muscle, but not in fat or on bone. Do not cover the meat. Cook at the recommended low temperature until done as registered by the thermometer or for the minutes per pound recorded on a reliable time-table.

Timing Important

Broiling is one of the simplest of all meat cookery methods. The moderate temperature for broiling is obtained by placing the meat a certain distance from the heat. For instance, a 1-inch steak should be 2 inches from the heat, a 2-inch steak 3 inches from the heat. Timing is important in broiling. Follow your time-table closely to have chops or steaks cooked to the desired degree of doneness.

Q. What is the name of this cut of meat?

A. Beef arm or round bone pot-roast.

Q. Where does it come from and how is it identified?

A. It comes from the beef chuck. This cut has a round bone and cross sections of 3 to 5 ribs.

Q. How is it prepared?

A. By braising. Dredge the meat with seasoned flour if desired. Then brown on both sides in a small amount of lard or drippings. When well browned, add from ⅓ to ½ cup of liquid, cover and cook slowly until tender. This pot-roast requires 3 to 4 hours cooking.

In broiling, place the meat on the rack and adjust the broiler pan so that the meat is the right distance from the heat. Broil until brown, season, then turn and finish cooking on the second side, season. Seasoning after browning is suggested because salt tends to retard the browning process.

Panbroiling is the range top method of dry heat cookery. This is suggested for steaks less than 1-inch thick, for ground beef patties and for thin ham slices, bacon, etc. Place the meat in a small amount of fat, then let it cook over low heat, turning frequently until done. Pour off excess fat as it accumulates in the pan. Do not cover or add liquid. Panbroiling requires about half the time required for broiling.

Check Cooking Technique For Roasts, Steaks, Chops

Roasting, broiling, panbroiling—these are dry heat cookery methods used for roasts, steaks and lamb chops. It's wise to frequently "brush up" on your cooking techniques.

The most important point to remember in meat cookery is using a low temperature. In roasting that means a 300° F. oven for beef, veal, smoked pork and lamb; 350° F. for fresh pork. A roast is more juicy and tender, and there is actually more meat to serve when it is cooked at a low rather than a high temperature.

In roasting, place the meat with the fat side up on a rack in an open roasting pan. Do not add liquid. If you have a roast meat thermometer by all means use it to eliminate any guessing as to when the meat is done. Insert it in the largest muscle, but not in fat or on bone. Do not cover the meat. Cook at the recommended low temperature until done as registered by the thermometer or for the minutes per pound recorded on a reliable time-table.

Timing Important

Broiling is one of the simplest of all meat cookery methods. The moderate temperature for broiling is obtained by placing the meat a certain distance from the heat. For instance, a 1-inch steak should be 2 inches from the heat, a 2-inch steak 3 inches from the heat. Timing is important in broiling. Follow your time-table closely to have chops or steaks cooked to the desired degree of doneness.

Q. What is the name of this cut of meat?

A. Beef arm or round bone pot-roast.

Q. Where does it come from and how is it identified?

A. It comes from the beef chuck. This cut has a round bone and cross sections of 3 to 5 ribs.

Q. How is it prepared?

A. By braising. Dredge the meat with seasoned flour if desired. Then brown on both sides in a small amount of lard or drippings. When well browned, add from ⅓ to ½ cup of liquid, cover and cook slowly until tender. This pot-roast requires 3 to 4 hours cooking.

In broiling, place the meat on the rack and adjust the broiler pan so that the meat is the right distance from the heat. Broil until brown, season, then turn and finish cooking on the second side, season. Seasoning after browning is suggested because salt tends to retard the browning process.

Panbroiling is the range top method of dry heat cookery. This is suggested for steaks less than 1-inch thick, for ground beef patties and for thin ham slices, bacon, etc. Place the meat in a small amount of fat, then let it cook over low heat, turning frequently until done. Pour off excess fat as it accumulates in the pan. Do not cover or add liquid. Panbroiling requires about half the time required for broiling.

Plan An "End Of The Summer" Picnic

The picnic season is almost over but there is still time for one more outdoor feast before the cold weather begins. Here's a menu, that requires a little advance preparation, but then everyone can relax, including the cook.

Chilled Tomato Juice, Wedges of Cheese, Peppy Hamburgers, "New Process" Whole Kernel Corn, Tossed Salad, Rolls, Coffee and Cake.

Tomato juice and wedges of cheese are easy hors d'oeuvres and it's surprising how much a little touch like that can help a picnic get started. The Peppy Hamburgers are made in home and carried to the picnic ready for broiling. The recipe for these hamburgers is below. It's a spiced ground beef mixture to which 2 cups whole wheat cereal are added. The cereal adds flavor and extends one pound of meat to make 8 good sized patties. Which is a lesson in economy for any time. Broil them over an open fire, or charcoal. They come from the fire juicy and flavorsome as only meat cooked outdoors can be.

Prepare the salad at home, add dressing and toss. Use the "New Process" whole kernel corn which has just come on the market. It tastes as good as corn-on-the-cob but is so much easier to cook outdoors. Rolls, salad and coffee complete the menu.

Peppy Hamburgers

1 egg
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons minced onions
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
1¼ cups milk
2 cups Pep (whole wheat flakes)
1 pound ground beef
8 slices bacon

Beat egg; add salt, pepper, onions, parsley, milk and cereal. Add beef and mix thoroughly. Divide into eight portions. Cut slices of bacon lengthwise into two strips. Arrange two strips bacon crosswise on waxed paper. Mold portion of meat mixture into pattie and place on bacon intersection. Bring strips together on top of pattie, skewering with toothpick. Bake in hot oven (450°F) about 30 minutes or broil about 20 minutes. Yield: 8 Peppy Hamburgers.

The average size salmon weighs from 10 to 15 pounds.

Modern Ideas For Short Ribs Add Menu Appeal

Beef short ribs are on the list of so-called less demanded cuts. These are the cuts that many homemakers overlook, thus, they are frequently a good buy in your market.

New ideas for short ribs can lead to interesting meals. Spanish short ribs is one way you'll want to try. To make these add sliced onion and green pepper and a can of tomatoes to the browned short ribs. Season with salt, pepper and Worcestershire and cook covered until tender, about 1½ to 2 hours.

Browned short ribs with sauerkraut is another favorite. Deviled short rib, too, are good; add sliced onion, dry mustard and vinegar to the water used to cook the meat.

Short ribs also may be cooked as a stew, in liquid to cover, thus adding still more ways of serving them. The alternate layers of fat and lean in short ribs adds extra flavor to any kind of stew chosen. Add your choice of vegetables just long enough before the end of cooking so they will be tender. These beef cuts are a natural for a "boiled" dinner. To the ribs add cabbage wedges, carrots, turnips and onion.

Cook Slowly!

Cook all meat at a low temperature. You'll be rewarded in juicier, more tender meat servings.

Plan An "End Of The Summer" Picnic

The picnic season is almost over but there is still time for one more outdoor feast before the cold weather begins. Here's a menu, that requires a little advance preparation, but then everyone can relax, including the cook.

Chilled Tomato Juice, Wedges of Cheese, Peppy Hamburgers, "New Process" Whole Kernel Corn, Tossed Salad, Rolls, Coffee and Cake.

Tomato juice and wedges of cheese are easy hors d'oeuvres and it's surprising how much a little touch like that can help a picnic get started. The Peppy Hamburgers are made in home and carried to the picnic ready for broiling. The recipe for these hamburgers is below. It's a spiced ground beef mixture to which 2 cups whole wheat cereal are added. The cereal adds flavor and extends one pound of meat to make 8 good sized patties. Which is a lesson in economy for any time. Broil them over an open fire, or charcoal. They come from the fire juicy and flavorsome as only meat cooked outdoors can be.

Prepare the salad at home, add dressing and toss. Use the "New Process" whole kernel corn which has just come on the market. It tastes as good as corn-on-the-cob but is so much easier to cook outdoors. Rolls, salad and coffee complete the menu.

Peppy Hamburgers

1 egg
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons minced onions
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
1¼ cups milk
2 cups Pep (whole wheat flakes)
1 pound ground beef
8 slices bacon

Beat egg; add salt, pepper, onions, parsley, milk and cereal. Add beef and mix thoroughly. Divide into eight portions. Cut slices of bacon lengthwise into two strips. Arrange two strips bacon crosswise on waxed paper. Mold portion of meat mixture into pattie and place on bacon intersection. Bring strips together on top of pattie, skewering with toothpick. Bake in hot oven (450°F) about 30 minutes or broil about 20 minutes. Yield: 8 Peppy Hamburgers.

The average size salmon weighs from 10 to 15 pounds.

Modern Ideas For Short Ribs Add Menu Appeal

Beef short ribs are on the list of so-called less demanded cuts. These are the cuts that many homemakers overlook, thus, they are frequently a good buy in your market.

New ideas for short ribs can lead to interesting meals. Spanish short ribs is one way you'll want to try. To make these add sliced onion and green pepper and a can of tomatoes to the browned short ribs. Season with salt, pepper and Worcestershire and cook covered until tender, about 1½ to 2 hours.

Browned short ribs with sauerkraut is another favorite. Deviled short rib, too, are good; add sliced onion, dry mustard and vinegar to the water used to cook the meat.

Short ribs also may be cooked as a stew, in liquid to cover, thus adding still more ways of serving them. The alternate layers of fat and lean in short ribs adds extra flavor to any kind of stew chosen. Add your choice of vegetables just long enough before the end of cooking so they will be tender. These beef cuts are a natural for a "boiled" dinner. To the ribs add cabbage wedges, carrots, turnips and onion.

Cook Slowly!

Cook all meat at a low temperature. You'll be rewarded in juicier more tender meat servings.

Labor Day Picnic Cake Short Labor For Cook

Labor Day may not bring the last rose of summer, but it will bring the last picnic of summer to most of us. It's rather a wistful picnic, the Labor Day picnic, closing the carefree warm weather season, and turning toward sterner winter's demands.

But since it is the last big picnic of the year, it does seem worthy of something particularly festive like a fine, home-made cake brought to the picnic still fragrant from the oven. Experienced picnickers bake their cakes in a pan suitable for toting to a picnic, with the cake frosted in the same pan in which it was baked. For those who are satisfied only by perfect efficiency, there is a sheet cake pan with a sliding cover to close over the cake when it is transported to the picnic.

Fresh Banana Cake
Easy To Make

Worthy of the Labor Day picnic festivities is a delicious Banana Cake made quickly by the one bowl method, yet new and delicate with the fresh flavor of sweet and mellow fully ripe bananas right in the batter. The bananas are mashed so that the distinctive flavor really permeates the cake. Use fully ripe bananas . . . yellow peel flecked with brown . . . for banana flavor at peak of ripeness, sweetness, and digestibility. Bake this delicious cake in a sheet pan, cool it, frost it, and away you go with a dessert perfectly suited to celebrate the last picnic of summer.

Beat 1 minute longer. Turn into an oblong pan 13 x 9½ x 2-inches. Bake in a moderate oven (375° F.) about 30 to 35 minutes or until done. Frost with your favorite frosting.

Makes 1 cake.

IMPORTANT: To mash bananas, slice them into a bowl. Beat with a fork, rotary egg beater or electric mixer until smooth and creamy.

Try Apple Souffle For Glamor Dessert

Concocting a festively different dessert to top off a meal is often a problem for the homemaker.

But even applesauce—that mainstay of the pantry shelf—can be called upon to produce a right answer, maintains a famous chef, internationally noted for the glamorous desserts he has created.

According to Chef Otto Bismarck, who directs the culinary activities aboard the luxury liner United States, it's the apple souffle that makes the biggest hit with the passengers who have tried it. Here's his step-by-step recipe for the light and fluffy dessert that may easily be duplicated at home:

Place dish in larger pan filled with hot water and bake in 400° F. oven for 15 minutes. Remove from oven and serve immediately with whipped cream. Serves 4.

Plentiful Beef Featured In Buffet Supper

Beef Loaf
Tomato Cups with Cottage Cheese
Deviled Eggs
Relishes
Assorted Breads
Ice Cream Sundaes

Plentiful supplies of beef are coming to market. This is wonderful news for homemakers. Now is the time to serve your family all of the cuts of beef they like so well. Your choice is wide for there are more than thirty different cuts in all.

For this season a porch buffet that features a tasty beef loaf will make a hit with your family and friends. And ground beef is one of the best buys in your market today. Team the loaf with big plump tomatoes filled with cottage cheese or with potato salad and dusted with paprika. Deviled eggs can be the garnish for your platter or wooden tray.

Vary Loaves

It's easy to make every ground beef loaf different, says meat expert Reba Staggs. She suggests turning to various seasonings and accompaniments to accomplish this. Here is the basic seasoning for each pound of ground beef: 1 teaspoon salt and ⅛ teaspoon of pepper.

For a simple change in your beef loaf, mold half the beef mixture in the bottom of the loaf pan. Then place hard-cooked eggs or pickles in an even row down the middle of the pan. Cover with the remainder of the beef mixture. When it's baked, each serving reveals a slice of egg or pickle.

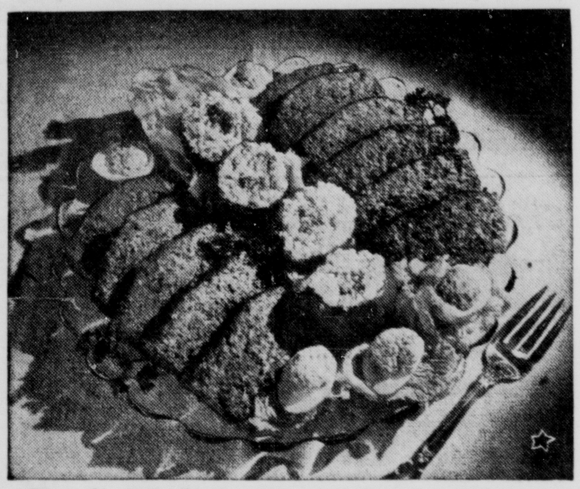

Remember in roasting a beef loaf the same rules apply as when roasting a standing rib of beef. Slow cooking is a must. Set your oven regulator at 300° F. and keep it at this constant temperature.

Here's a tempting loaf to serve for your buffet.

Beef Loaf

2½ pounds ground beef
6 crackers
2 tablespoons milk
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons chopped onion

Roll crackers for crumbs. Combine all ingredients and mix well. Pack the mixture into a greased 5x9-inch loaf pan and bake in a slow oven (300° F.) for 1½ hours. Serve hot or cold. 8 to 10 servings.

Slices of moist beef loaf make a grand choice for a buffet supper. With abundant supplies of beef coming to market, you'll find ground beef an especially good buy. Here the loaf is teamed with tomato cups of cottage cheese and with deviled eggs.

Here's Beef Dish Tailored For Budgets

Tailor-made both for the budget and for summer cooking is this Ground Beef-Spanish Rice Combination. You'll have it ready for your table in little more than 30 minutes. Team it with thick slices of French bread, with cut green beans and a tossed garden salad.

Spanish Rice With Beef

1 pound ground beef
1 tablespoon lard or drippings
1 cup diced onion
¾ cup diced green pepper
4 oz. can mushrooms, optional
1 cup diced celery
¾ cup uncooked rice
2½ cups tomatoes
1 tablespoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper

Brown meat in lard or drippings in frying-pan. Add remaining ingredients. Simmer until rice is tender, about 30 minutes. 6 to 8 servings.

Caesar's Legions Named Salmon

Salmon is said to have been named by Caesar's legions, who first encountered the fish when they marched through Gaul. They called it Salmo, probab ly from the Latin word salire, meaning "to leap". Salmon soon found its way to the tables of the epicures of Rome, and salmon chilled and flaked just as it comes from the can is enjoyed by epicures of today.

Serve Them Hot

Cold cuts make a hit served hot, too. Panfry slices for breakfast or for lunch. Let them give a meaty touch to casseroles. For example, serve cervelat with scalloped potatoes, salami with spaghetti.

Herbs, Spices Add Magic Touch To Beef

Herbs, spices and seasonings all lend a magic touch in giving flavor charm to good old-fashioned braised beef dishes. Because braising means long slow cooking, the flavor of the seasonings has prenty of time to mingle with the beef. Meats with shorter cooking time do not have quite this same opportunity.

Certain seasonings are best with beef, as summer savory, thyme, parsley, celery leaves or marjoram.

A good rule is to underseason rather than add too many herbs. Practice soon reveals the quantity your family likes. It's best to use a combination of two or three, but usually not more than this.

Romney High Opens 10-Game Football Schedule Sept. 11

Dick McElwee Is At Helm Tenth Season

Play 5 PVC Games; Parker Is Injured, Out For Five Weeks

Romney High School's Pioneers, who lost only one game in ten starts last year, will launch their 1953 football campaign on Friday, September 11, by playing Berkeley Springs High School at the latter place, Coach Richard "Dick" McElwee, announced last night.

The Hampshire countians will play a schedule of ten games, five of which will be in the Potomac Valley Conference.

Coach McElwee, former West Virginia University captain, is starting his 11th year of high school coaching, having made his debut at Webster Springs High School in 1943 before taking over the reins at Romney in 1944. In nine seasons at Romney his teams have won 55, lost 22 and played 11 tie games. His 1950 team was undefeated, having won nine and played one tie.

The Pioneers are in their second week of training under the watchful eye of McElwee and Allen Swick, his assistant. Forty-five candidates reported for the initial drills.

Roger Parker Injured

Bad news at camp was received today when Roger Parker, senior fullback, suffered a shoulder separation and is expected to be out of action for at least five weeks, long enough to miss two games.

The squad includes the following seniors, juniors and sophomores:

Gerald Keister and Homer Wolfe, centers; Bobby Saville, John Pancake, Jim Quinn, Freddie Brinker and David Haines, guards; David Green, Ronnie Lynch, Clinton Hott, Bill Haines, and Dean Snyder, tackles; Sammy Lyons, Michael Coleman, Jim Brown, Dorsey Fox and Richard Hartman, ends.

Ed A. Hartman, Glenn Straw and "Chuck" Dusic, quarterbacks; Ray Haines, Hobart Shanholtz, Vernon Grapes, Emory Landis, Roland Shanholtz and Ed Hartman, halfbacks; Roger Parker, and Thomas Hartman, fullbacks.

Freshmen On Squad

The schedule:

Fri. Sept. 11—Berkeley Springs, away. (33-13)
Fri. Sept. 18—Charles Town, away. (44-12)
Fri. Sept. 25—Franklin, home. (28-6)
Fri. Oct. 2—Moorefield, away. (45-6)
Fri. Oct. 9—UHS, Morgantown, pending. (7-28)
Sat. Oct. 17—Beall, away. (14-0)
Fri. Oct. 23—Ridgeley, home. (41-6)
Fri. Oct. 30—Petersburg, home. (DNP)
Sat. Nov. 7—Farmington, home. (12-12)
Fri. Nov. 13—Keyser, home. (14-14)

Frostburg's Little League Stars Sweep Barton Series, 4-3

FROSTBURG, Aug. 27 — Frostburg's Little League All-Stars made a sweep of its series with Barton today by defeating the visitors to the tune of 4-3.

A four-run splurge in the fourth decided the game after Barton had taken a 3-0 lead in the first three frames.

Frostburg won the opening game of the scheduled best-of-three series Monday by the score of 9-1.

Rephann led the winners at the plate with two singles while Zumpano, Bisiano and Gardner collected the other hits.

Barton failed to get a hit off James Skidmore and David McFarland. After Skidmore hit two successive batsmen in the fourth McFarland finished on the mound. Derham, Barton player, was injured when hit in the face by a pitched ball.

Lauder, Barton pitcher, struck out eight. Skidmore whiffed six and McFarland mowed down five on strikes. Muir starred afield at short for Barton.

Frostburg's Little League All-Stars will open a three-game series with the Dan League All-Stars of the Cumberland Dapper Dan League on Monday, August 31, at Penn Avenue Field. The second game is set for Sept. 2 at Frostburg. The score:

FROSTBURG	000 40x—4	5	1

Lauder and Russell. Skidmore, McFarland (4) and McGowan, Gardner (1), McGowan (4).

Times-News Plays Jaycees Tonight In "Rubber" Tilt

The stage is all set for the third and deciding game of the Hot Stove Baseball League playoff series between the Times-News and Jaycees tonight at 7 o'clock at Penn Avenue Field.

Manager Howard "Farmer" Northcraft's Newsies even up the series on Wednesday night by winning, 8-5, after Manager Sherman Weatherholt's Jaycees had bagged the opener on Monday by the score of 4-3 in ten innings.

Arthur Washington is slated to pitch for the Times-News while Tommy Dunbar or Eddie Parsons will be on the firing line for the Jaycees.

HOW ABOUT this record:

Casey Stengel never has lost a season series to any of the teams in the American League since he took over as manager of the Yankees in 1949.

If Stengel should continue his old October custom and maneuver his Yankees into a fifth triumph that would give Old Case a record of five pennants, five blue ribbon scores in five years — something strictly out of the baseball world.

CLYDE SCOTT, 28, former Navy and Arkansas All-America gridder, who spent 4½ seasons with the Philadelphia Eagles, has voluntarily retired from football.

"Smackover," as the former Olympic hurdler is known, had several ligaments in his right knee torn as the Detroit Lions beat the Pittsburgh Steelers last Saturday (16-13) at Syracuse, N. Y. This aggravated an old injury which has plagued Scott since he started in pro football.

Scott remains the property of the Detroit Lions in the event he wishes to make a comeback later this year or next.

His physical brittleness was a principal factor in the Eagles allowing him to pass to the Lions.

In 1943 when John J. Long, Cumberland's present police and fire commissioner, was head coach at Bullis Prep, Washington, D. C., Scott was his backfield ace. In fact the 18-year-old lad from Smackover, Ark., starred in the game here that year in which Bullis defeated LaSalle by the score of 26 to 6.

IN THE FALL GOLF tournament now under way at the Cumberland Country Club, Charles S. "Bill" Catherman, Sr., the former Fourth Estater, is the defending champion.

Since 1935 "Bill" has bagged the fall title seven times. He has won more golf championships than any other member—a total of nine. That includes two spring tournaments.

This is the club's 32nd tourney. Dr. Karl P. Heintz, winner of the first tournament in 1920, is still

St. Louis Cards Jump On Koslo, Top Giants, 6-3

New York Southpaw Suffers 12th Loss

NEW YORK, Aug. 27 (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals came from behind with a four-run rally in the seventh inning to drive starter Dave Koslo from the box and defeat the New York Giants 6-3 today.

The Redbirds came into the seventh trailing by 3-1. A two-run homer by Rip Repulski quickly tied the score. Then a walk to Jablonski and a single by Enos (Country) Slaughter brought two more runs before the inning was over.

Slaughter's single ended Koslo's stay on the mound, the Giant Southpaw being charged with his 12th loss of the season. He has three victories. Lefty Cliff Chambers started for St. Louis but he made an early exit in the fourth when he lost his control.

Dusty Rhodes, who slammed three home runs in consecutive turns at bat yesterday, drove out two singles to pace the Giants' six-hit attack.

Lane Displeased By Winter Ball Rule Of Majors

Favors All Playing Or Calling It Off

CHICAGO, Aug. 27 (INS) — Frank Lane, Chicago White Sox general manager, said today that he will seek clarification of the new major league ruling which permits only three players from each team to play winter ball in the Caribbean Confederation.

Lane said he favors letting "all play or call the whole thing off."

The White Sox have five Latin Americans on the squad, including Chico Carrasquel, Minnie Minoso, Sandalio Consuegra, Mike Fornieles and Luis Aloma. In addition, Bill Boyd, Connie Johnson and Jim Rivera have played winter ball in past years.

Lane said:

"Who is going to make the decision on who is to play. I'm in favor of letting them all go or call off the whole thing."

Lane said all players should be permitted to engage in winter ball at their club's discretion. He added that winter ball benefits some players and injures other. He elaborated:

"Two years ago, we allowed Aloma and Carrasquel to play winter baseball until Jan. 1. That was a mistake. They both reported to spring training camp at least 25 pounds overweight.

"Last winter we permitted both of them to play a certain number of games all winter and they reported for spring training in pretty good shape."

Dorsey And Calhoun Cop Doubles Match

Yankees Lose To Cleveland In 11th, 4-2

Westlake Hits 2-Run Homer Decides Game

CLEVELAND, Aug. 27 (AP)—Wally Westlake homered in the 11th inning with a man on base to win tonight for Cleveland 4-2 over the New York Yankees.

Mike Garcia, whose double drove in the other two Tribe runs in the second, held the Yankees to five hits—a fifth inning homer by Gene Woodling, a game-tying double by Yogi Berra in the ninth, and two singles and a double by Gil McDougald.

McDougald ran his hitting string to nine games by popping a single to center field as the first man up. Woodling, who homered into the right field stands in the fifth was the only other New Yorker to hit Garcia safely in the first eight innings as the Big Bear dueled with southpaw Whitey Ford. Berr's ninth-inning double with two out scored McDougald who had singled and sent the game into extra innings.

Westlake, inserted in the tenth inning as a right field replacement, got his sixth homer of the season off Lefty Bob Kuzava, who took over in the eighth after Ford was benched for a pinch hitter. The clout over the left field fence followed a single by Larry Doby with one out.

The victory was the 16th for Garcia against seven losses and his third over the world champions who have beaten him twice. Garcia holds a lifetime edge of 10 won and eight lost over New York.

HOW ABOUT this record:

Casey Stengel never has lost a season series to any of the teams in the American League since he took over as manager of the Yankees in 1949.

If Stengel should continue his old October custom and maneuver his Yankees into a fifth triumph that would give Old Case a record of five pennants, five blue ribbon scores in five years — something strictly out of the baseball world.

CLYDE SCOTT, 28, former Navy and Arkansas All-America gridder, who spent 4½ seasons with the Philadelphia Eagles, has voluntarily retired from football.

"Smackover," as the former Olympic hurdler is known, had several ligaments in his right knee torn as the Detroit Lions beat the Pittsburgh Steelers last Saturday (16-13) at Syracuse, N. Y. This aggravated an old injury which has plagued Scott since he started in pro football.

Scott remains the property of the Detroit Lions in the event he wishes to make a comeback later this year or next.

His physical brittleness was a principal factor in the Eagles allowing him to pass to the Lions.

In 1943 when John J. Long, Cumberland's present police and fire commissioner, was head coach at Bullis Prep, Washington, D. C., Scott was his backfield ace. In fact the 18-year-old lad from Smackover, Ark., starred in the game here that year in which Bullis defeated LaSalle by the score of 26 to 6.

IN THE FALL GOLF tournament now under way at the Cumberland Country Club, Charles S. "Bill" Catherman, Sr., the former Fourth Estater, is the defending champion.

Since 1935 "Bill" has bagged the fall title seven times. He has won more golf championships than any other member—a total of nine. That includes two spring tournaments.

This is the club's 32nd tourney.

Dr. Karl P. Heintz, winner of the first tournament in 1920, is still

St. Louis Cards Jump On Koslo, Top Giants, 6-3

New York Southpaw Suffers 12th Loss

NEW YORK, Aug. 27 (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals came from behind with a four-run rally in the seventh inning to drive starter Dave Koslo from the box and defeat the New York Giants 6-3 today.

The Redbirds came into the seventh trailing by 3-1. A two-run homer by Rip Repulski quickly tied the score. Then a walk to Jablonski and a single by Enos (Country) Slaughter brought two more runs before the inning was over.

Slaughter's single ended Koslo's stay on the mound, the Giant Southpaw being charged with his 12th loss of the season. He has three victories. Lefty Cliff Chambers started for St. Louis but he made an early exit in the fourth when he lost his control.

Dusty Rhodes, who slammed three home runs in consecutive turns at bat yesterday, drove out two singles to pace the Giants' six-hit attack.

Lane Displeased By Winter Ball Rule Of Majors

Favors All Playing Or Calling It Off

CHICAGO, Aug. 27 (INS) — Frank Lane, Chicago White Sox general manager, said today that he will seek clarification of the new major league ruling which permits only three players from each team to play winter ball in the Caribbean Confederation.

Lane said he favors letting "all play or call the whole thing off."

The White Sox have five Latin Americans on the squad, including Chico Carrasquel, Minnie Minoso, Sandalio Consuegra, Mike Fornieles and Luis Aloma. In addition, Bill Boyd, Connie Johnson and Jim Rivera have played winter ball in past years.

Lane said:

"Who is going to make the decision on who is to play. I'm in favor of letting them all go or call off the whole thing."

Lane said all players should be permitted to engage in winter ball at their club's discretion. He added that winter ball benefits some players and injures other. He elaborated:

"Two years ago, we allowed Aloma and Carrasquel to play winter baseball until Jan. 1. That was a mistake. They both reported to spring training camp at least 25 pounds overweight.

"Last winter we permitted both of them to play a certain number of games all winter and they reported for spring training in pretty good shape."

Dorsey And Calhoun Cop Doubles Match

Jack Dorsey of Keyser and Joe Calhoun of Moorefield teamed up yesterday evening on the Dingle tennis courts to defeat Bob Sutton and Harry Kauffman in the Dingle tournament, 6-2, 6-2.

Two other teams remain in the running for the championship. Lawrence Middlekamp and L. E. Van Sant meet Bob Pence and Norman Sell, the winner playing Dorsey and Calhoun in the finals.

Yankees Lose To Cleveland In 11th, 4-2

Westlake Hits 2-Run Homer Decides Game

CLEVELAND, Aug. 27 (AP)—Wally Westlake homered in the 11th inning with a man on base to win tonight for Cleveland 4-2 over the New York Yankees.

Mike Garcia, whose double drove in the other two Tribe runs in the second, held the Yankees to five hits—a fifth inning homer by Gene Woodling, a game-tying double by Yogi Berra in the ninth, and two singles and a double by Gil McDougald.

McDougald ran his hitting string to nine games by popping a single to center field as the first man up. Woodling, who homered into the right field stands in the fifth was the only other New Yorker to hit Garcia safely in the first eight innings as the Big Bear dueled with southpaw Whitey Ford. Berr's ninth-inning double with two out scored McDougald who had singled and sent the game into extra innings.

Westlake, inserted in the tenth inning as a right field replacement, got his sixth homer of the season off Lefty Bob Kuzava, who took over in the eighth after Ford was benched for a pinch hitter. The clout over the left field fence followed a single by Larry Doby with one out.

The victory was the 16th for Garcia against seven losses and his third over the world champions who have beaten him twice. Garcia holds a lifetime edge of 10 won and eight lost over New York.

Senators Near Record In 12-5 Win At Detroit

Get Eight Straight Hits In 1st Frame

DETROIT, Aug. 27 (AP) — The Washington Senators clawed Ralph Branca and reliever Dick Marlowe for eight straight hits in the first inning to score seven runs and trounced the Detroit Tigers 12-5 today.

Washington's string of hits fell one short of tying the American League record of 9, set by the Boston Red Sox on June 5, 1929. The major league park is 12, held jointly by Brooklyn and the St. Louis Cardinals.

Eddie Yost, senator third baseman, reached base 6 straight times—on a single, double, triple and 3 walks. He has walked 106 times this season, most in the league.

After their opening burst, the Senators added two runs in the second inning and three in the third. This was more than enough for Frank Shea, who scattered 10 hits to register his 11th victory against 5 losses.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 27 (INS)—Jerry Coleman, fresh from duty as a Marine Corps pilot in Korea, took off for New York today to join the New York Yankees.

Coleman, regular second baseman for the Yankees until he was recalled to active duty as a Marine captain, flew 63 missions in Korea.

He, his wife and two children are scheduled to arrive at New York's Idlewild Airport at 9:55 p. m. (EDT) tonight on TWA flight 36.

Five Post 66s In New England Open Tourney

Ferrier, Harrison Are Among Leaders

By LOU BLACK

WETHERSFIELD, Conn., Aug. 27 (AP)—Five players, including a local star, posted five-under par 66s to set the pace as the second annual 72-hole $15,000 Insurance City Open Golf Tournament opened today.

They are Jim Ferrier, the Australian-born San Francisco pro; Dutch Harrison, Ardmore, Okla.; Bob Toski, Northampton, Mass.; Fred Wampler, former national intercollegiate champ from Indianapolis, and Joe Curtin of nearby Newington, ex-Connecticut Open titlist.

The quintet was as hot as the plus 90 degree weather as they pasted the 6,541 yards par 35-36—71 Wethersfield Country Club course.

Actually, 31 players in the field of 138 turned in sub-par first round scores to thrill the crowd of more than 5,000 many of whom followed Connecticut's own Julius Boros of Mid Pines, N. C., and Connecticut-born Doug Ford of Harrison, N. Y., the sentimental favorites.

Boros, who played with Ferrier and Harrison, turned in a disappointing 72, one over par, while Ford, recent winner of the open in Montreal, shot a 69.

One stroke off the pace were Jim Turnesa of Briarcliff, N. Y., last year's PGA champ; Joe Moore Jr., of White Plains, N. Y., who in Tuesday's qualifying round shot a 63, the new course record, and Mickey Homa of Rye, N. Y., also a native of this state.

Ted Kroll of New Hartford, N. Y., last year's winner, was among the 69s.

Elks Even Series With Eagles, 4-2

The B.P.O. Elks squared their Rocking Chair Softball League series with the Fraternal Order of Eagles by winning yesterday to the tune of 4-2 at Stitcher Field.

It was decided to play the third game on Monday at 6:15 at Stitcher Field.

The Eagles threatened to tie the score in the 7th inning but two runners perished on the paths when Bill Underdonk forced a batsman to ground out.

Doyle George of the Eagles was the top hitter with four safeties. Score:

ELKS	300 100 0—4
EAGLES	001 001 0—2

Underdonk and Pence, Sheetz and Riehl.

Charles J. Shields, Former Oriole, Dies

MEMPHIS, Aug. 27 (AP)—Charles J. (Charley) Shields, former major league pitching star and one-time holder of organized baseball's strikeout record, died at his home here today.

A southpaw, Shields pitched for John J. McGraw's Baltimore Orioles in 1902 and later played with both St. Louis clubs, the Cardinals and the Browns.

After leaving the majors he went to Seattle of the Pacific Coast league. There, on July 8, 1905, he fanned 19 batters in a nine-inning game, a record for organized baseball that stood for many years.

Two Matches Played In Women's Tourney

Mrs. Charles Helmrich and Mrs. Richard Kendall won matches yesterday in the women's fall golf tournament at the Cumberland Country Club.

Mrs. Helmrich defeated Mrs. Morgan Smith, 4 and 3, in the second flight and Mrs. Richard Kendall won over Mrs. C. S. Catherman, Sr., 1 up on the 19th hole, in a third flight test.

Navy To Honor Hall Of Famers At Grid Games

John "Babe" Brown, Jr. Will Be Guest Oct. 3

ANNAPOLIS, Aug. 27 (AP) — One of Navy's all-time great football players, John (Babe) Brown Jr., will be honored during the half-time of the game with Dartmouth Oct. 3.

The Navy-Dartmouth game is one of 16 throughout the nation this season listed today as "Hall of Fame award games." At each game, a former player elected to football's Hall of Fame will be the guest of honor.

The gridiron Hall of Fame is to be erected at Rutgers University in New Brunswick, N. J., where the first game in the United States was played in 1869. Rutgers beat Princeton in the inaugural. So far, 32 players and 22 coaches have been elected to the hall.

Brown was Navy's third All-America selected by Walter Camp in 1913. He now is a rear admiral and commandant of the Fourth Naval District in Philadelphia.

It was in the same city that Brown, a guard, achieved two of his greatest feats against Army. In 1912 he kicked two field goals in the last five minutes to beat the Cadets, 6-0. The next year he booted three for Navy's only scores again only to lose 22-9.

Three years ago when a Navy committee picked an all-time Middie team, Brown received 109 of a possible 110 votes.

While a Middie, he played four years on the football varsity and also won varsity "N" letters in track and crew.

Snider Wallops Pair Of Homers As Dodgers Win

Defeat Chicago, 7-5, Up Lead 9½ Games

BROOKLYN, Aug. 27 (AP) — The Brooklyn Dodgers went on an extra base spree, clouting four homers and two triples, to whip Chicago 7-5 today and increase their league lead to 9½ games over Milwaukee's idle Braves.

Duke Snider clubbed two homers and Roy Campanella belted out two triples but it was Gil Hodges' 28th home run of the year in the eighth inning which accounted for the winning runs. Carl Furillo also homered for Brooklyn and Dee Fondy blasted one for the Cubs in the free swinging battle.

Russ Meyer yielded 12 hits to the Cubs and needed Clem Labine's expert relief assistance with two out in the ninth to gain his 14th victory of the year against five defeats.

Hodges' homer off loser Warren Hacker following Campy's second triple gave Meyers and the Dodgers a 7-5 lead. That seemed to do it but the Cubs weren't dead yet.

Manager Phil Cavarretta opened the ninth with a pinch-hit double. Meyer stiffened to get Frankie Baumholtz on a fly and Roy Smalley for his ninth strikeout victim of the game. Dee Fondy singled to left to score Cavaretta and when Ralph Kiner singled off Peewee Reese's glove, Manager Charlie Dressen called on Labine.

Clem came through again, fanning Randy Jackson on a two-two count with a curve.

Snider's homers with the bases empty in the third and seventh were his 32nd and 33rd of the year, and a personal major league mark for him.

Mexico School Girl Golfer Is "Dark Horse" In Amateur

"Wiffi" Smith Forges To Semi-Final Round

By WILL GRIMSLEY

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 27—A freckle-faced 16-year-old high school girl from Mexico and a 34-year-old New Jersey housewife moved into the semi-finals of the National Women's Amateur Golf tournament today along with two tournament-tried veterans.

The "dark horse" survivors were Margaret (Wiffi) Smith, California-born Mexican champion from Guadalajara, and Mrs. Philip J. Cudone of Montclair, N. J.

The favorites' banner was upheld by Polly Riley of Fort Worth, Tex., who celebrated her 27th birthday by passing the quarterfinals for the first time in eight of these events, and Mary Lena Faulk, the par-wrecking so-called "gang buster" from Thomasville, Ga.

They weathered two rounds of eliminations today over the 6,371-yard, par 74 Rhode Island Country Club and will square off in 18-hole semifinal engagements tomorrow.

Miss Riley will play Mrs. Cudone and Miss Faulk will meet the solidly-built Miss Smith.

The redheaded Miss Smith eliminated New York state champion, Roslyn (Cookie) Swift of Great Neck, one up, by sinking a 14-foot putt on the final green. Then she took the measure of Pat Lesser, pig-tailed national intercollegiate champion from Seattle 5 and 4.

Mrs. Cudone eliminated Bee McWane of Birmingham, Ala., in the morning 4 and 2, and then triumphed over Willowy Carol Dirlinger of Tiffin, Ohio, 5 and 4.

Miss Riley continued her interrupted sweep through the toughest quarter of the bracket by ousting Pat O'Sullivan of Orange, Conn., 3 and 1, and Atlanta's Dorothy Kirby, the 1951 champion, 3 and 2.

Miss Faulk, 27, erased Virginia Dennehy of Lake Forest, Ill., 6 and 5, without losing a hole and then expelled Mrs. John Hulteng, the five-time Rhode Island state champion from Warwick, 5 and 4.

DeSpirito Rides Five Narragansett Winners

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Aug. 27 (AP)—Tony DeSpirito, 1952 national champion jockey, continued his blistering streak at Narragansett Park today by booting home five winners, three of them in consecutive races.

But he needed help from the stewards to do so. The latter ordered DeSpirito's eighth race mount, Friendly Sands, into the winner's circle after setting back Miss Meliss from first to fourth place for fouling.

After sitting out Tuesday's program because of illness, DeSpirito regained some of his lost prestige yesterday by clicking with three winners out of seven rides.

He started today's streak on Talon in the second race and then continued on Evelyn L in the fourth, Time for Speed in the sixth and Abstract in the seventh.

a participant in the annual tests. In the past 31 years he has captured eight championships.

"MANY HAGERSTOWN sportfolk believe it is just a matter of time until the ten days of racing allotted to the Cumberland Fair Association are transferred to Hagerstown to make 20 days of sport there each summer," writes Bill Boniface, racing editor of the Baltimore Sunpapers.

"They remind you that Cumberland hasn't done anywhere near as much business as the state's other halfers in recent seasons and they better move to Hagerstown if they want to make money."

We believe this is a lot of wishful thinking on the part of Hagerstown.

Remember back in the days when 10,000 persons were employed at the Celanese plant, the mutuel handle exceeded $3,000,000 at Fairgo and we heard such remarks as:

"Cumberland should have a longer meet" and "Cumberland should enlarge its plant" and "Cumberland ought to have a mile track."

The boom is on at Hagerstown now. But will it always be that way?

DON NETOSKIE, Martinsburg High School's All-State halfback, will not enter the University of Maryland as previously reported.

He's enrolled at Kentucky and is now at Coach Paul "Bear" Bryant's pre-school football camp. Don's brother John starred at Kentucky for several seasons.

JOSEPH M. KELLY, who served as secretary of the Maryland Athletic Commission for more than quarter of a century, died Saturday at St. Joseph's Hospital, Baltimore.

Kelly was a close, personal friend of the late John W. Snyder, Cumberland boxing promoter, and it was through the latter that we first met Kelly at Baltimore in 1924 the night Harry Greb stopped Fay Keiser in the 12th round.

Joe was in the jewelry business at that time and took the post of boxing secretary as a part-time job. In recent years he retired from business and devoted his entire time to boxing.

Vic Ricker, Calton "Funny" Newnam, John W. Snyder and Pete Shaw, all local fight promoters, transacted their business through Kelly and they always spoke highly of the popular Baltimore Irishman.

CENTERVILLE'S Reds, with four Roses in the lineup, are making a strong bid for the pennant in the Greater Bedford County Baseball League.

They are trailing Everett, the current leader (11-4) by a half game and could tie it up Sunday if Hyndman can knock off Everett.

Centerville is in second place with 11-5 and is idle this weekend. Hyndman is fifth with 7-8.

DeSpirito Rides Five Narragansett Winners

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Aug. 27 (AP)—Tony DeSpirito, 1952 national champion jockey, continued his blistering streak at Narragansett Park today by booting home five winners, three of them in consecutive races.

But he needed help from the stewards to do so. The latter ordered DeSpirito's eighth race mount, Friendly Sands, into the winner's circle after setting back Miss Meliss from first to fourth place for fouling.

After sitting out Tuesday's program because of illness, DeSpirito regained some of his lost prestige yesterday by clicking with three winners out of seven rides.

He started today's streak on Talon in the second race and then continued on Evelyn L in the fourth. Time for Speed in the sixth and Abstract in the seventh.

a participant in the annual tests. In the past 31 years he has captured eight championships.

"MANY HAGERSTOWN sportfolk believe it is just a matter of time until the ten days of racing allotted to the Cumberland Fair Association are transferred to Hagerstown to make 20 days of sport there each summer," writes Bill Boniface, racing editor of the Baltimore Sunpapers.

"They remind you that Cumberland hasn't done anywhere near as much business as the state's other halfers in recent seasons and they better move to Hagerstown if they want to make money."

We believe this is a lot of wishful thinking on the part of Hagerstown.

Remember back in the days when 10,000 persons were employed at the Celanese plant, the mutuel handle exceeded $3,000,000 at Fairgo and we heard such remarks as:

"Cumberland should have a longer meet" and "Cumberland should enlarge its plant" and "Cumberland ought to have a mile track."

The boom is on at Hagerstown now. But will it always be that way?

DON NETOSKIE, Martinsburg High School's All-State halfback, will not enter the University of Maryland as previously reported.

He's enrolled at Kentucky and is now at Coach Paul "Bear" Bryant's pre-school football camp. Don's brother John starred at Kentucky for several seasons.

JOSEPH M. KELLY, who served as secretary of the Maryland Athletic Commission for more than quarter of a century, died Saturday at St. Joseph's Hospital, Baltimore.

Kelly was a close, personal friend of the late John W. Snyder, Cumberland boxing promoter, and it was through the latter that we first met Kelly at Baltimore in 1924 the night Harry Greb stopped Fay Keiser in the 12th round.

Joe was in the jewelry business at that time and took the post of boxing secretary as a part-time job. In recent years he retired from business and devoted his entire time to boxing.

Vic Ricker, Calton "Funny" Newnam, John W. Snyder and Pete Shaw, all local fight promoters, transacted their business through Kelly and they always spoke highly of the popular Baltimore Irishman.

CENTERVILLE'S Reds, with four Roses in the lineup, are making a strong bid for the pennant in the Greater Bedford County Baseball League.

They are trailing Everett, the current leader (11-4) by a half game and could tie it up Sunday if Hyndman can knock off Everett.

Centerville is in second place with 11-5 and is idle this weekend. Hyndman is fifth with 7-8.

Both Centerville and Hyndman were formerly in the Interstate League.

NEW YORK, Aug. 27 (AP)—A total of 1,267 golfers will shoot for 177 places in the 36-hole sectional qualifying rounds for the 53rd U.S. amateur golf championship Aug. 31 and Sept. 1, the U. S. Golf Assn. said today.

Baltimore Colts Get Another Quarterback

BALTIMORE, Aug. 27 (AP)—The Baltimore Colts acquired another quarterback, former Northwestern star Dick Flowers, from the Green Bay Packers today.

The Colts gave the Packers one of their picks in the National Football League draft next year in exchange.

Flowers broke Northwestern's passing record formerly held by Otto Graham, now the Cleveland pro quarterback, in 1950. Flowers was in the Marines for the next two years.

Five Places Allotted To District Golfers

BALTIMORE, Aug. 27 (AP)—Three dozen golfers from five states and the District of Columbia will try for the five places in the National Amateur championship here Tuesday.

The 36 hole qualifier will be held on Mount Pleasant par 72 course. The five low scorers will be eligible for the National Sept. 14-19 at Oklahoma City.

U. S. Amateur Golf Aces Seek Walker Cup Win

AP Newsfeatures

Ten amateur golfers from all sections of the country will pit their skills against Britain's best for the famed Walker Club, Sept. 4-5. The matches will be held at Kittansett Club, Marion, Mass.

An automatic choice for the squad was Congressman Jack Westland of Everett, Wash., who won the U. S. amateur crown last fall. Other U. S. cuppers will be: Don Cherry of Wichita Falls, Tex., Gene Littler of San Deigo, Harvie Ward of Altoona, Ken Venturi of San Francisco, Bill Campbell of Huntington, W. Va., Charley Coe of Oklahoma City, Sam Urzetta of Rochester, N. Y., Jim Jackson of St. Louis and Dick Chapman of Pinehurst, N. C.

One of the bright spots of the upcoming tournament will be the anticipated return match between Harvie Ward and Joe Carr of Ireland. Carr defeated Ward in the final of the British amateur championship recently.

The U. S. team has won all three matches played since the end of World War II.

Get Eight Straight Hits In 1st Frame

DETROIT, Aug. 27 (AP) — The Washington Senators clawed Ralph Branca and reliever Dick Marlowe for eight straight hits in the first inning to score seven runs and trounced the Detroit Tigers 12-5 today.

Washington's string of hits fell one short of tying the American League record of 9, set by the Boston Red Sox on June 5, 1929. The major league park is 12, held jointly by Brooklyn and the St. Louis Cardinals.

Eddie Yost, senator third baseman, reached base 6 straight times—on a single, double, triple and 3 walks. He has walked 106 times this season, most in the league.

After their opening burst, the Senators added two runs in the second inning and three in the third. This was more than enough for Frank Shea, who scattered 10 hits to register his 11th victory against 5 losses.

Coleman, regular second baseman for the Yankees until he was recalled to active duty as a Marine captain, flew 63 missions in Korea.

Five Post 66s In New England Open Tourney

Ferrier, Harrison Are Among Leaders

By LOU BLACK

WETHERSFIELD, Conn., Aug. 27 (AP)—Five players, including a local star, posted five-under par 66s to set the pace as the second annual 72-hole $15,000 Insurance City Open Golf Tournament opened today.

They are Jim Ferrier, the Australian-born San Francisco pro; Dutch Harrison, Ardmore, Okla.; Bob Toski, Northampton, Mass.; Fred Wampler, former national intercollegiate champ from Indianapolis, and Joe Curtin of nearby Newington, ex-Connecticut Open titlist.

The quintet was as hot as the plus 90 degree weather as they pasted the 6,541 yards par 35-36—71 Wethersfield Country Club course.

Actually, 31 players in the field of 138 turned in sub-par first round scores to thrill the crowd of more than 5,000 many of whom followed Connecticut's own Julius Boros of Mid Pines, N. C., and Connecticut-born Doug Ford of Harrison, N. Y., the sentimental favorites.

Boros, who played with Ferrier and Harrison, turned in a disappointing 72, one over par, while Ford, recent winner of the open in Montreal, shot a 69.

One stroke off the pace were Jim Turnesa of Briarcliff, N. Y., last year's PGA champ; Joe Moore Jr., of White Plains, N. Y., who in Tuesday's qualifying round shot a 63, the new course record, and Mickey Homa of Rye, N. Y., also a native of this state.

Ted Kroll of New Hartford, N. Y., last year's winner, was among the 69s.

Elks Even Series With Eagles, 4-2

The B.P.O. Elks squared their Rocking Chair Softball League series with the Fraternal Order of Eagles by winning yesterday to the tune of 4-2 at Stitcher Field.

It was decided to play the third game on Monday at 6:15 at Stitcher Field.

The Eagles threatened to tie the score in the 7th inning but two runners perished on the paths when Bill Underdonk forced a batsman to ground out.

Doyle George of the Eagles was the top hitter with four safeties. Score:

ELKS	300 100 0—4
EAGLES	001 001 0—2

Underdonk and Pence, Sheetz and Riehl.

Charles J. Shields, Former Oriole, Dies

MEMPHIS, Aug. 27 (AP)—Charles J. (Charley) Shields, former major league pitching star and one-time holder of organized baseball's strikeout record, died at his home here today.

A southpaw, Shields pitched for John J. McGraw's Baltimore Orioles in 1902 and later played with both St. Louis clubs, the Cardinals and the Browns.

After leaving the majors he went to Seattle of the Pacific Coast league. There, on July 8, 1905, he fanned 19 batters in a nine-inning game, a record for organized baseball that stood for many years.

Two Matches Played In Women's Tourney

Mrs. Charles Helmrich and Mrs. Richard Kendall won matches yesterday in the women's fall golf tournament at the Cumberland Country Club.

Navy To Honor Hall Of Famers At Grid Games

John "Babe" Brown, Jr. Will Be Guest Oct. 3

ANNAPOLIS, Aug. 27 (AP) — One of Navy's all-time great football players, John (Babe) Brown Jr., will be honored during the half-time of the game with Dartmouth Oct. 3.

The Navy-Dartmouth game is one of 16 throughout the nation this season listed today as "Hall of Fame award games." At each game, a former player elected to football's Hall of Fame will be the guest of honor.

The gridiron Hall of Fame is to be erected at Rutgers University in New Brunswick, N. J., where the first game in the United States was played in 1869. Rutgers beat Princeton in the inaugural. So far, 32 players and 22 coaches have been elected to the hall.

Brown was Navy's third All-America selected by Walter Camp in 1913. He now is a rear admiral and commandant of the Fourth Naval District in Philadelphia.

It was in the same city that Brown, a guard, achieved two of his greatest feats against Army. In 1912 he kicked two field goals in the last five minutes to beat the Cadets, 6-0. The next year he booted three for Navy's only scores again only to lose 22-9.

Three years ago when a Navy committee picked an all-time Middie team, Brown received 109 of a possible 110 votes.

While a Middie, he played four years on the football varsity and also won varsity "N" letters in track and crew.

Defeat Chicago, 7-5, Up Lead 9½ Games

BROOKLYN, Aug. 27 (AP) — The Brooklyn Dodgers went on an extra base spree, clouting four homers and two triples, to whip Chicago 7-5 today and increase their league lead to 9½ games over Milwaukee's idle Braves.

Duke Snider clubbed two homers and Roy Campanella belted out two triples but it was Gil Hodges' 28th home run of the year in the eighth inning which accounted for the winning runs. Carl Furillo also homered for Brooklyn and Dee Fondy blasted one for the Cubs in the free swinging battle.

Russ Meyer yielded 12 hits to the Cubs and needed Clem Labine's expert relief assistance with two out in the ninth to gain his 14th victory of the year against five defeats.

Hodges' homer off loser Warren Hacker following Campy's second triple gave Meyers and the Dodgers a 7-5 lead. That seemed to do it but the Cubs weren't dead yet.

Manager Phil Cavarretta opened the ninth with a pinch-hit double. Meyer stiffened to get Frankie Baumholtz on a fly and Roy Smalley for his ninth strikeout victim of the game. Dee Fondy singled to left to score Cavaretta and when Ralph Kiner singled off Peewee Reese's glove, Manager Charlie Dressen called on Labine.

Clem came through again, fanning Randy Jackson on a two-two count with a curve.

Snider's homers with the bases empty in the third and seventh were his 32nd and 33rd of the year, and a personal major league mark for him.

Mexico School Girl Golfer Is "Dark Horse" In Amateur

By WILL GRIMSLEY

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 27—A freckle-faced 16-year-old high school girl from Mexico and a 34-year-old New Jersey housewife moved into the semi-finals of the National Women's Amateur Golf tournament today along with two tournament-tried veterans.

The "dark horse" survivors were Margaret (Wiffi) Smith, California-born Mexican champion from Guadalajara, and Mrs. Philip J. Cudone of Montclair, N. J.

The favorites' banner was upheld by Polly Riley of Fort Worth, Tex., who celebrated her 27th birthday by passing the quarter-finals for the first time in eight of these events, and Mary Lena Faulk, the par-wrecking so-called "gang buster" from Thomasville, Ga.

They weathered two rounds of eliminations today over the 6,371-yard, par 74 Rhode Island Country Club and will square off in 18-hole semifinal engagements tomorrow.

Miss Riley will play Mrs. Cudone and Miss Faulk will meet the solidly-built Miss Smith.

The redheaded Miss Smith eliminated New York state champion, Roslyn (Cookie) Swift of Great Neck, one up, by sinking a 14-foot putt on the final green. Then she took the measure of Pat Lesser, pig-tailed national intercollegiate champion from Seattle 5 and 4.

Mrs. Cudone eliminated Bee McWane of Birmingham, Ala., in the morning 4 and 2, and then triumphed over Willowy Carol Dirlinger of Tiffin, Ohio, 5 and 4.

Miss Riley continued her interrupted sweep through the toughest quarter of the bracket by ousting Pat O'Sullivan of Orange, Conn., 3 and 1, and Atlanta's Dorothy Kirby, the 1951 champion, 3 and 2.

Miss Faulk, 27, erased Virginia Dennehy of Lake Forest, Ill., 6 and 5, without losing a hole and then expelled Mrs. John Hulteng, the five-time Rhode Island state champion from Warwick, 5 and 4.

Senators Near Record In 12-5 Win At Detroit

Get Eight Straight Hits In 1st Frame

DETROIT, Aug. 27 (AP) — The Washington Senators clawed Ralph Branca and reliever Dick Marlowe for eight straight hits in the first inning to score seven runs and trounced the Detroit Tigers 12-5 today.

Washington's string of hits fell one short of tying the American League record of 9, set by the Boston Red Sox on June 5, 1929. The major league park is 12, held jointly by Brooklyn and the St. Louis Cardinals.

Eddie Yost, senator third baseman, reached base 6 straight times —on a single, double, triple and 3 walks. He has walked 106 times this season, most in the league.

After their opening burst, the Senators added two runs in the second inning and three in the third. This was more than enough for Frank Shea, who scattered 10 hits to register his 11th victory against 5 losses.

Five Post 66s In New England Open Tourney

Ferrier, Harrison Are Among Leaders

By LOU BLACK

WETHERSFIELD, Conn., Aug. 27 (AP)—Five players, including a local star, posted five-under par 66s to set the pace as the second annual 72-hole $15,000 Insurance City Open Golf Tournament opened today.

They are Jim Ferrier, the Australian-born San Francisco pro; Dutch Harrison, Ardmore, Okla.; Bob Toski, Northampton, Mass.; Fred Wampler, former national intercollegiate champ from Indianapolis, and Joe Curtin of nearby Newington, ex-Connecticut Open titlist.

The quintet was as hot as the plus 90 degree weather as they pasted the 6,541 yards par 35-36—71 Wethersfield Country Club course.

Actually, 31 players in the field of 138 turned in sub-par first round scores to thrill the crowd of more than 5,000 many of whom followed Connecticut's own Julius Boros of Mid Pines, N. C., and Connecticut-born Doug Ford of Harrison, N. Y., the sentimental favorites.

Boros, who played with Ferrier and Harrison, turned in a disappointing 72, one over par, while Ford, recent winner of the open in Montreal, shot a 69.

One stroke off the pace were Jim Turnesa of Briarcliff, N. Y., last year's PGA champ; Joe Moore Jr., of White Plains, N. Y., who in Tuesday's qualifying round shot a 63, the new course record, and Mickey Homa of Rye, N. Y., also a native of this state.

Ted Kroll of New Hartford, N. Y., last year's winner, was among the 69s.

Mexico School Girl Golfer Is "Dark Horse" In Amateur

By WILL GRIMSLEY

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 27—A freckle-faced 16-year-old high school girl from Mexico and a 34-year-old New Jersey housewife moved into the semi-finals of the National Women's Amateur Golf tournament today along with two tournament-tried veterans.

The "dark horse" survivors were Margaret (Wiffi) Smith, California-born Mexican champion from Guadalajara, and Mrs. Philip J. Cudone of Montclair, N. J.

The favorites' banner was upheld by Polly Riley of Fort Worth, Tex., who celebrated her 27th birthday by passing the quarter-finals for the first time in eight of these events, and Mary Lena Faulk, the par-wrecking so-called "gang buster" from Thomasville, Ga.

They weathered two rounds of eliminations today over the 6,371-yard, par 74 Rhode Island Country Club and will square off in 18-hole semifinal engagements tomorrow.

Miss Riley will play Mrs. Cudone and Miss Faulk will meet the solidly-built Miss Smith.

The redheaded Miss Smith eliminated New York state champion, Roslyn (Cookie) Swift of Great Neck, one up, by sinking a 14-foot putt on the final green. Then she took the measure of Pat Lesser, pig-tailed national intercollegiate champion from Seattle 5 and 4.

Mrs. Cudone eliminated Bee McWane of Birmingham, Ala., in the morning 4 and 2, and then triumphed over Willowy Carol Diringer of Tiffin, Ohio, 5 and 4.

Miss Riley continued her interrupted sweep through the toughest quarter of the bracket by ousting Pat O'Sullivan of Orange, Conn., 3 and 1, and Atlanta's Dorothy Kirby, the 1951 champion, 3 and 2.

Miss Faulk, 27, erased Virginia Dennehy of Lake Forest, Ill., 6 and 5, without losing a hole and then expelled Mrs. John Hulteng, the five-time Rhode Island state champion from Warwick, 5 and 4.

Cumberland Chamber Of Commerce Enters 48th Fiscal Year With Largest Enrollment And Best Financial Status Of History

Recent Record Shows Many Achievements

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of two articles designed to acquaint the public with the operations and services of the local Chamber of Commerce.)

The Cumberland Chamber of Commerce this month entered its 48th fiscal year with the largest enrollment and in the best financial condition in its history. Save for the Baltimore Association, it is the largest Chamber in the state of Maryland.

The "Chamber Story" begins with its organization on April 3, 1906 as The Retailers' Protective Association of Cumberland. Later, on February 24, 1912, its name was changed to The Merchants and Manufacturers Association of Cumberland, and on January 28, 1914 it became The Cumberland Chamber of Commerce, Incorporated.

Progress Indicated

Its current manager, Anthony Saeli, assumed his post November 1, 1951, and since that time has compiled a record of considerable achievement. Saeli credits that record to "the unselfish service of public spirited officers and members who reflect the new spirit of the Chamber."

Among the projects of that record is last year's Greater Cumberland Industrial Exposition. A notable phase of the project was a radio program, "the story of a city that was licked but refused to quit," broadcast over a national network and later rebroadcast to Europe by The Voice of America.

The Chamber also conducted the Industrial Promotion Fund Drive and established the Industrial Promotion Department of the Chamber. At the same time it launched a public relations program designed to "tell and sell Cumberland" to Cumberland itself and to the rest of the world. This program, in great measure, helped to end an era of pessimism that previously pervaded the Cumberland area, and to generate a new spirit of civic pride and loyalty.

Increased Membership

At home, this new spirit is reflected in the increased membership of the Chamber, and abroad, in the letters and communications received from many sections of the world. One Chamber of Commerce executive, from a southern state, wrote: "Until recently, I never heard of Cumberland. Now—Well, I'm sold!"

Another phase of the public relations program is the Chamber's tabloid newspaper, "Cumberland Enterprise," now half way through its second year of publication. The paper, edited by Saeli, not only carries news of Chamber activities, but assists in achieving the objectives of the organization's public relations program by continually publicizing the Cumberland area as a good place in which to live and work. The publication is widely distributed at home and abroad, and has won high honors among Chamber newspapers.

Promote Whole Area

A concentrated effort to promote the tourist trade and publicize the scenic and historical attractions of this area is carried on by the Chamber. Just off the press are four new Chamber folders, each illustrated with photos and drawings. One is designed as a general community folder, pointing to Cumberland as an ideal place in which to live. Each of the others deals separately with business and industry, and the scenic attractions and historical points of interest here.

The booklets will be sent in response to individual requests for information about Cumberland, and, in bulk quantities, they will be supplied to travel agencies, auto clubs, hotels, transportation lines and Chambers throughout the country.

In addition the local Chamber conducted a campaign to publicize Cumberland as a "friendly city." As part of this effort, the Chamber has distributed guest welcome cards to hotels and motels, titled "To You Who Enter This Room." In cooperation with the Commissioner of Police and Fire and the Cumberland Police Department, the Chamber has devised a "courtesy tag" to be issued to traffic violators from outside the state.

Industrial Efforts

As part of the public relations effort to bring Cumberland to the attention of the nation, Saeli has maintained a steady contact with state, regional and national organizations. He is president of the American Assoiation of Commerce publications, a vice president of the Maryland Council of Chambers of Commerce and is active in affairs of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States and the American Chamber of Commerce Executives. Last June, he served as a discussion leader on the staff of the Southeastern Institute for Chamber of Commerce Executives.

For more than a year before the Industrial Promotion Department was established, the Chamber spent much time in making contacts and developing sub-contract work for the smaller industries in the Cumberland area. As part of this effort, the Chamber conducted a series of "industry clinics" and arranged several conferences with representatives of government procurement agencies, small business specialists and "indutry task forces" of the armed services.

Payrolls Show Gains

Results of this effort, Saeli believes, are reflected in the report of business conditions here for the six months ending in June. The report shows that payrolls were 11.6 per cent highed and employment 5.9 per cent higher than in June a year ago.

In addition, the Chamber widely spread the theme that "Cumberland's products serve the world." It prepared displays and exhibits and in other ways publicized Cumberland's industries and the products they manufacture.

Saeli emphasizes, however, that while trade and industry are still primary interests, they are not the sole interests of the Chamber. With the industrial promotion promotion well under way, the Chamber this year will place renewed emphasis on civic development.

"The Chamber movement had its origin in men's pursuit of business," Saeli pointed out, "but today, a substantial share of the Chamber's interests lie in the field of civic affairs.

"The businessman today realizes that participation in civic affairs is the rent he pays for being in town. Chamber of Commerce, likewise, have come to this realization and so, today, Chamber programs emphasize social, civic, cultural and educational factors, all of which make for better living in a better city."

Polio Strikes Five-Year-Old District Girl

Authorities Term Case Non-Paralytic

The first case of polio in the Allegany-Garrett County area in two years is being treated at Memorial Hospital, Allegany County Health Department officials said yesterday.

The victim is Linda Harbosky, five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Harbosky, Star Route, Frostburg. Taken ill last Thursday, the young girl was admitted to Miners Hospital, Frostburg, on the following day and transferred on Saturday to the local hospital.

Hospital attaches yesterday said they are still running tests on the victim, and nothing definite concerning her condition was reported.

The Harboskys reside in Garrett County and the father works at a service station on Route 40. Health Department officials said two other children in the family have been given shots of gamma globulin—the blood derivative now being used to combat the crippling effects of polio.

Non-Paralytic Type

Authorities have since determined the type of polio the Harbosky girl has is non-paralytic. The gamma globulin shots were administered as a precautionary measure, authorities stated.

The Garrett County case is the first reported in Western Maryland this year, although neighboring Pennsylvania and West Virginia counties have had cases this summer. The disease is restricted to the summer months, Health Department officials said, adding that it is reassuring that the Garrett County case occurred so late in the season. Normally, they added, few cases are reported after the end of August.

An 11-year-old Mineral County (W. Va.) girl was stricken with polio three weeks ago and three children in the Meyersdale (Pa.) area were stricken the week before last. Somerset County (Pa.) officials also reported a "mild" case last month.

All Mild Cases

All of the nearby cases have been of a relatively mild nature and all are responding to treatment. The three cases in the Meyersdale area caused Somerset County Health Board to issue a warning against taking young children to public gatherings. They added that if any new cases were reported, the opening of school would be delayed as a precautionary measure against the spread of the disease. The Garrett County case, although in the general area under watch, is not expected to delay the school opening.

Board of Health officials in Meyersdale identified the polio patients as Kevin Twigg, two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Galen Twigg; Elizabeth Ann Werner, 12, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Werner, and Lois Logue, two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Logue. The Werners and Twiggs reside in Meyersdale and the Logues on RD 1.

The Mineral County victim is Mary Ellen Riggleman, 11-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Davis, New Creek Drive.

Explosives Truck Piles Up But Driver Unhurt

A big tractor-trailer truck loaded with explosives piled up on U. S. Route 50 near Capon Bridge early last night, but the driver escaped serious injury.

West Virginia State Police at Romney said details of the accident were not available by late last night.

They said, however, that the truck was the only vehicle involved, and that no one was hospitalized as a result of the accident.

What type of explosives were being carried in the truck was not known.

State Police troopers stayed at the scene while the dangerous cargo was being transferred to another truck.

that the principal of both schools will teach half of each. Lisanti will fill in the other half day for each principal, being at one school in the morning and the other one in the afternoon. Council To Set insist that each employe take the vacation coming to him in the calendar year allotted.

Finan then interrupted to point out he didn't think supervisory empioyes should be obligated with seeing that other city workers took their vacations.

Eves then took exception to the wording of the law on vacations saying many interpretations can be made in the law.

He said he believed Brown should be reimbursed the five days' pay he was docked and that a policy should be established for accumulation of vacation time.

Mrs. Roeder then asked if the Mayor was changing department rulings which now advocate all vacations must be taken in the calendar year or be lost.

Eves then commented he "didn't know any rules existed."

Says Error Not Discovered

Shipe kept pointing out to the council that the error in Brown's vacation time was not discovered for six months time but Wilson acquired the department's payroll to point out the error was rectified in succeeding checks.

When Eves asked for a decision on whether Brown would be paid Commissioner John J. Long also asked if rules would be changed and Mrs. Roeder questioned how the funds would be raised.

Eves said a claim could be filed similar to that of tax refunds.

When the question was raised why Brown should be paid the extra five days Eves said a mistake was made. Finan then said the only reason for the payment would be the city was footing the bill for an error because Brown apparently thought the time was coming to him from the previous year.

Eves then seeing the discussion was leading nowhere said the matter should be dropped and he would see Brown received the money if he had to take up a collection for the man.

Attending the session also was Commissioner William J. Edwards; Mrs. Louise Beachy, secretary; Charles Baker, William Geatz, both city employes. Commissioner William V. Keegan did not attend as he was out of town.

City Removes Old Flagpole

Two city departments joined forces yesterday to remove a defective flagpole from the roof of the Public Safety Building and saved about $200.

The wooden pole was removed by Fire Department personnel, using the big aerial ladder truck, and was hauled away by street workers.

Early this year, when the pole was to be painted the steeplejack reported the wood was defective and the pole too dangerous to climb.

Pending an inspection by the Fire Department, officials asked informal bids and received one offer to remove the pole for about $200.

Fire Chief Virgil A. Parker said men were available yesterday to make the inspection, which was completed using the aerial ladder. It was decided to remove the menacing object, and street workers, headed by Andrew W. Heller, street superintendent, cut the pole into short lengths and carted it away.

28 Miles Of County Roads Treated

The summer schedule of oiling and chipping surfaced roads in Allegany County is nearing completion, according to J. Walker Chapman, county roads supervisor.

Chapman said that 28 miles of roadway has been surface treated so far and by the middle of September the entire program will have been completed.

Roads yet to be oiled and chipped include Mill Run Road, Scott Road and Lower Town Creek Road.

These comprise about eight miles of roadway.

The cost of the surface treating up until August 21 was $29,630. This included materials, equipment and labor, Chapman said.

Meanwhile, G. Bates Chaires, district engineer for the State Roads Commission, said the newly-improved Vale Summit Road has been accepted by the state. The project, which was in two parts, was completed by the Cumberland Contracting Company.

The Vale Summit Road project has eliminated numerous curves and dips in the highway and now provides a wide highway. The road is a main route between Georges Creek communities and Cumberland.

The Vale Summit improvements cost almost a million dollars.

DeSpirito Rides Five Narragansett Winners

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Aug. 27 (AP)—Tony DeSpirito, 1952 national champion jockey, continued his blistering streak at Narragansett Park today by booting home five winners, three of them in consecutive races.

But he needed help from the stewards to do so. The latter ordered DeSpirito's eighth race mount, Friendly Sands, into the winner's circle after setting back Miss Meliss from first to fourth place for fouling.

After sitting out Tuesday's program because of illness, DeSpirito regained some of his lost prestige yesterday by clicking with three winners out of seven rides.

He started today's streak on Talon in the second race and then continued on Evelyn L in the fourth, Time for Speed in the sixth and Abstract in the seventh.

a participant in the annual tests. In the past 31 years he has captured eight championships.

"MANY HAGERSTOWN sportfolk believe it is just a matter of time until the ten days of racing allotted to the Cumberland Fair Association are transferred to Hagerstown to make 20 days of sport there each summer," writes Bill Boniface, racing editor of the Baltimore Sunpapers.

"They remind you that Cumberland hasn't done anywhere near as much business as the state's other halfers in recent seasons and they better move to Hagerstown if they want to make money."

We believe this is a lot of wishful thinking on the part of Hagerstown.

Remember back in the days when 10,000 persons were employed at the Celanese plant, the mutuel handle exceeded $3,000,000 at Fairgo and we heard such remarks as:

"Cumberland should have a longer meet" and "Cumberland should enlarge its plant" and "Cumberland ought to have a mile track."

The boom is on at Hagerstown now. But will it always be that way?

DON NETOSKIE, Martinsburg High School's All-State halfback, will not enter the University of Maryland as previously reported.

He's enrolled at Kentucky and is now at Coach Paul "Bear" Bryant's pre-school football camp. Don's brother John starred at Kentucky for several seasons.

JOSEPH M. KELLY, who served as secretary of the Maryland Athletic Commission for more than quarter of a century, died Saturday at St. Joseph's Hospital, Baltimore.

Kelly was a close, personal friend of the late John W. Snyder, Cumberland boxing promoter, and it was through the latter that we first met Kelly at Baltimore in 1924 the night Harry Greb stopped Fay Keiser in the 12th round.

Joe was in the jewelry business at that time and took the post of boxing secretary as a part-time job. In recent years he retired from business and devoted his entire time to boxing.

Vic Ricker, Calton "Funny" Newnam, John W. Snyder and Pete Shaw, all local fight promoters, transacted their business through Kelly and they always spoke highly of the popular Baltimore Irishman.

CENTERVILLE'S Reds, with four Roses in the lineup, are making a strong bid for the pennant in the Greater Bedford County Baseball League.

They are trailing Everett, the current leader (11-4) by a half game and could tie it up Sunday if Hyndman can knock off Everett.

Centerville is in second place with 11-5 and is idle this weekend. Hyndman is fifth with 7-8.

Both Centerville and Hyndman were formerly in the Interstate League.

Refused Money, Hitchhiker Kills Official In Ohio

ZANESVILLE, Ohio, Aug. 27 (AP)—A hitchhiking AWOL soldier today fatally shot a state official who gave him a lift but refused him money at gun point.

Prosecutor Joseph McNerney said he would file first or second-degree murder charges tomorrow against Pvt. Harold St. John, 25, Dorchester, Mass.

St. John admitted shooting Joseph W. Harding, 53, assistant director of the Ohio Department of Industrial Relations and former mayor of Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio, the prosecutor said.

The shooting occurred after Harding stopped his car in front of a motel five miles west of Zanesville on U. S. 40 and shouted:

"Call the cops! This guy has a gun!" but before the motel owner, Arnold W. Meyers, could summon help Harding had been killed. Highway Patrol Cpl. C. E. Wells, who captured St. John less than two miles from the motel seven hours later, said St. John gave him this account of the shooting:

Harding picked up St. John on the outskirts of Columbus. St. John had two pistols, one a .45 caliber stolen from a guard at a Camp Atterbury, Ind., stockade yesterday, the other a .32 caliber. He held up Harding with the .32 and ordered him to drive to Pittsburgh, Pa.

After Harding called for help, there was a struggle. St. John was wounded in the leg. Harding was shot twice with the .45 caliber gun, once in the head and once in the abdomen.

Wells picked up St. John on U. S. 40 about 5:30 a.m. (EST). He offered no resistance. Wells spotted St. John coming out of the brush onto the highway. He was carrying the .45 caliber revolver in his belt.

Controversial Bills Approved In Israel

JERUSALEM, Israeli Sector, Aug. 27 (AP)—The Israeli Knesset (parliament) has passed twin controversial bills giving rabbis control of marriage and divorce and the state the right to draft religious orthodox women.

Ultra-orthodox parties withdrew their opposition to the drafting of orthodox women for national service in return for rabbinical control of marriage and divorce of all Jews in Israel. The marriage bill authorizes civil courts to hand out jail terms to Israelis refusing to obey rabbinical decrees in these matters.

The bills passed after a dramatic all-night session called suddenly to stall off demonstrations against the proposed laws scheduled for today.

The Progressive party, with four seats in the 120 member Knesset, fought bitterly against the marriage law and is now expected to withdraw from the 4-party coalition supporting Premier David Ben-Gurion. Their defection, however, will still leave Ben-Gurion a healthy parliamentary majority.

The draft law was modified to specify that orthodox women who object to military service may take nursing or other civilian training.

Baering Down On The News

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

(Distributed By INS)

Question before this congressional recess is how much of a national debt we can parley.

At the start of Cleveland's second administration we didn't owe anybody a cent. Except Cleveland's salary.

Then McKinley came along and we started to get prosperous. Meaning we could borrow money. People trusted us.

A nation is solvent when its stockpile stands off its slagheap.

We know the more people you owe money the more people you have praying for your continued health. Or let's say existence.

That's as true of nations as of individuals. You cannot take it with you. But you can make other people wish you hadn't left it home.

According to Adam Smith you cannot get rich with another man counting your money. The point of no return is a man who has stepped off a wharf with an anvil under each arm.

I am an Ike-olationist on everything but the debt. Ike wants a ceiling of 290,000,000,000 markers. A nice plastering job.

The legitimate tops is 275,000,000,000 buttons. They are getting loose.

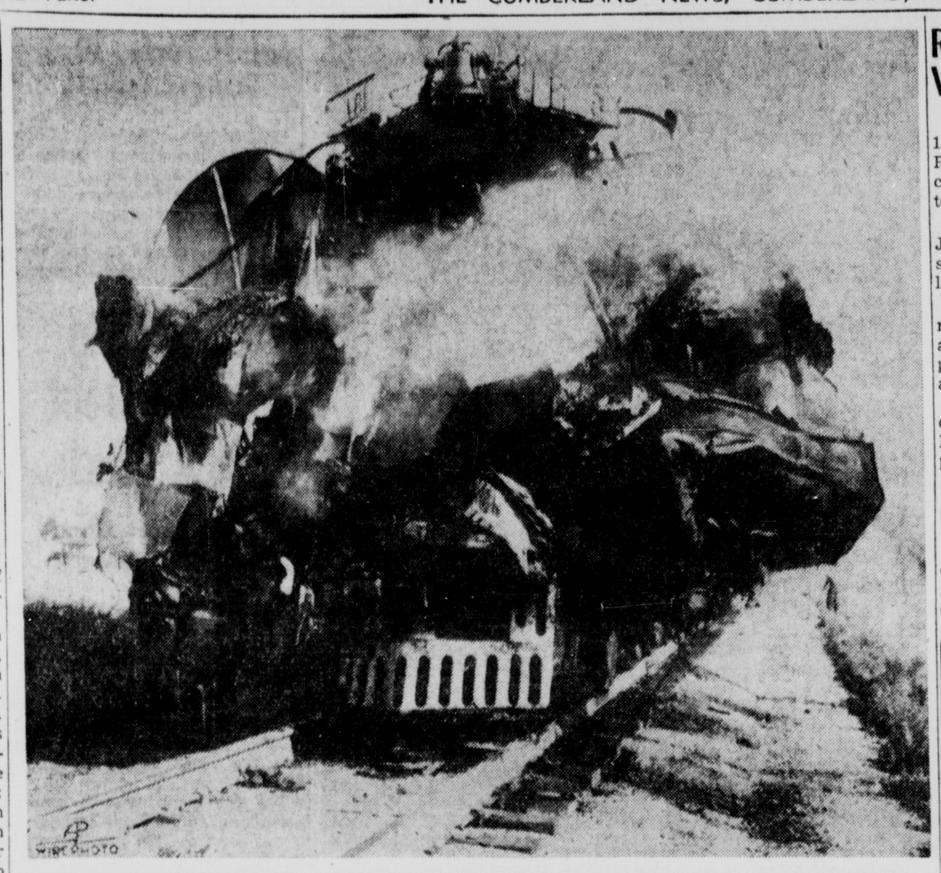

Let's change to the heavy winter oil in the adding machine. A totalage of 290,000,000,000 washers is a lot of money if you haven't got it. It's a lot of money if you have got it.

Not that Ike hasn't got some ciphers on his side of the national decimal point. It's all right going overboard if the water is the right temperature.

We're warning the Republicans. Did you ever think we might have to go back to the New Deal to save money.

Milwaukee Artist Dies

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 27 (AP)—Lowell M. Lee, 48-year-old Milwaukee artist and director of the Wisconsin State College art department here, died Wednesday night after suffering a heart attack.

TRAIN RAMS TANK TRUCK — The Union Pacific's Portland Rose rammed an oil tank truck at a crossing near Greeley, Colo., yesterday. With the burning, smashed tank impaled on the engine, the train plunged for three miles with its sheath of flame and smoke before it could be halted. One crewman was killed and another critically injured.

Paper Says "Gorilla-Like" Animal Seen In "Snallygaster" Country

ELKTON, Md., Aug. 27 (AP)—The Cecil Whig, a 112-year-old conservative weekly published in this town at the head of the Chesapeake Bay "snallygaster" country, lent credence today to reports that a "gorilla-like" animal is roaming the woods nearby.

The paper said an extensive investigation conducted by its staff has shown there is a "definite possibility" a large gorilla like animal is loose in the heavily wooded hilly area along the Maryland-Pennsylvania line in the northern portion of Cecil County.

It based its conclusions primarily on reports of H. S. Osborne and Ray Potter, two farmers who live at Lombard, just south of the state line, and Joseph Eggers who lives a quarter of a mile from them.

Osborne said he had seen the animal on two occasions, once from about 20 feet. With him that time was Potter. Osborne said it was about 3 p.m., the light was good and when they looked toward the woods, the animal was peering over the fence at them.

Osborne described it as about 6 feet tall, brownish hair all over and a pink ring around its face. It stood erect and had a monkey-like appearance Osborne said.

The Whig, seeking expert advice, contacted Fred Ulmer, curator of mammals at the Philadelphia Zoo.

Ulmer ruled out the possibility that the strange animal was a gorilla both because of their scarcity and their high value. He said the descriptions of the beast seemed to indicate it was a chimpanzee.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 27 (AP)—Western Maryland Dairy Inc. was named in a $1,500 damage suit brought in City Court today by a 4-year-old and his father on the grounds that the boy injured his hands in carrying out a milk man's orders to pick up jagged pieces of a broken bottle.

The suit alleged one of the dairy's delivery men had dropped and broken an empty bottle last April 6 near the boy's home in Essex and had instructed the child to pick up the pieces.

Elmer Eugene Smith Jr., the 4-year-old, was "accustomed to obeying the commands of his elders" and therefore, picked up the glass fragments, cutting his fingers and arms, the suit said.

The boy sued for $1,000, and his father, Elmer E. Smith, claimed $500.

Navy, Marines Plan Meals 'Like Mother Used To Make'

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27 (AP) — "Meals just like mother used to make will be closer to reality for Marines and sailors . . ."

That's what the Marine Corps said in an official announcement today.

To back up the claim, the Marines and the Navy served up a sample of their experimental "B" ration, made entirely from non-perishable foods, to a hungry pack of newsmen and service personnel on a sun-baked patio over in nearby Virginia.

The menu: chicken-and-macaroni casserole, stewed tomatoes, chocolate cake, coffee. Oh, yes, and split pea soup.

The verdict, reached after a poll of the eating press and the uniformed knife-and-forkers: pretty tasty, but mother still could do better even in a field kitchen.

To dress up the demonstration, a nice-looking lady Marine was on hand—T. Sgt. Felicia Dutka of New Market, N. H. She had a dreadful time. Not with the food but with the flies. They kept biting her legs.

"C'mon, smile—make like you're enjoying it," a photographer pleaded.

Sgt. Dutka bestowed a warm smile on her metal tray of "B" ration. abruptly, the smile faded. She slapped her shin.

"These flies!" she said.

The Defense Department said the new ration will result in "a much more varied diet."

"Although composed primarily of canned and dehydrated foods," the department said, "the meals served in the field as well as to the construction battalions of the Navy and aboard some ships will be more palatable and less monotonous than the meals served as 'B' rations in World War II and in the recent hostilities in Korea."

Cumberland Chamber Of Commerce Enters 48th Fiscal Year With Largest Enrollment And Best Financial Status Of History

Recent Record Shows Many Achievements

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of two articles designed to acquaint the public with the operations and services of the local Chamber of Commerce.)

The Cumberland Chamber of Commerce this month entered its 48th fiscal year with the largest enrollment and in the best financial condition in its history. Save for the Baltimore Association, it is the largest Chamber in the state of Maryland.

The "Chamber Story" begins with its organization on April 3, 1906 as The Retailers' Protective Association of Cumberland. Later, on February 24, 1912, its name was changed to The Merchants and Manufacturers Association of Cumberland, and on January 28, 1914 it became The Cumberland Chamber of Commerce, Incorporated.

Progress Indicated

Its current manager, Anthony Saeli, assumed his post November 1, 1951, and since that time has compiled a record of considerable achievement. Saeli credits that record to "the unselfish service of public spirited officers and members who reflect the new spirit of the Chamber."

Among the projects of that record is last year's Greater Cumberland Industrial Exposition. A notable phase of the project was a radio program, "the story of a city that was licked but refused to quit," broadcast over a national network and later rebroadcast to Europe by The Voice of America.

The Chamber also conducted the Industrial Promotion Fund Drive and established the Industrial Promotion Department of the Chamber. At the same time it launched a public relations program designed to "tell and sell Cumberland" to Cumberland itself and to the rest of the world. This program, in great measure, helped to end an era of pessimism that previously pervaded the Cumberland area, and to generate a new spirit of civic pride and loyalty.

Increased Membership

At home, this new spirit is reflected in the increased membership of the Chamber, and abroad, in the letters and communications received from many sections of the world. One Chamber of Commerce executive, from a southern state, wrote: "Until recently, I never heard of Cumberland. Now—Well, I'm sold!"

Another phase of the public relations program is the Chamber's tabloid newspaper, "Cumberland Enterprise," now half way through its second year of publication. The paper, edited by Saeli, not only carries news of Chamber activities, but assists in achieving the objectives of the organization's public relations program by continually publicizing the Cumberland area as a good place in which to live and work. The publication is widely distributed at home and abroad, and has won high honors among Chamber newspapers.

Promote Whole Area

A concentrated effort to promote the tourist trade and publicize the scenic and historical attractions of this area is carried on by the Chamber. Just off the press are four new Chamber folders, each illustrated with photos and drawings. One is designed as a general community folder, pointing to Cumberland as an ideal place in which to live. Each of the others deals separately with business and industry, and the scenic attractions and historical points of interest here.

The booklets will be sent in response to individual requests for information about Cumberland, and, in bulk quantities, they will be supplied to travel agencies, auto clubs, hotels, transportation lines and Chambers throughout the country.

In addition the local Chamber conducted a campaign to publicize Cumberland as a "friendly city." As part of this effort, the Chamber has distributed guest welcome cards to hotels and motels, titled "To You Who Enter This Room." In cooperation with the Commissioner of Police and Fire and the Cumberland Police Department, the Chamber has devised a "courtesy tag" to be issued to traffic violators from outside the state.

Industrial Efforts

As part of the public relations effort to bring Cumberland to the attention of the nation, Saeli has maintained a steady contact with state, regional and national organizations. He is president of the American Assoiation of Commerce publications, a vice president of the Maryland Council of Chambers of Commerce and is active in affairs of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States and the American Chamber of Commerce Executives. Last June, he served as a discussion leader on the staff of the Southeastern Institute for Chamber of Commerce Executives.

For more than a year before the Industrial Promotion Department was established, the Chamber spent much time in making contacts and developing sub-contract work for the smaller industries in the Cumberland area. As part of this effort, the Chamber conducted a series of "industry clinics" and arranged several conferences with representatives of government procurement agencies, small business specialists and "indutry task forces" of the armed services.

Payrolls Show Gains

Results of this effort, Saeli believes, are reflected in the report of business conditions here for the six months ending in June. The report shows that payrolls were 11.6 per cent highed and employment 5.9 per cent higher than in June a year ago.

In addition, the Chamber widely spread the theme that "Cumberland's products serve the world." It prepared displays and exhibits and in other ways publicized Cumberland's industries and the products they manufacture.

Saeli emphasizes, however, that while trade and industry are still primary interests, they are not the sole interests of the Chamber. With the industrial promotion promotion well under way, the Chamber this year will place renewed emphasis on civic development.

"The Chamber movement had its origin in men's pursuit of business," Saeli pointed out, "but today, a substantial share of the Chamber's interests lie in the field of civic affairs.

"The businessman today realizes that participation in civic affairs is the rent he pays for being in town. Chamber of Commerce, likewise, have come to this realization and so, today, Chamber programs emphasize social, civic, cultural and educational factors, all of which make for better living in a better city."

Polio Strikes Five-Year-Old District Girl

Authorities Term Case Non-Paralytic

The first case of polio in the Allegany-Garrett County area in two years is being treated at Memorial Hospital, Allegany County Health Department officials said yesterday.

The victim is Linda Harbosky, five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Harbosky, Star Route, Frostburg. Taken ill last Thursday, the young girl was admitted to Miners Hospital, Frostburg, on the following day and transferred on Saturday to the local hospital.

Hospital attaches yesterday said they are still running tests on the victim, and nothing definite concerning her condition was reported.

The Harboskys reside in Garrett County and the father works at a service station on Route 40. Health Department officials said two other children in the family have been given shots of gamma globulin—the blood derivative now being used to combat the crippling effects of polio.

Non-Paralytic Type

Authorities have since determined the type of polio the Harbosky girl has is non-paralytic. The gamma globulin shots were administered as a precautionary measure, authorities stated.

The Garrett County case is the first reported in Western Maryland this year, although neighboring Pennsylvania and West Virginia counties have had cases this summer. The disease is restricted to the summer months, Health Department officials said, adding that it is reassuring that the Garrett County case occurred so late in the season. Normally, they added, few cases are reported after the end of August.

An 11-year-old Mineral County (W. Va.) girl was stricken with polio three weeks ago and three children in the Meyersdale (Pa.) area were stricken the week before last. Somerset County (Pa.) officials also reported a "mild" case last month.

All Mild Cases

All of the nearby cases have been of a relatively mild nature and all are responding to treatment. The three cases in the Meyersdale area caused Somerset County Health Board to issue a warning against taking young children to public gatherings. They added that if any new cases were reported, the opening of school would be delayed as a precautionary measure against the spread of the disease. The Garrett County case, although in the general area under watch, is not expected to delay the school opening.

Board of Health officials in Meyersdale identified the polio patients as Kevin Twigg, two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Galen Twigg; Elizabeth Ann Werner, 12, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Werner, and Lois Logue, two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Logue. The Werners and Twiggs reside in Meyersdale and the Logues on RD 1.

The Mineral County victim is Mary Ellen Riggleman, 11-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Davis, New Creek Drive.

Explosives Truck Piles Up But Driver Unhurt

A big tractor-trailer truck loaded with explosives piled up on U. S. Route 50 near Capon Bridge early last night, but the driver escaped serious injury.

West Virginia State Police at Romney said details of the accident were not available by late last night.

They said, however, that the truck was the only vehicle involved, and that no one was hospitalized as a result of the accident.

What type of explosives were being carried in the truck was not known.

State Police troopers stayed at the scene while the dangerous cargo was being transferred to another truck.

Council To Set

insist that each employe take the vacation coming to him in the calendar year allotted.

Finan then interrupted to point out he didn't think supervisory empioyes should be obligated with seeing that other city workers took their vacations.

Eves then took exception to the wording of the law on vacations saying many interpretations can be made in the law.

He said he believed Brown should be reimbursed the five days' pay he was docked and that a policy should be established for accumulation of vacation time.

Mrs. Roeder then asked if the Mayor was changing department rulings which now advocate all vacations must be taken in the calendar year or be lost.

Eves then commented he "didn't know any rules existed."

Says Error Not Discovered

Shipe kept pointing out to the council that the error in Brown's vacation time was not discovered for six months time but Wilson acquired the department's payroll to point out the error was rectified in succeeding checks.

When Eves asked for a decision on whether Brown would be paid Commissioner John J. Long also asked if rules would be changed and Mrs. Roeder questioned how the funds would be raised.

Eves said a claim could be filed similar to that of tax refunds.

When the question was raised why Brown should be paid the extra five days Eves said a mistake was made. Finan then said the only reason for the payment would be the city was footing the bill for an error because Brown apparently thought the time was coming to him from the previous year.

Eves then seeing the discussion was leading nowhere said the matter should be dropped and he would see Brown received the money if he had to take up a collection for the man.

Attending the session also was Commissioner William J. Edwards; Mrs. Louise Beachy, secretary; Charles Baker, William Geatz, both city employes. Commissioner William V. Keegan did not attend as he was out of town.

28 Miles Of County Roads Treated

The summer schedule of oiling and chipping surfaced roads in Allegany County is nearing completion, according to J. Walker Chapman, county roads supervisor.

Chapman said that 28 miles of roadway has been surface treated so far and by the middle of September the entire program will have been completed.

Roads yet to be oiled and chipped include Mill Run Road, Scott Road and Lower Town Creek Road. These comprise about eight miles of roadway.

The cost of the surface treating up until August 21 was $29,630. This included materials, equipment and labor, Chapman said.

Meanwhile, G. Bates Chaires, district engineer for the State Roads Commission, said the newly-improved Vale Summit Road has been accepted by the state. The project, which was in two parts, was completed by the Cumberland Contracting Company.

The Vale Summit Road project has eliminated numerous curves and dips in the highway and now provides a wide highway. The road is a main route between Georges Creek communities and Cumberland.

The Vale Summit improvements cost almost a million dollars.

City Removes Old Flagpole

Two city departments joined forces yesterday to remove a defective flagpole from the roof of the Public Safety Building and saved about $200.

The wooden pole was removed by Fire Department personnel, using the big aerial ladder truck, and was hauled away by street workers.

Early this year, when the pole was to be painted the steeplejack reported the wood was defective and the pole too dangerous to climb.

Pending an inspection by the Fire Department, officials asked informal bids and received one offer to remove the pole for about $200.

Fire Chief Virgil A. Parker said men were available yesterday to make the inspection, which was completed using the aerial ladder. It was decided to remove the menacing object, and street workers, headed by Andrew W. Heller, street superintendent, cut the pole into short lengths and carted it away.

KEYSER—Two new members of Potomac State College faculty were announced yesterday by Dr. E. E. Church, president of the Hill Top institution in Keyser. The opening of the 1953-54 school year at the college is scheduled Sunday, September 13.

The two new members are Miss Sue Frances Cather, Morgantown, to be Dean of Women and preceptress of Reynolds Hall, replacing Miss Elizabeth Sue Webster who resigned at the end of the spring term; and Miss Doris Irene Brown, Vanport, Pa., to the Department of Commerce and Business Administration, replacing Miss Frances Doak, who is absent on leave to continue work on her doctorate at the University of Chicago.

Announcement was previously made at the school that John D. Fox, New York City, has been named instructor in the Department of Physical Education, and W. Bradford Swecker, in the Department of Agriculture.

Nunzie Barbera, band master at Keyser High School, has been named part-time instructor in instrumental music at the college. Barbera and the college have arranged his schedule whereby his college work will not interfere in any way with his regular and full time employment at the high school.

Allen E. Murphy, of the Department of Geology, who has been on leave of absence for a year while pursuing graduate work at Syracuse University, will return for the opening of the fall term here.

Miss Cather, new dean of women, is a daughter of Prof. Harold M. and Eva (Dotson) Cather, Morgantown. She holds both A.B. and M.A. degrees from West Virginia University, where her father is head of the mechanical engineering department. She was a member and president of Kappa Kappa Gamma Sorority, member of Phi Beta Kappa social fraternity, member and treasurer of the YWCA, member of the Mortar Board, Kappa Delta Phi, Honorary Education fraternity; Student council, Student Union governing board and other organizations.

She taught English and art in Monongalia County schools in 1951-52 and was art director in 1952-53 at Mountainlair on the WVU campus. Her duties begin at Potomac State College as of September 1.

Miss Brown, who takes over her duties in the Department of Commerce and Business Administration at the opening of this term, was an honor student at Beaver (Pa.) High School, where she won a scholarship to Geneva College at Beaver Falls, Pa. She was graduated from there with honors and a B. S. degree in business administration. She received her master's degree from University of Pittsburgh.

Miss Brown taught four years in Midland (Pa.) High School and has travelled extensively in Cuba, Mexico and Canada. She recently returned from a tour through the western part of the United States.

Peach Market Reaches Peak In This Area

Most Growers Will Have Crops Picked

The market for peaches has reached its peak in this area with prices dropping somewhat from the earlier part of the season, a check of the industry revealed.

The Hampshire Belt Elbertas are being finished up this week, according to R. L. Sumner, manager of Mountain Fruit Sales, Inc., Romney.

Prices being obtained for peaches, FOB shipping point, are now ranging from $2 to $2.25 and an occasional $2.50 a bushel, he said.

The Hampshire Belt south of here annually markets a quarter of a million bushels of peaches.

Many growers are finished picking their peaches, Sumner said, and most will be through by the end of this week.

Local orchards have glutted the important terminal markets in the East and the Mountain Fruit Sales, one of the largest fruit cooperatives in West Virginia has had to seek southern markets, where the peaches are now out of season.

Sumner said the Pittsburgh terminal market, which sets prices for about a 150-mile radius, has been taking peaches on consignment, selling them for whatever price the buyer will pay. This affects the orchardists of this area.

This is an every year occurrence at this time of the season. However, Sumner said the Hampshire growers are getting good prices for fruit that is in good shape and not too perishable.

The next big job on hand for the area orchardists will come next month when the big apple crop starts moving to the markets.

He said the college is sure to have at least 195 students enrolled, but he expects this number to be increased in the opening days. Some who are expected and have signified their intention of coming have not sent in the necessary information for enrolling. His department is in contact now with 150 more prospective students, he said.

Both dormitories, Davis Hall for men, and Reynolds Hall for women, are now filled, and there are waiting lists for both dormitories.

Dean McKee's department is now trying to locate suitable homes in the Keyser area where students may secure rooms, and if desired take their meals at the college.

Persons interested in helping the college in the matter of providing rooms for students, may contact Mrs. Gertrude Stanhagen, secretary to the president of the college by dialing Keyser 3971.

Dean McKee also is urging all students planning to attend Potomace State this year, and who have not made application to date to make contact with his office as soon as possible.

Refused Money, Hitchhiker Kills Official In Ohio

ZANESVILLE, Ohio, Aug. 27 (AP)—A hitchhiking AWOL soldier today fatally shot a state official who gave him a lift but refused him money at gun point.

Prosecutor Joseph McNerney said he would file first or second-degree murder charges tomorrow against Pvt. Harold St. John, 25, Dorchester, Mass.

St. John admitted shooting Joseph W. Harding, 53, assistant director of the Ohio Department of Industrial Relations and former mayor of Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio, the prosecutor said.

The shooting occurred after Harding stopped his car in front of a motel five miles west of Zanesville on U. S. 40 and shouted:

"Call the cops! This guy has a gun!" but before the motel owner, Arnold W. Meyers, could summon help Harding had been killed. Highway Patrol Cpl. C. E. Wells, who captured St. John less than two miles from the motel seven hours later, said St. John gave him this account of the shooting:

Harding picked up St. John on the outskirts of Columbus. St. John had two pistols, one a .45 caliber stolen from a guard at a Camp Atterbury, Ind., stockade yesterday, the other a .32 caliber. He held up Harding with the .32 and ordered him to drive to Pittsburgh, Pa.

After Harding called for help, there was a struggle. St. John was wounded in the leg. Harding was shot twice with the .45 caliber gun, once in the head and once in the abdomen.

Wells picked up St. John on U. S. 40 about 5:30 a.m. (EST). He offered no resistance. Wells spotted St. John coming out of the brush onto the highway. He was carrying the .45 caliber revolver in his belt.

Controversial Bills Approved In Israel

JERUSALEM, Israeli Sector, Aug. 27 (AP)—The Israeli Knesset (parliament) has passed twin controversial bills giving rabbis control of marriage and divorce and the state the right to draft religious orthodox women.

Ultra-orthodox parties withdrew their opposition to the drafting of orthodox women for national service in return for rabbinical control of marriage and divorce of all Jews in Israel. The marriage bill authorizes civil courts to hand out jail terms to Israelis refusing to obey rabbinical decrees in these matters.

The bills passed after a dramatic all-night session called suddenly to stall off demonstrations against the proposed laws scheduled for today.

The Progressive party, with four seats in the 120 member Knesset, fought bitterly against the marriage law and is now expected to withdraw from the 4-party coalition supporting Premier David Ben-Gurion. Their defection, however, will still leave Ben-Gurion a healthy parliamentary majority.

The draft law was modified to specify that orthodox women who object to military service may take nursing or other civilian training.

Baering Down On The News

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

(Distributed By INS)

Question before this congressional recess is how much of a national debt we can parley.

At the start of Cleveland's second administration we didn't owe anybody a cent. Except Cleveland's salary.

Then McKinley came along and we started to get prosperous. Meaning we could borrow money. People trusted us.

A nation is solvent when its stockpile stands off its slagheap.

We know the more people you owe money the more people you have praying for your continued health. Or let's say existence.

That's as true of nations as of individuals. You cannot take it with you. But you can make other people wish you hadn't left it home.

According to Adam Smith you cannot get rich with another man counting your money. The point of no return is a man who has stepped off a wharf with an anvil under each arm.

I am an Ike-olationist on everything but the debt. Ike wants a ceiling of 290,000,000,000 markers. A nice plastering job.

The legitimate tops is 275,000,000,000 buttons. They are getting loose.

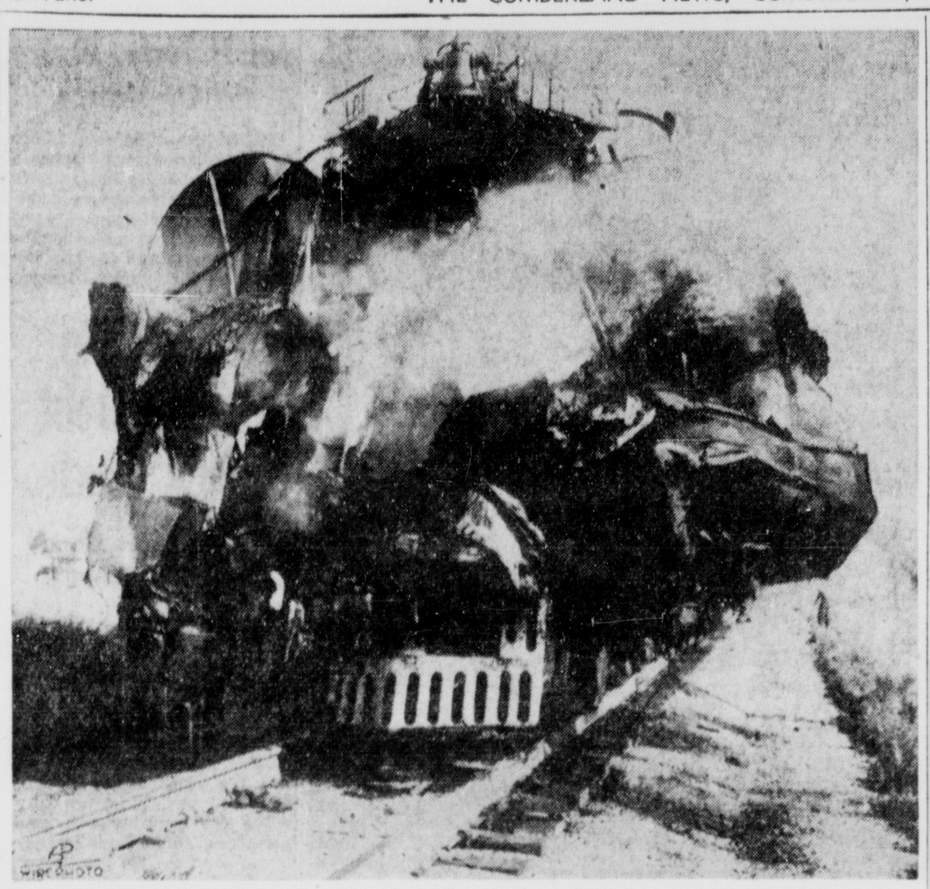

Let's change to the heavy winter oil in the adding machine. A totalage of 290,000,000,000 washers is a lot of money if you haven't got it. It's a lot of money if you have got it.

Not that Ike hasn't got some ciphers on his side of the national decimal point. It's all right going overboard if the water is the right temperature.

We're warning the Republicans. Did you ever think we might have to go back to the New Deal to save money.

One crewman was killed and another critically injured.

Paper Says "Gorilla-Like" Animal Seen In "Snallygaster" Country

ELKTON, Md., Aug. 27 (AP)—The Cecil Whig, a 112-year-old conservative weekly published in this town at the head of the Chesapeake Bay "snallygaster" country, lent credence today to reports that a "gorilla-like" animal is roaming the woods nearby.

The paper said an extensive investigation conducted by its staff has shown there is a "definite possibility" a large gorilla like animal is loose in the heavily wooded hilly area along the Maryland-Pennsylvania line in the northern portion of Cecil County.

It based its conclusions primarily on reports of H. S. Osborne and Ray Potter, two farmers who live at Lombard, just south of the state line, and Joseph Eggers who lives a quarter of a mile from them.

Osborne said he had seen the animal on two occasions, once from about 20 feet. With him that time was Potter. Osborne said it was about 3 p.m., the light was good and when they looked toward the woods, the animal was peering over the fence at them.

Osborne described it as about 6 feet tall, brownish hair all over and a pink ring around its face. It stood erect and had a monkey-like appearance Osborne said.

The Whig, seeking expert advice, contacted Fred Ulmer, curator of mammals at the Philadelphia Zoo.

Ulmer ruled out the possibility that the strange animal was a gorilla both because of their scarcity and their high value. He said the descriptions of the beast seemed to indicate it was a chimpanzee.

Boy Ordered To Pick Up Broken Bottle Cut Hands; Dairy Is Sued

BALTIMORE, Aug. 27 (AP)—Western Maryland Dairy Inc. was named in a $1,500 damage suit brought in City Court today by a 4-year-old and his father on the grounds that the boy injured his hands in carrying out a milk man's orders to pick up jagged pieces of a broken bottle.

The suit alleged one of the dairy's delivery men had dropped and broken an empty bottle last April 6 near the boy's home in Essex and had instructed the child to pick up the pieces.

Elmer Eugene Smith Jr., the 4-year-old, was "accustomed to obeying the commands of his elders" and therefore, picked up the glass fragments, cutting his fingers and arms, the suit said.

The boy sued for $1,000, and his father, Elmer E. Smith, claimed $500.

Navy, Marines Plan Meals 'Like Mother Used To Make'

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27 (AP) — "Meals just like mother used to make will be closer to reality for Marines and sailors . . . "

That's what the Marine Corps said in an official announcement today.

To back up the claim, the Marines and the Navy served up a sample of their experimental "B" ration, made entirely from nonperishable foods, to a hungry pack of newsmen and service personnel on a sun-baked patio over in nearby Virginia.

The menu: chicken-and-macaroni casserole, stewed tomatoes, chocolate cake, coffee. Oh, yes, and split pea soup.

The verdict, reached after a poll of the eating press and the uniformed knife-and-forkers: pretty tasty, but mother still could do better even in a field kitchen.

To dress up the demonstration, a nice-looking lady Marine was on hand—T. Sgt. Felicia Dutka of New Market, N. H. She had a dreadful time. Not with the food but with the flies. They kept biting her legs.

"C'mon, smile—make like you're enjoying it," a photographer pleaded.

Sgt. Dutka bestowed a warm smile on her metal tray of "B" ration. abruptly, the smile faded. She slapped her shin.

"These flies!" she said.

The Defense Department said the new ration will result in "a much more varied diet."

"Although composed primarily of canned and dehydrated foods," the department said, "the meals served in the field as well as to the construction battalions of the Navy and aboard some ships will be more palatable and less monotonous than the meals served as 'B' rations in World War II and in the recent hostilities in Korea."

Peach Market Reaches Peak In This Area

Most Growers Will Have Crops Picked

The market for peaches has reached its peak in this area with prices dropping somewhat from the earlier part of the season, a check of the industry revealed.

The Hampshire Belt Elbertas are being finished up this week, according to R. L. Sumner, manager of Mountain Fruit Sales, Inc., Romney.

Prices being obtained for peaches, FOB shipping point, are now ranging from $2 to $2.25 and an occasional $2.50 a bushel, he said.

The Hampshire Belt south of here annually markets a quarter of a million bushels of peaches.

Many growers are finished picking their peaches, Sumner said, and most will be through by the end of this week.

Local orchards have glutted the important terminal markets in the East and the Mountain Fruit Sales, one of the largest fruit cooperatives in West Virginia has had to seek southern markets, where the peaches are now out of season.

Sumner said the Pittsburgh terminal market, which sets prices for about a 150-mile radius, has been taking peaches on consignment, selling them for whatever price the buyer will pay. This affects the orchardists of this area.

This is an every year occurrence at this time of the season. However, Sumner said the Hampshire growers are getting good prices for fruit that is in good shape and not too perishable.

The next big job on hand for the area orchardists will come next month when the big apple crop starts moving to the markets.

Cub Pack Plans Program Of September Activities

Activities of Cub Scout Pack 8 of St. Mary's School will be stepped up following the opening of school the week after next.

In preparation for the coming program, there will be a meeting of the pack committee and den mothers at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday at the school.

A general pack meeting will be held Friday evening, September 11, at which new members will be enrolled and assigned to dens.

A basket picnic for Cubs and their families was held Sunday at Camp Potomac near Oldtown. A tour of the camp area, games and swimming featured the activities.

A formal presentation of the pack charter was made by Thomas B. Finan and G. F. Bell, Potomac Council executive committeemen.

During the picnic, eight members passed their Bobcat requirements. They will receive their pins at the September 11 meeting. Those passing the tests were Paul Defibaugh, Thomas Hammersmith, Michael Frame, Robert Garlitz, Ray Settle, Michael Clarke and Jack Harper.

Pack 8 has 43 members enrolled. The Cub Committee is composed of Joseph DiGilarmo, Jeremiah Defibaugh, Ned Weisenmiller, Thomas Hammersmith and Ray Settle. The den mothers are Mrs. Otis L. Bennett, Mrs. Marcilla Harper, Mrs. Lela V. Deetz and Mrs. Henry Herald.

The Hawaiian lei consists of eight strands, each of which represents one of the major Hawaiian islands.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 27—(INS)—Here comes another independent company—the woods are full of them. When financing is handy you can look around to see producers, directors and stars arranging package deals.

Just today Frank P. Rosenberg told me he's leaving 20th Century-Fox to start his own company, to be called Colony Pictures, Inc.

He has already bought Robert Buckner's original story called "Royal Flush," a 19th century adventure story with a New Orleans background. Frank says the picture will be shot in early 1954 using wide screen and color.

He hopes to get Gary Cooper—but who doesn't. If Gary Cooper and Clark Gable get all the pictures they are said to be doing, well, they'd have a picture a day.

Frank's current assignment at 20th is "King Of The Khyber Rifles" starring Tyrone Power.

The smouldering Italian star, Silvano Mangano, has been chosen to play "Helen Of Troy" for the Italian company.

The sextatious Mangano's husband, Dino de Laurentis, is producing the picture of the beauty whose face launched a thousand ships.

De Laurentis is now finishing "Ulysses," which the Italian beauty is making with Kirk Douglas. In "Ulysses," Silvano, who is stacked along the lines of Jane Russell, plays the dual role of Penelope, the devoted wife who waits for Ulysses' return, and also Circe, the siren of sirens, whose glance turns men into swine.

Without a shadow of a doubt the busiest and most active independent producer in this town is Paul Gregory.

Now he's signed British Star Robert Newton to go on the road with "Richard III." Newton, who is with the famous Old Vic Theatre in London, and whose "Odd Man Out" brought him straight to Hollywood, has a great reputation in his native land as a fine Shakespearean actor.

Since Suzie Ball couldn't get hotel reservations at Banff, Shelley Winters shared her room and is playing Cupid to Suzan and Dick Long.

Both Marilyn Monroe and Suzan are on crutches — two afflicted beauties. Marilyn has not been able to work because the bone in her leg was fractured. Suzan has been on crutches a long time, but, as I said, she had the courage to go and see the boy friend all by her little self.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Joan Bennett TWA's out of here September 4 for Weisbaden, Germany, for movie locations.

Frankie Sinatra has taken Monty Clift out of his shell and they are reported together at all the New York night spots. They became pals when they made "From Here To Eternity."

Now that Marjorie Main and Percy Kilbride refuse to do any more of the successful "Ma And Pa Kettle" comedies, Howard Christie, U-I producer, is talking to Dorothy Shay with the idea of making the characters younger.

Parties, parties, parties, at least 30 this week! Four in one day—but that's where I get my news. Besides, whoever said I didn't like these festive affairs.

At the Hernando Courtright cocktail party honoring Radie Harries, I had a long talk with her mother, a great woman.

So many of the guests were going on to the Jack Benny soiree. Had a long talk with Lee Ferrero, of INS, at the Benny party. He's just back from Korea . . . and Japan and talks so interestingly, that after I get a rest I want to go there.

All of Errol Flynn's financial worries are not in this country. His picture, "William Tell" is closed down because of a misunderstanding among the backers.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Look directly into the eyes of the person who is talking and you'll improve your ability to listen well!

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Can you listen? If you can, you are a treasure, a cherished friend. Others seek you out and have a real need of you. If you are truly able to listen, you are definitely emotionally mature. "Me" and "mine" is not your only consideration. You are able to consider "thee" and "thou."

Many people think they listen but all they do is keep quiet while another is speaking. Actually they are concentrating on what they want to say next. The give-away lies in the expression of the eyes.

Try This Test

It takes real concentration to listen. If you wish to increase your listening ability, always look directly into the eyes of the person who is talking. Let your face reflect sympathetic emotion characteristics of what is being spoken.

There's another way to step up your listening power and test it at the same time. In conversation, always try to restate the idea or feeling which the person speaking just before you has expressed. You can do so gracefully with some phrase such as, "Yes, I think so, too . . ." and then in a sentence or so see how accurately you can restate what has just been said before adding your own thought. Or, demurring gently, "I can see your point . . .". Then summerize the expressed thought and add your reasons for disagreement or dissent.

If this conversation technique proves that you are listening intelligently, understandingly and skillfully to others, you know that you have a powerful factor of charm operating in your favor.

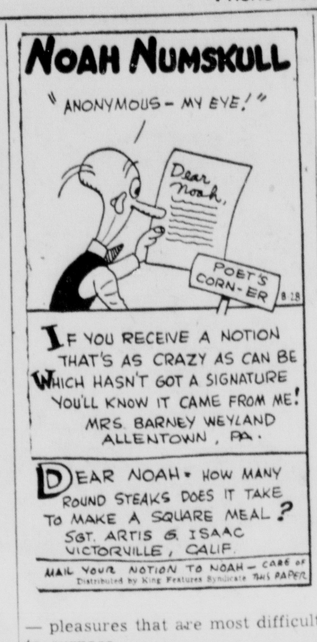

Sought by Others

Being a good listener makes you an excellent companion, drawing others into your circle; it's a tremendous help in weaving friendships that will endure through a lifetime. You will find the attention and regard with which you receive others' opinions automatically accorded your thoughts and ideas in return. Your further reward will be an insight into human nature and an appreciation of what makes life most worth living — pleasures that are most difficult to surpass.

Learn to listen. It is one of the greatest accomplishments — and one that takes a deal of cultivating!

Tales Of The South Of France

CANNES:

Max Schuster coined a mot while he was here: "The Riviera," he said, "is a sunny place where shady characters from under-developed countries bring over-developed girls."

John Crosby

There's a somewhat older expression here to the effect that you will find a shiv under every palm tree, a shiv being a person who will try to do you out of a little money. I encountered my share of shivs and found their patter all remarkably alike. Invariably, it starts with the advice: Don't trust a soul. Don't, that is, trust anyone except the shiv who happens to be giving you the pitch at the moment.

The nationwide strike brought very hard times to the shivs. Everyone had his own hard luck story and barely did the shiv launch his tale of adversity than the sucker eagerly interrupted him with his own. There's nothing more frustrating to a shiv than to have to listen to someone else's hard luck story. If the banks stayed closed much longer, it might even have got to the point where the suckers would start asking the shivs for a loan, horrifying thought.

Strikes are conducted in a rather light-hearted way here. Every night around 8:30 the lights go out for about an hour, mostly to annoy the cooks. At Nice a few nights ago, there was an elaborate festival and parade down the Promenade des Anglais and the chairman of the festival committee marched up to the striking workers.

"Gentlemen," he announced, "I have 4,000 girls in Bikinis in the parade. What good are 4,000 girls in Bikinis if there are no lights?" Naturally the lights stayed on. The electrical workers wanted to see the girls as much as anyone else.

My own favorite strike story is that of a woman in Paris who was adopting a baby. She had completed the rather elaborate adoption procedure and but for the strike would have had the baby

Daily Bridge Lesson

by Shepard Barclay

TIME TO FAVOR A TRUMP

A GUARDED king in one suit is an absolutely certain stopper if the suit is led. But, if you have two suits so headed, there is a danger that one of them may be led and find the ace at your right. That player may then shift suits and lead through your other guarded king toward the ace in the opener's hand. As a consequence, a No Trump contract may be set before you can begin running your set-up tricks, whereas a game bid in your side's best suit might be a sure winner, especially if your side has eight cards of the suit. Such a lineup is a time to favor a trump contract.

	♠ 6 5 ♥ A K Q 9 3 ♦ 10 6 3 2 ♣ 9 4
♠ 8 3 ♥ J 10 ♦ Q J 9 7 ♣ A J 8 6 2	N W E S	♠ 10 9 4 2 ♥ 7 6 2 ♦ A 8 5 ♣ Q 10 7
	♠ A K Q J 7 ♥ 8 5 4 ♦ K 4 ♣ K 5 3

(Dealer: East. North-South vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♠	2 ♣	2 ♥
Pass	2 ♠	3 ♦	3 ♥
Pass	3 NT

That looks like an awfully bold bid by West. Actually he first made an insufficient bid of 2-Diamonds. Upon being obliged to make it sufficient—in the same or another suit—he took something of a chance with his reverse call of 3-Diamonds instead of 3-Clubs. If East had been willing to bid 5-Clubs later as a sacrifice, in event that South took North to 4-Hearts, the move could have paid off, since it would have been unlikely that West would lose more than five tricks, being down three for a cost of 500 points, if doubled, instead of the vulnerable heart game worth more than that. East would have been permitted to do that, under the present Laws, which do not exclude the partner of an insufficient bidder from definite action if the insufficiency is corrected by a minimum lawful bid of the same suit that was named too low.

When South selected No Trumps for the game, however, despite holding three cards of his partner's rebid hearts, East and West both left it in. They were glad, as the diamond Q lead to the A brought a return of the club Q and five tricks there to put the contract down two. Of course, South with two suits guarded only by kings and holding three hearts, should have bid 4-Hearts instead of 3-No Trumps over North's 3-Hearts. But this was another case of a player thinking he was so much better than his partner that he could do better in the wrong contract than the other fellow could in the right one.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 27—(INS)—Here comes another independent company—the woods are full of them. When financing is handy you can look around to see producers, directors and stars arranging package deals.

Just today Frank P. Rosenberg told me he's leaving 20th Century-Fox to start his own company, to be called Colony Pictures, Inc.

He has already bought Robert Buckner's original story called "Royal Flush," a 19th century adventure story with a New Orleans background. Frank says the picture will be shot in early 1954 using wide screen and color.

He hopes to get Gary Cooper—but who doesn't. If Gary Cooper and Clark Gable get all the pictures they are said to be doing, well, they'd have a picture a day.

Frank's current assignment at 20th is "King Of The Khyber Rifles" starring Tyrone Power.

The smouldering Italian star, Silvano Mangano, has been chosen to play "Helen Of Troy" for the Italian company.

The sextatious Mangano's husband, Dino de Laurentis, is producing the picture of the beauty whose face launched a thousand ships.

De Laurentis is now finishing "Ulysses," which the Italian beauty is making with Kirk Douglas. In "Ulysses," Silvano, who is stacked along the lines of Jane Russell, plays the dual role of Penelope, the devoted wife who waits for Ulysses' return, and also Circe, the siren of sirens, whose glance turns men into swine.

Without a shadow of a doubt the busiest and most active independent producer in this town is Paul Gregory.

Now he's signed British Star Robert Newton to go on the road with "Richard III." Newton, who is with the famous Old Vic Theatre in London, and whose "Odd Man Out" brought him straight to Hollywood, has a great reputation in his native land as a fine Shakespearean actor.

Charles Laughton will direct Newton and the play is being readied now for winter production.

Since Suzie Ball couldn't get hotel reservations at Banff, Shelley Winters shared her room and is playing Cupid to Suzan and Dick Long.

Both Marilyn Monroe and Suzan are on crutches — two afflicted beauties. Marilyn has not been able to work because the bone in her leg was fractured. Suzan has been on crutches a long time, but, as I said, she had the courage to go and see the boy friend all by her little self.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Joan Bennett TWA's out of here September 4 for Weisbaden, Germany, for movie locations.

Frankie Sinatra has taken Monty Clift out of his shell and they are reported together at all the New York night spots. They became pals when they made "From Here To Eternity."

Now that Marjorie Main and Percy Kilbride refuse to do any more of the successful "Ma And Pa Kettle" comedies, Howard Christie, U-I producer, is talking to Dorothy Shay with the idea of making the characters younger.

Parties, parties, parties, at least 30 this week! Four in one day—but that's where I get my news. Besides, whoever said I didn't like these festive affairs.

At the Hernando Courtright cocktail party honoring Radie Harries, I had a long talk with her mother, a great woman.

So many of the guests were going on to the Jack Benny soiree. Had a long talk with Lee Ferrero, of INS, at the Benny party. He's just back from Korea . . . and Japan and talks so interestingly, that after I get a rest I want to go there.

Ginny Simms' housewarming was the same day, and I fell in love with her modern house which is a part of a project.

All of Errol Flynn's financial worries are not in this country. His picture, "William Tell" is closed down because of a misunderstanding among the backers.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Yesterday's Cryptoquote: I WOULDN'T ABASE MYSELF BY DESCENDING TO HOLD NO CONVERSATION WITH HIM—DICKENS.

Distributed by King Features Syndicate

Look directly into the eyes of the person who is talking and you'll improve your ability to listen well!

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Can you listen? If you can, you are a treasure, a cherished friend. Others seek you out and have a real need of you. If you are truly able to listen, you are definitely emotionally mature. "Me" and "mine" is not your only consideration. You are able to consider "thee" and "thou."

Many people think they listen but all they do is keep quiet while another is speaking. Actually they are concentrating on what they want to say next. The give-away lies in the expression of the eyes.

Try This Test

It takes real concentration to listen. If you wish to increase your listening ability, always look directly into the eyes of the person who is talking. Let your face reflect sympathetic emotion characteristics of what is being spoken.

There's another way to step up your listening power and test it at the same time. In conversation, always try to restate the idea or feeling which the person speaking just before you has expressed. You can do so gracefully with some phrase such as, "Yes, I think so, too . . ." and then in a sentence or so see how accurately you can restate what has just been said before adding your own thought. Or, demurring gently, "I can see your point . . .". Then summerize the expressed thought and add your reasons for disagreement or dissent.

If this conversation technique proves that you are listening intelligently, understandingly and skillfully to others, you know that you have a powerful factor of charm operating in your favor.

Sought by Others

Being a good listener makes you an excellent companion, drawing others into your circle; it's a tremendous help in weaving friendships that will endure through a lifetime. You will find the attention and regard with which you receive others' opinions automatically accorded your thoughts and ideas in return. Your further reward will be an insight into human nature and an appreciation of what makes life most worth living — pleasures that are most difficult to surpass.

Learn to listen. It is one of the greatest accomplishments — and one that takes a deal of cultivating!

Tops Them All!
We have in our garage a 1946 Chrysler Windsor 7-passenger 4 door sedan that is in such exceptional condition it is amazing! Honest folks, this car is practically new. It has only been driven 27,000 miles and looks like it has hardly been out of the garage. The brilliant dark blue finish is without a scratch and the chrome trim is perfect. The spotless interior is a dream in blue and chrome with seat covers that show very little wear. The car is equipped with radio and heater and the motor runs like a charm. This is an ideal car for a large family or for anyone who hauls riders to and from work. We've never seen anything like it for a car 7 years old and we'll bet you never have either. If you want to latch on to the bargain of a lifetime, you'd better hurry.

Tales Of The South Of France

CANNES:

Max Schuster coined a mot while he was here: "The Riviera," he said, "is a sunny place where shady characters from under-developed countries bring over-developed girls."

John Crosby

There's a somewhat older expression here to the effect that you will find a shiv under every palm tree, a shiv being a person who will try to do you out of a little money. I encountered my share of shivs and found their patter all remarkably alike. Invariably, it starts with the advice: Don't trust a soul. Don't, that is, trust anyone except the shiv who happens to be giving you the pitch at the moment.

The nationwide strike brought very hard times to the shivs. Everyone had his own hard luck story and barely did the shiv launch his tale of adversity than the sucker eagerly interrupted him with his own. There's nothing more frustrating to a shiv than to have to listen to someone else's hard luck story. If the banks stayed closed much longer, it might even have got to the point where the suckers would start asking the shivs for a loan, horrifying thought.

Strikes are conducted in a rather light-hearted way here. Every night around 8:30 the lights go out for about an hour, mostly to annoy the cooks. At Nice a few nights ago, there was an elaborate festival and parade down the Promenade des Anglais and the chairman of the festival committee marched up to the striking workers.

"Gentlemen," he announced, "I have 4,000 girls in Bikinis in the parade. What good are 4,000 girls in Bikinis if there are no lights?" Naturally the lights stayed on. The electrical workers wanted to see the girls as much as anyone else.

My own favorite strike story is that of a woman in Paris who was adopting a baby. She had completed the rather elaborate adoption procedure and but for the strike would have had the baby

Daily Bridge Lesson

by Shepard Barclay

TIME TO FAVOR A TRUMP

A GUARDED king in one suit is an absolutely certain stopper if the suit is led. But, if you have two suits so headed, there is a danger that one of them may be led and find the ace at your right. That player may then shift suits and lead through your other guarded king toward the ace in the opener's hand. As a consequence, a No Trump contract may be set before you can begin running your set-up tricks, whereas a game bid in your side's best suit might be a sure winner, especially if your side has eight cards of the suit. Such a lineup is a time to favor a trump contract.

	♠ 6 5 ♥ A K Q 9 3 ♦ 10 6 3 2 ♣ 9 4
♠ 8 3 ♥ J 10 ♦ Q J 9 7 ♣ A J 8 6 2	N W E S	♠ 10 9 4 2 ♥ 7 6 2 ♦ A 8 5 ♣ Q 10 7
	♠ A K Q J 7 ♥ 8 5 4 ♦ K 4 ♣ K 5 3

(Dealer: East. North-South vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♠	2 ♣	2 ♥
Pass	2 ♠	3 ♦	3 ♥
Pass	3 NT

That looks like an awfully bold bid by West. Actually he first made an insufficient bid of 2-Diamonds. Upon being obliged to make it sufficient—in the same or another suit—he took something of a chance with his reverse call of 3-Diamonds instead of 3-Clubs. If East had been willing to bid 5-Clubs later as a sacrifice, in event that South took North to 4-Hearts, the move could have paid off, since it would have been unlikely that West would lose more than five tricks, being down three for a cost of 500 points, if doubled, instead of the vulnerable heart game worth more than that. East would have been permitted to do that, under the present Laws, which do not exclude the partner of an insufficient bidder from definite action if the insufficiency is corrected by a minimum lawful bid of the same suit that was named too low.

When South selected No Trumps for the game, however, despite holding three cards of his partner's rebid hearts, East and West both left it in. They were glad, as the diamond Q lead to the A brought a return of the club Q and five tricks there to put the contract down two. Of course, South with two suits guarded only by kings and holding three hearts, should have bid 4-Hearts instead of 3-No Trumps over North's 3-Hearts. But this was another case of a player thinking he was so much better than his partner that he could do better in the wrong contract than the other fellow could in the right one.

Tomorrow's Problem

	♠ J 8 2 ♥ K J 9 6 ♦ 10 8 4 2 ♣ K 10
♠ 3 ♥ A 10 5 ♦ 4 3 2 ♣ J 7 5	N W E S	♠ A 10 9 ♥ 6 5 4 ♦ None ♣ 9 8 7 4 2
	♠ K Q 7 ♥ Q 8 7 ♦ A K Q 9 ♣ A Q 3

(Dealer: West. North-South vulnerable.)

If East opens here with 1-Spade, South doubles and West calls 2-Hearts, how should the rest of the auction go?

Rails Hit Hard As Market Drops For 4th Day In Row

NEW YORK, Aug. 27 (AP) — The stock market declined today for the fourth consecutive time with railroads displaying the greatest weakness.

The market has gone down in eight of the past ten sessions, and it currently is near the lowest levels of the year on average. Gains and losses usually were held within a one point range, although a few made much greater changes without altering the overall pattern.

Railroads, closely watched as a bellwether, hit a new average low for the year, and the rails suffered setbacks all around. The steels also were down, as were the coppers, rubbers, chemicals, and utilities.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks declined 50 cents at $104.80. That is only 60 cents higher than the low of the year touched June 9. The market was off 30 cents yesterday, and in the past ten sessions it has shown a decline of $4.70.

The railroad average today was off $1.00 and reached its third consecutive new low of the year. The industrial component was off 40 cents and the utilities off 20 cents.

The fall of the market brought forth a variety of excuses. By and large the Wall Street attitude is that the market is going through a period of adjusting itself to the more moderate business pace expected by many for the rest of this year and next.

The list today was composed of 1,069 individual issues, 11 less than yesterday. Of these, 179 advanced and 613 declined. There was one new high for the year—New York Shipbuilding—and 152 new lows touched during the day. Volume came to 1,290,000 shares.

Radio And Television

days ago. There were no trains running and they couldn't get the baby to Paris. She's the only woman I know whose motherhood was delayed by a strike. Still, strike or no strike, the French pride themselves on providing you anything you want for your pleasure. The people, especially the rich, want the funniest things. At Hotel du Cap at Antives there are some cabanas, small plain wooden structures equipped with camp cots and not much else. There aren't very many of them and every one, for some darned reason, wanted one. Andre Sella, the proprietor, has been offered as much as a 100,000 francs for reservations.

"Millionaires," he will tell you with a shrug, "like to pay the price of a maharajah to live like boy scouts." A truer observation was never made. Once Sella heard of a Jamaican millionaire who liked to watch deep sea divers at work. Everywhere the Jamaican would go he'd order a deep sea diver. When he got to the Hotel du Cap, Sella cannilly had one on him. "Our staff deep sea diver," he told the Jamaican imperturbably. "We keep one at the disposal of our customers."

Some time ago there was a Texas week on the Riviera and the French reputation for imperturbability got a rather nasty jolt. Flown in for the occasion were a box full of horned toads, an ugly beast peculiar to Texas, which it was felt would make the Texans feel at home. At a banquet arranged for Texans, a French woman picked up one of the toads and put it on her shoulder where it looked like a rather odd piece of jewelry.

One of the Texans told the French woman that horned toads liked to eat live flies so the lady summoned the waiter.

"A fly, please," she said.

"A what, madame?" asked the waiter.

"A fly," she repeated.

The waiter went to the head waiter. "Madame wants a fly," he said.

"Well, get her a fly," said the head waiter sternly. They're used to odd requests around here.

Minutes later, the waiter brought madame a dead fly on a plate, nearly garnished with lettuce leaves.

"I don't want a dead fly," said madame. "I want a live fly."

The waiter went back to the head waiter. "Madame wants a live fly."

This was too much for the head waiter. He went over to her and with what I consider admirable delicacy, he said: "I quite understand why madame wants a live fly. But might I suggest Dubonnet?"

Tops Them All!
We have in our garage a 1946 Chrysler Windsor 7-passenger 4 door sedan that is in such exceptional condition it is amazing! Honest folks, this car is practically new. It has only been driven 27,000 miles and looks like it has hardly been out of the garage. The brilliant dark blue finish is without a scratch and the chrome trim is perfect. The spotless interior is a dream in blue and chrome with seat covers that show very little wear. The car is equipped with radio and heater and the motor runs like a charm. This is an ideal car for a large family or for anyone who hauls riders to and from work. We've never seen anything like it for a car 7 years old and we'll bet you never have either. If you want to latch on to the bargain of a lifetime, you'd better hurry.

Council To Set Vacation Policy For Employes

Municipal Workers Present Grievances

The Mayor and City Council last night in a stormy session with representatives of Municipal Workers Local 812 agreed to set a defnite city-wide policy concerning vacations of employes and if necessary amend present city laws to pro-rate vacation time and pay.

In a meeting called in Mayor Roy W. Eves' office, the Council met with Calvin Shipe, president of the city workers' union, to air several grievances concerning vacations.

Shipe presented the case of two city employes, Samuel Brady, 113 Utah Avenue who is employed in the Street Department, and Noah Brown, 70-year-old colored man who recently retired after 18 years of service with the city in the street cleaning department.

Used Sick Leave Basis

Shipe pointed out that Brady, who returned to city employ last December after almost two years of military service in Korea, was entitled to full vacation of 15 days while he had been allowed to take only five days by his department superiors, based on the fact that he had worked only eight months since his return to his job.

Commissioner of Streets and Public Property Lucile W. Roeder said her payroll clerk, John Wilson, had granted Brady his vacation time based on time served the same as sick leave is granted.

She pointed out, however, that because each department had a different policy toward vacations she thought the matter should be turned over to City Solicitor Thomas B. Finan for a ruling.

Finan said that, according to city law a man is entitled to 15 days after one year's employ with the city but that nothing is said about military leave of absence or whether vacation time can be accumulated.

He then noted that various departments of the city in the past have been pro-rating vacation time, allowing employes to take vacations whenever possible more as a benefit than according to law.

He continued that the city can take the stand that no vacation time need be allotted according to law until an employe terminates a full year of work. Finan then said he felt anyone in military service deserves full vacation time regardless.

Ordinance Limited

When Mayor Eves pointed out the City Code specifies that any man in military service should not be classified as having lost any time from work Finan told him that referred to classification and seniority rights only.

Finan also cited instances of several firemen being given vacation time they had earned before retiring. He felt that any employe who worked a full year was entitled to vacation with pay regardless of whether he retired or resigned afterwards.

Eves forwarded the suggestion that the council adopt a plan whereby an employe work one year before being allowed a vacation regardless at what time of year he begins working for the city. Then, he said, his vacation should be pro-rated until the first of the next calendar year.

He then asked the council members if they agreed to give Brady his remaining 10 days vacation, thus establishing a policy regarding all military men as being entitled to the full vacation time of 15 days.

The council members agreed unanimously with the suggestion.

When Shipe then brought up the case of Brown, the ring-ding began.

The union president insisted that Brown, who had taken 20 days vacation this year before retiring as of July 31 after 18 years service and then was docked five days pay because he took more vacation time than he was allowed, should be paid back the extra five days because of the hardship created by the short paycheck.

Vacation Time Disputed

Brown, who attended the session, insisted he had been told by Andrew Heller, street superintendent, he could take the extra time because he had only taken eight of his allotted 15 days in 1952.

Heller vehemently denied having given him the extra time and told the Council Brown could have taken his 1952 vacation if he had asked for it. He also said Brown was not allowed by law to accumulate vacation time from one year to the next. He was given accord to this statement by Finan.

Mrs. Roeder said her department clerks could not keep figures in their heads about men's vacation time which accounted for the error of letting Brown have the extra five days.

Brown insisted also that the payroll clerk had docked him seven days' pay, which Wilson denied.

Shipe demanded Brown be paid the extra five days' pay, amounting to $33.60.

Bookkeeping Criticized

When Eves asked Wilson why the man had been allowed to take too many days, Wilson explained the payroll is made up every two weeks and the error wasn't discovered until the next payroll time.

Eves then commented that there was some loose bookkeeping if the error was not discovered right away, and said he felt Brown should not be penalized because two timekeepers had erred.

The Mayor then said supervisors of each department should know how much vacation time is coming to their employes and should

Farm Queen At Fair

Miss Marie Edith Glotfelty, 16-year-old Accident girl who recently was named Garrett County Farm Queen, is presented a gift by Oakland Mayor Joseph Hinebaugh as she was introduced last night at the Greater Cumberland Fair. Yesterday was Garrett County Day at the fair.

Zoning Board Grants One Of Three Appeals

The Board of Zoning Appeals last night granted one application, gave tentative approval on a second and deferred action on the third.

Granted was the application of George Thrush to build a four-room bungalow on Lots 124 and 125 of Forster Avenue. The application was referred by the Building Engineer since sufficient side yards would not be available.

Charles Paul Roeder, chairman, moved that the permit be granted, and the motion was seconded by William B. Orndorff, member. Thrush explained one side would have a 10-foot side yard, with eight feet on the alley side.

A decision will be given soon on the application of Glendon A. Ralston to build a three-room and bath dwelling at the rear of 620 Laing Avenue.

C. R. Nuzum, city engineer, said the application was referred since there is nothing in the code to cover two dwellings on one lot.

Roeder said he did not see how the request could be refused, since the property is in a business district, and the board promised a decision before next week, when Ralston planned to begin construction.

Nuzum said the property would almost border, but miss, the proposed route for the Industrial Highway, which is scheduled to get underway during the first four years of the SRC's 12-year program.

The board gave its sanction, pending a study of the deed, to John J. Foley's application to enclose the front porch of his home at 509 Prince George Street.

Roeder said he has checked the property and found the porch would still be over 21 feet from the building line, and thus comply with the code.

But the street has a 30-foot building line restriction which may not have expired, and officials suggested that the deed be checked to see that the work would not violate the agreement.

Injured Driver's Condition 'Good'

The driver of a car which struck a parked tractor-trailer early yesterday on Henderson Avenue was in "good" condition last night at Sacred Heart Hospital.

Three young women who were graduated from the hospital's school of nursing Wednesday night were treated for minor injuries following the crash.

Frank Lyle Chamberlain, 37, of 308 Cecelia Street, sustained a possible head injury and minor injuries when his car collided with the truck, operated by James Gethers, 27, of Washington.

Passengers in the car were Miss Shirley Ann Wallace, 820 Shawnee Avenue, who suffered shock; Miss Leah Elizabeth Weimer, 21, Berlin, Pa., who had knee lacerations and shock, and Miss Sarah Leona Reagan, Mt. Savage, who had bruises of the forehead and face.

Officer Charles E. Cubbage said he had been unable to question Chamberlain immediately after the accident because of Chamberlain's dazed condition.

Laborers Plan Picnic

The annual picnic of Laborers Local 616 (AFL), will be held Sunday, September 6, beginning at 10 a. m., at Smouse's Beach, according to Kenneth Grimes, business agent.

BULLETIN

At an early hour this morning an Associated Press dispatch from Washington, D. C., stated the Communications Workers of America (CIO) would strike at 5 a. m. today in Washington, Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia.

At the same time, however, the Associated Press in Baltimore said the CWA and the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company negotiators were still in session at the Sheraton-Belvedere. It was also claimed that the union had lowered its demands and progress by the negotiators was indicated.

This was interpreted to mean that the strike call would not affect much of Maryland, only the fringe area around the District of Columbia. If the Maryland union and company could get together on a contract, spokesman said, there would be no strike here.

There was only one other problem. The Maryland Telephone Union, made up of telephone operators, was also negotiating for a new contract and there were rumblings that the operators in the state were getting ready to walkout.

Marcel Chatain, local spokesman for the CWA, said, "If the girls strike, we will honor their picket lines."

Commissioners Will Attend Convention

A five-man delegation from Allegany County will leave this morning for Ocean City to attend the two-day convention of the State Association of County Commissioners.

Attending from here will be William H. Lemmert, board president; James Holmes and James Orr, commissioners; Gorman E. Getty, attorney to the commissioners, and James G. Stevenson, board clerk.

New Suit Filed Concerning Lot Near Rawlings

A new suit growing out of the long-standing dispute over the Mill Run Lot at Rawlings was filed yesterday in Allegany County Circuit Court by Mrs. Ada B. Collins of Rawlings against William R. Darr, now confined in the Maryland House of Correction, and Manson R. Durr and Isabelle Durr, his wife, both of Rawlings.

In the new declaration, filed for Mrs. Collins by Attorney William H. Geppert, it is stressed that she purchased a 1,400 acre tract near Rawlings. She further notes that two-and-a-half years ago, February 21, 1951, she filed an ejectment suit in an effort to clear the title to the Mill Run Lot.

This case finally was heard in Circuit Court May 25. Associate Judge George Henderson, who presided, filed an opinion July 1 which ruled that neither the plaintiff nor the defendants had clear title to the lot. He added that title still rested with Norma Rawlings Wentz and Mary Rawlings Lanham, who inherited part of the estate of Alexander Shaw. However, as between Mrs. Collins and Darr, Judge Henderson decided that Darr had a better claim because of adverse possession over a 20 year period.

Mrs. Collins filed notice of appeal to the Maryland Court of Appeals in the ejectment case August 4.

A new development in the case, included in the new declaration, is a statement that since Judge Henderson's opinion was filed, Mrs. Collins has acquired title to the Mill Run Lot from Norma R. Wentz, Mary R. Lanham and Walter C. Capper, the surviving trustee of the Shaw estate.

Charging that the defendants have wrongfully entered upon her property, Mrs. Collins asks $5,000 damages in her latest suit.

Fire Threatens Miller Orchard At Spring Gap

Few Fruit Trees Are Destroyed

Volunteer firemen and foresters saved part of a large orchard from destruction yesterday afternoon when a roaring forest fire burned over an acre of woods in the Spring Gap section.

The blaze, which started at about 3:30 p. m., flashed through the tinder-dry woods near the Gilbert Miller Orchard, threatening acres of fruit trees before it was brought under control.

District 16 Volunteer Fire Company hurried to the scene and began tapping onto the orchard's water lines and pumping apparatus.

By the time the blaze-battlers got a hose on the fire, said Chief Van Malone, the flames had swept over about an acre of forest land across a narrow road from the orchard.

Fire leaped across the gap in a few places, destroying at least two fruit trees and probably damaging others.

A forest warden, who had received word of the fire on the two-way radio in his car, was first on the scene and began helping orchard workers fight the blaze.

Had there been a breeze blowing, Chief Malone declared, the orchard probably would have suffered major damage. It was so dry, said Malone, that even the ground burned.

In Cumberland yesterday afternoon, East Side firemen put out two grass fires, neither of which caused any damage. One, shortly after noon, was on McNamee's Hill. The other, shortly before 6 p. m., was on McKaig's Hill near the Naval Armory.

Homecoming Planned For Local POWs

A homecoming celebration is being arranged by local veterans' organizations in honor of two local soldiers who recently were released from Communist PW camps in Korea.

The veterans are Cpl. Robert L. McGreevy, 22, and Pfc. William H. Rhodes, 31. McGreevy is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick McGreevy, 240 North Mechanic Street. Rhodes' mother, Mrs. Mary Jane Rhodes, lives at Benjamin Banneker Homes, Frederick Street.

Both are expected to reach the West Coast Saturday aboard the transport General W. F. Hase and arrive here Sunday by train after flying most of the way home.

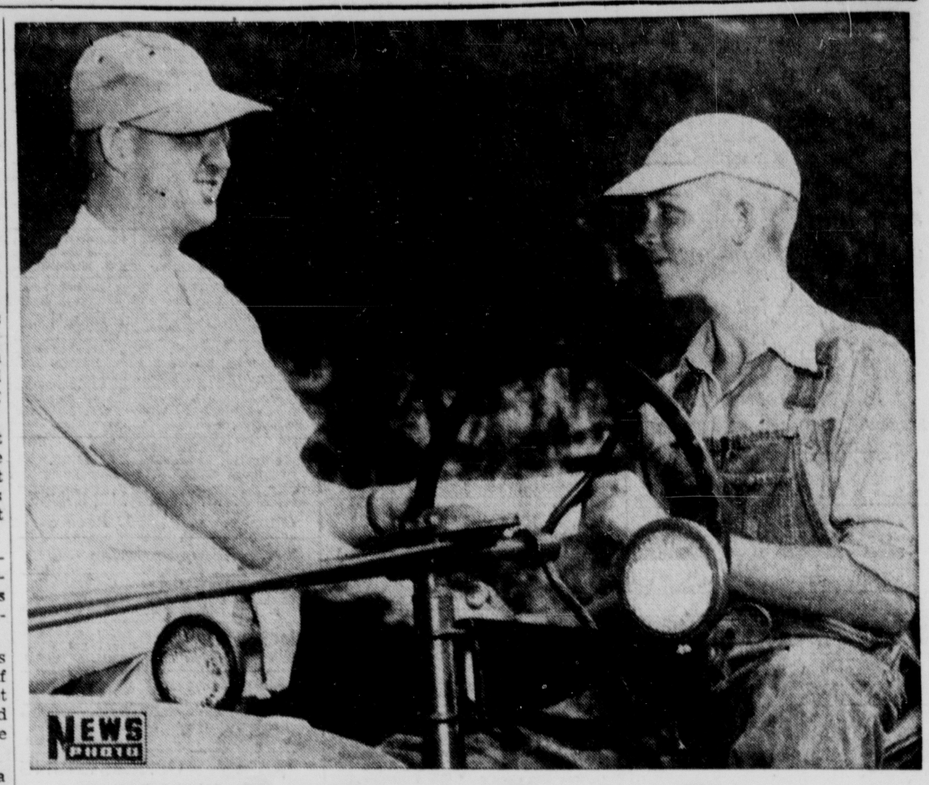

Fulton Myers Post 153, American Legion, will meet tonight at the post home to complete plans for its part of the homecoming observance. Members of the post, its auxiliary, and the post drum corps will attend the meeting.

Also expected to take part in the celebration are Fort Cumberland Post 13, American Legion; Henry Hart Post 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and other groups. Final arrangements will be made at a general meeting within the next few days.

One other Cumberlander remains in the hands of the Reds. He is Sgt. First Class Gerald K. Cummings, son of Mrs. Ethel Emmart, 335 Central Avenue.

Meeting Is Deferred

Operating Engineers Local 37-B (AFL) will hold its next meeting on September 12 at 7:30 p. m. in Dairy Workers Hall. A meeting scheduled September 5 has been deferred due to the Labor Day holidays.

He's Still Tractor Driving Champ

Midland Boy Wins Tractor Driving Test Second Time

Edward Miller, 15-year old Midland farm boy, yesterday out drove 10 other Allegany County youths to win the annual 4-H Tractor Operators' Contest at the Cumberland Fair for the second successive year.

Because he won the county contest, Miller received a $15 cash prize and also will try for the state tractor driving championship at the Timonium State Fair Saturday, September 5. Last year the Midland boy was eighth in state competition.

The driving competition consisted of four parts. Spotting drawbar, each boy had to drive his tractor from the starting line, then to the machine to be pulled and then fastened the tongue of the device to the tractor. Then each boy had to drive his tractor with machine hitched over an obstacle course which simulated road and gates. Then they had to back the machines into place and finally belted up the tractor to a machine and operated it.

Thomas Buser of Warrior Mountain gave Miller his stiffest competition and gained the $12 second prize. Charles Robosson of Flintstone got the $10 third prize and William Heavner, also of Flintstone, received the $8 fourth prize.

Five dollar cash prizes also were won by the boys who placed fifth through eighth. They were James Miltenberger, Ridgeley; Argyle Wilson, Oldtown; Dale White, Oldtown Road, and Carl Grabenstein, Winchester Road.

Other contestants were Herbert Shipe, Spring Gap; Philip Carder and Leo Carder, both of Oldtown, according to Assistant County Agent Joseph M. Steger.

Mrs. Tennant Named Centre St. Principal

Lisanti Appointed To Teaching Post

Mrs. Eleanor Porter Tennant of Lonaconing will be the new principal of Centre Street School when the 1953-54 school term starts Tuesday, September 8, according to Superintendent of School Ralph R. Webster.

Mrs. Tennant's promotion is one of the results of the resignation of George E. Klinkhammer as principal of East Side School to take a teaching position in Anne Arundel County. Miss Agnes Lauder, also of Lonaconing, who has been principal of Centre Street School the past five years, was advanced to the principalship left vacant by Klinkhammer's resignation.

First Grade Teacher

The new Centre Street School principal gained a reputation as one of Allegany County's best elementary school teachers during 19 years as first grade teacher at Virginia Avenue School.

A native of Eckhart, Mrs. Tennant is a graduate of Frostburg State Teachers College and has done graduate work at Columbia University. She is now entering her second year as president of the Allegany County Branch of the Association For Childhood Education. She also has been a leader in Child Study Groups in the county.

Listanti To Teach

Webster also announced the appointment of Samuel Lisanti, 126 West Third Street, as an elementary school teacher. Listanti will divide his time between Gephart and Columbia Street Schools, teaching half day in each.

The superintendent explained

Mystery Woman Is Arrested At Bus Terminal

City Police are trying to solve the mystery of "Mary Doe," a silent woman who showed up here almost broke late Tuesday night and has been in jail ever since.

Who she is and where she came from Miss Doe isn't saying.

All the police know about her for sure is that she refused to leave a bus terminal waiting room when the place was closing up for the night.

Somebody called police, and Officer Harry A. Iser picked up the woman and booked her at City Jail for investigation.

Detectives who questioned her later brushed aside the possibility that she might be an amnesia victim. She talks, they say, but when the conversation gets around to her identity, she clams up.

Police took her fingerprints and sent them to the FBI Laboratory in Washington just in case the mystery woman might have a record somewhere.

"Miss Doe" is about 40, has brown eyes, and was wearing a corduroy jacket, slacks and tennis shoes when she was arrested.

Rails Hit Hard As Market Drops For 4th Day In Row

NEW YORK, Aug. 27 (AP) — The stock market declined today for the fourth consecutive time with railroads displaying the greatest weakness.

The market has gone down in eight of the past ten sessions, and it currently is near the lowest levels of the year on average. Gains and losses usually were held within a one point range, although a few made much greater changes without altering the overall pattern.

Railroads, closely watched as a bellwether, hit a new average low for the year, and the rails suffered setbacks all around. The steels also were down, as were the coppers, rubbers, chemicals, and utilities.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks declined 50 cents at $104.80. That is only 60 cents higher than the low of the year touched June 9. The market was off 30 cents yesterday, and in the past ten sessions it has shown a decline of $4.70.

The railroad average today was off $1.00 and reached its third consecutive new low of the year. The industrial component was off 40 cents and the utilities off 20 cents.

The fall of the market brought forth a variety of excuses. By and large the Wall Street attitude is that the market is going through a period of adjusting itself to the more moderate business pace expected by many for the rest of this year and next.

The list today was composed of 1,069 individual issues, 11 less than yesterday. Of these, 179 advanced and 613 declined. There was one new high for the year—New York Shipbuilding—and 152 new lows touched during the day. Volume came to 1,290,000 shares.

days ago. There were no trains running and they couldn't get the baby to Paris. She's the only woman I know whose motherhood was delayed by a strike. Still, strike or no strike, the French pride themselves on providing you anything you want for your pleasure. The people, especially the rich, want the funniest things. At Hotel du Cap at Antives there are some cabanas, small plain wooden structures equipped with camp cots and not much else. There aren't very many of them and every one, for some darned reason, wanted one. Andre Sella, the proprietor, has been offered as much as a 100,000 francs for reservations.

"Millionaires," he will tell you with a shrug, "like to pay the price of a maharajah to live like boy scouts." A truer observation was never made. Once Sella heard of a Jamaican millionaire who liked to watch deep sea divers at work. Everywhere the Jamaican would go he'd order a deep sea diver. When he got to the Hotel du Cap, Sella cannilly had one on him. "Our staff deep sea diver," he told the Jamaican imperturbably. "We keep one at the disposal of our customers."

Some time ago there was a Texas week on the Riviera and the French reputation for imperturbability got a rather nasty jolt. Flown in for the occasion were a box full of horned toads, an ugly beast peculiar to Texas, which it was felt would make the Texans feel at home. At a banquet arranged for Texans, a French woman picked up one of the toads and put it on her shoulder where it looked like a rather odd piece of jewelry.

One of the Texans told the French woman that horned toads liked to eat live flies so the lady summoned the waiter.

"A fly, please," she said.

"A what, madame?" asked the waiter.

"A fly," she repeated.

The waiter went to the head waiter. "Madame wants a fly," he said.

"Well, get her a fly," said the head waiter sternly. They're used to odd requests around here.

Minutes later, the waiter brought madame a dead fly on a plate, nearly garnished with lettuce leaves.

"I don't want a dead fly," said madame. "I want a live fly."

The waiter went back to the head waiter. "Madame wants a live fly."

This was too much for the head waiter. He went over to her and with what I consider admirable delicacy, he said: "I quite understand why madame wants a live fly. But might I suggest Dubonnet?"

Council To Set Vacation Policy For Employes

Municipal Workers Present Grievances

The Mayor and City Council last night in a stormy session with representatives of Municipal Workers Local 812 agreed to set a definite city-wide policy concerning vacations of employes and if necessary amend present city laws to pro-rate vacation time and pay.

In a meeting called in Mayor Roy W. Eves' office, the Council met with Calvin Shipe, president of the city workers' union, to air several grievances concerning vacations.

Shipe presented the case of two city employes, Samuel Brady, 113 Utah Avenue who is employed in the Street Department, and Noah Brown, 70-year-old colored man who recently retired after 18 years of service with the city in the street cleaning department.

Used Sick Leave Basis

Shipe pointed out that Brady, who returned to city employ last December after almost two years of military service in Korea, was entitled to full vacation of 15 days while he had been allowed to take only five days by his department superiors, based on the fact that he had worked only eight months since his return to his job.

Commissioner of Streets and Public Property Lucile W. Roeder said her payroll clerk, John Wilson, had granted Brady his vacation time based on time served the same as sick leave is granted.

She pointed out, however, that because each department had a different policy toward vacations she thought the matter should be turned over to City Solicitor Thomas B. Finan for a ruling.

Finan said that, according to city law a man is entitled to 15 days after one year's employ with the city but that nothing is said about military leave of absence or whether vacation time can be accumulated.

He then noted that various departments of the city in the past have been pro-rating vacation time, allowing employes to take vacations whenever possible more as a benefit than according to law.

He continued that the city can take the stand that no vacation time need be allotted according to law until an employe terminates a full year of work. Finan then said he felt anyone in military service deserves full vacation time regardless.

Ordinance Limited

When Mayor Eves pointed out the City Code specifies that any man in military service should not be classified as having lost any time from work Finan told him that referred to classification and seniority rights only.

Finan also cited instances of several firemen being given vacation time they had earned before retiring. He felt that any employe who worked a full year was entitled to vacation with pay regardless of whether he retired or resigned afterwards.

Eves forwarded the suggestion that the council adopt a plan whereby an employe work one year before being allowed a vacation regardless at what time of year he begins working for the city. Then, he said, his vacation should be pro-rated until the first of the next calendar year.

He then asked the council members if they agreed to give Brady his remaining 10 days vacation, thus establishing a policy regarding all military men as being entitled to the full vacation time of 15 days.

The council members agreed unanimously with the suggestion.

When Shipe then brought up the case of Brown, the ring-ding began.

The union president insisted that Brown, who had taken 20 days vacation this year before retiring as of July 31 after 18 years service and then was docked five days pay because he took more vacation time than he was allowed, should be paid back the extra five days because of the hardship created by the short paycheck.

Vacation Time Disputed

Brown, who attended the session, insisted he had been told by Andrew Heller, street superintendent, he could take the extra time because he had only taken eight of his allotted 15 days in 1952.

Heller vehemently denied having given him the extra time and told the Council Brown could have taken his 1952 vacation if he had asked for it. He also said Brown was not allowed by law to accumulate vacation time from one year to the next. He was given accord to this statement by Finan.

Mrs. Roeder said her department clerks could not keep figures in their heads about men's vacation time which accounted for the error of letting Brown have the extra five days.

Brown insisted also that the payroll clerk had docked him seven days' pay, which Wilson denied.

Shipe demanded Brown be paid the extra five days' pay, amounting to $33.60.

Bookkeeping Criticized

When Eves asked Wilson why the man had been allowed to take too many days, Wilson explained the payroll is made up every two weeks and the error wasn't discovered until the next payroll time.

Eves then commented that there was some loose bookkeeping if the error was not discovered right away, and said he felt Brown should not be penalized because two timekeepers had erred.

The Mayor then said supervisors of each department should know how much vacation time is coming to their employes and should

Farm Queen At Fair

Miss Marie Edith Glotfelty, 16-year-old Accident girl who recently was named Garrett County Farm Queen, is presented a gift by Oakland Mayor Joseph Hinebaugh as she was introduced last night at the Greater Cumberland Fair. Yesterday was Garrett County Day at the fair.

Zoning Board Grants One Of Three Appeals

The Board of Zoning Appeals last night granted one application, gave tentative approval on a second and deferred action on the third.

Granted was the application of George Thrush to build a four-room bungalow on Lots 124 and 125 of Forster Avenue. The application was referred by the Building Engineer since sufficient side yards would not be available.

Charles Paul Roeder, chairman, moved that the permit be granted, and the motion was seconded by William B. Orndorff, member. Thrush explained one side would have a 10-foot side yard, with eight feet on the alley side.

A decision will be given soon on the application of Glendon A. Ralston to build a three-room and bath dwelling at the rear of 620 Laing Avenue.

C. R. Nuzum, city engineer, said the application was referred since there is nothing in the code to cover two dwellings on one lot.

Roeder said he did not see how the request could be refused, since the property is in a business district, and the board promised a decision before next week, when Ralston planned to begin construction.

Nuzum said the property would almost border, but miss, the proposed route for the Industrial Highway, which is scheduled to get underway during the first four years of the SRC's 12-year program.

The board gave its sanction, pending a study of the deed, to John J. Foley's application to enclose the front porch of his home at 509 Prince George Street.

Roeder said he has checked the property and found the porch would still be over 21 feet from the building line, and thus comply with the code.

But the street has a 30-foot building line restriction which may not have expired, and officials suggested that the deed be checked to see that the work would not violate the agreement.

Injured Driver's Condition 'Good'

The driver of a car which struck a parked tractor-trailer early yesterday on Henderson Avenue was in "good" condition last night at Sacred Heart Hospital.

Three young women who were graduated from the hospital's school of nursing Wednesday night were treated for minor injuries following the crash.

Frank Lyle Chamberlain, 37, of 308 Cecelia Street, sustained a possible head injury and minor injuries when his car collided with the truck, operated by James Gethers, 27, of Washington.

Passengers in the car were Miss Shirley Ann Wallace, 820 Shawnee Avenue, who suffered shock; Miss Leah Elizabeth Weimer, 21, Berlin, Pa., who had knee lacerations and shock, and Miss Sarah Leona Reagan, Mt. Savage, who had bruises of the forehead and face.

Officer Charles E. Cubbage said he had been unable to question Chamberlain immediately after the accident because of Chamberlain's dazed condition.

Laborers Plan Picnic

The annual picnic of Laborers Local 616 (AFL), will be held Sunday, September 6, beginning at 10 a. m., at Smouse's Beach, according to Kenneth Grimes, business agent.

BULLETIN

At an early hour this morning an Associated Press dispatch from Washington, D. C., stated the Communications Workers of America (CIO) would strike at 5 a. m. today in Washington, Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia.

At the same time, however, the Associated Press in Baltimore said the CWA and the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company negotiators were still in session at the Sheraton-Belvedere. It was also claimed that the union had lowered its demands and progress by the negotiators was indicated.

This was interpreted to mean that the strike call would not affect much of Maryland, only the fringe area around the District of Columbia. If the Maryland union and company could get together on a contract, spokesman said, there would be no strike here.

There was only one other problem. The Maryland Telephone Union, made up of telephone operators, was also negotiating for a new contract and there were rumblings that the operators in the state were getting ready to walkout.

Marcel Chatain, local spokesman for the CWA, said, "If the girls strike, we will honor their picket lines."

New Suit Filed Concerning Lot Near Rawlings

A new suit growing out of the long-standing dispute over the Mill Run Lot at Rawlings was filed yesterday in Allegany County Circuit Court by Mrs. Ada B. Collins of Rawlings against William R. Darr, now confined in the Maryland House of Correction, and Manson R. Durr and Isabelle Durr, his wife, both of Rawlings.

In the new declaration, filed for Mrs. Collins by Attorney William H. Geppert, it is stressed that she purchased a 1,400 acre tract near Rawlings. She further notes that two-and-a-half years ago, February 21, 1951, she filed an ejectment suit in an effort to clear the title to the Mill Run Lot.

This case finally was heard in Circuit Court May 25. Associate Judge George Henderson, who presided, filed an opinion July 1 which ruled that neither the plaintiff nor the defendants had clear title to the lot. He added that title still rested with Norma Rawlings Wentz and Mary Rawlings Lanham, who inherited part of the estate of Alexander Shaw. However, as between Mrs. Collins and Darr, Judge Henderson decided that Darr had a better claim because of adverse possession over a 20 year period.

Mrs. Collins filed notice of appeal to the Maryland Court of Appeals in the ejectment case August 4.

A new development in the case, included in the new declaration, is a statement that since Judge Henderson's opinion was filed, Mrs. Collins has acquired title to the Mill Run Lot from Norma R. Wentz, Mary R. Lanham and Walter C. Capper, the surviving trustee of the Shaw estate.

Charging that the defendants have wrongfully entered upon her property, Mrs. Collins asks $5,000 damages in her latest suit.

Fire Threatens Miller Orchard At Spring Gap

Few Fruit Trees Are Destroyed

Volunteer firemen and foresters saved part of a large orchard from destruction yesterday afternoon when a roaring forest fire burned over an acre of woods in the Spring Gap section.

The blaze, which started at about 3:30 p. m., flashed through the tinder-dry woods near the Gilbert Miller Orchard, threatening acres of fruit trees before it was brought under control.

District 16 Volunteer Fire Company hurried to the scene and began tapping onto the orchard's water lines and pumping apparatus.

By the time the blaze-battlers got a hose on the fire, said Chief Van Malone, the flames had swept over about an acre of forest land across a narrow road from the orchard.

Fire leaped across the gap in a few places, destroying at least two fruit trees and probably damaging others.

A forest warden, who had received word of the fire on the two-way radio in his car, was first on the scene and began helping orchard workers fight the blaze.

Had there been a breeze blowing, Chief Malone declared, the orchard probably would have suffered major damage. It was so dry, said Malone, that even the ground burned.

In Cumberland yesterday afternoon, East Side firemen put out two grass fires, neither of which caused any damage. One, shortly after noon, was on McNamee's Hill. The other, shortly before 6 p. m., was on McKaig's Hill near the Naval Armory.

Homecoming Planned For Local POWs

A homecoming celebration is being arranged by local veterans' organizations in honor of two local soldiers who recently were released from Communist PW camps in Korea.

The veterans are Cpl. Robert L. McGreevy, 22, and Pfc. William H. Rhodes, 31. McGreevy is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick McGreevy, 240 North Mechanic Street. Rhodes' mother, Mrs. Mary Jane Rhodes, lives at Benjamin Banneker Homes, Frederick Street.

Both are expected to reach the West Coast Saturday aboard the transport General W. F. Hase and arrive here Sunday by train after flying most of the way home.

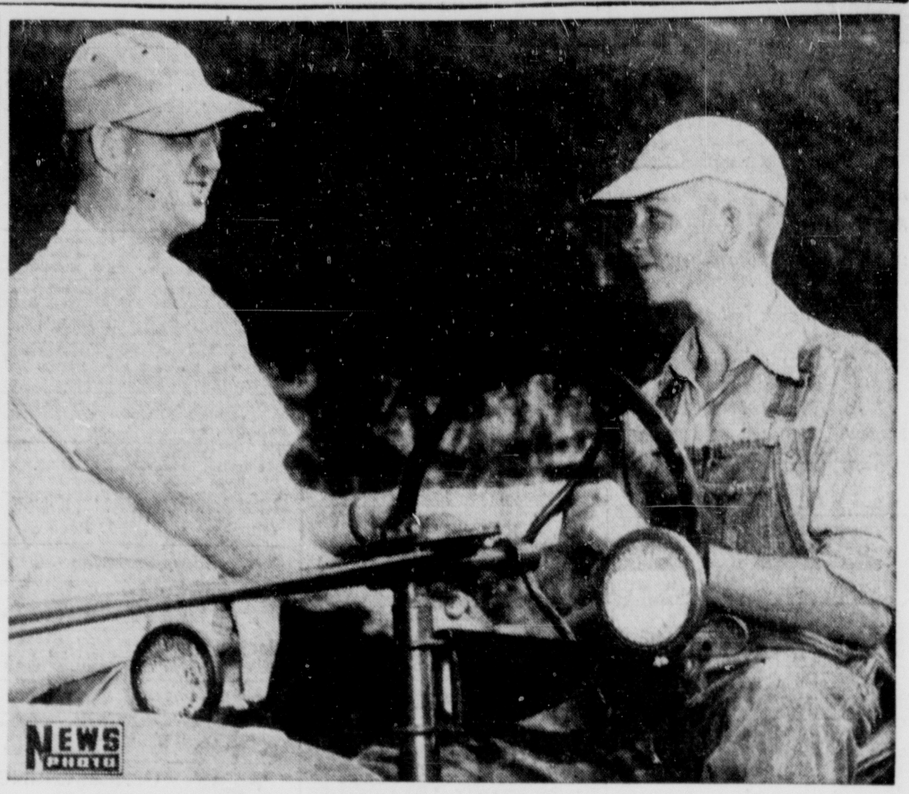

Fulton Myers Post 153, American Legion, will meet tonight at the post home to complete plans for its part of the homecoming observance. Members of the post, its auxiliary, and the post drum corps will attend the meeting.

Also expected to take part in the celebration are Fort Cumberland Post 13, American Legion; Henry Hart Post 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and other groups. Final arrangements will be made at a general meeting within the next few days.

One other Cumberlander remains in the hands of the Reds. He is Sgt. First Class Gerald K. Cummings, son of Mrs. Ethel Emmart, 335 Central Avenue.

He's Still Tractor Driving Champ

Midland Boy Wins Tractor Driving Test Second Time

Edward Miller, 15-year old Midland farm boy, yesterday out drove 10 other Allegany County youths to win the annual 4-H Tractor Operators' Contest at the Cumberland Fair for the second successive year.

Because he won the county contest, Miller received a $15 cash prize and also will try for the state tractor driving championship at the Timonium State Fair Saturday, September 5. Last year the Midland boy was eighth in state competition.

The driving competition consisted of four parts. Spotting drawbar, each boy had to drive his tractor from the starting line, then to the machine to be pulled and then fastened the tongue of the device to the tractor. Then each boy had to drive his tractor with machine hitched over an obstacle course which simulated road and gates. Then they had to back the machines into place and finally belted up the tractor to a machine and operated it.

Thomas Buser of Warrior Mountain gave Miller his stiffest competition and gained the $12 second prize. Charles Robosson of Flintstone got the $10 third prize and William Heavner, also of Flintstone, received the $8 fourth prize.

Five dollar cash prizes also were won by the boys who placed fifth through eighth. They were James Miltenberger, Ridgeley; Argyle Wilson, Oldtown; Dale White, Oldtown Road, and Carl Grabenstein, Winchester Road.

Other contestants were Herbert Shipe, Spring Gap; Philip Carder and Leo Carder, both of Oldtown, according to Assistant County Agent Joseph M. Steger.

Mrs. Tennant Named Centre St. Principal

Lisanti Appointed To Teaching Post

Mrs. Eleanor Porter Tennant of Lonaconing will be the new principal of Centre Street School when the 1953-54 school term starts Tuesday, September 8, according to Superintendent of School Ralph R. Webster.

Mrs. Tennant's promotion is one of the results of the resignation of George E. Klinkhammer as principal of East Side School to take a teaching position in Anne Arundel County. Miss Agnes Lauder, also of Lonaconing, who has been principal of Centre Street School the past five years, was advanced to the principalship left vacant by Klinkhammer's resignation.

First Grade Teacher

The new Centre Street School principal gained a reputation as one of Allegany County's best elementary school teachers during 19 years as first grade teacher at Virginia Avenue School.

A native of Eckhart, Mrs. Tennant is a graduate of Frostburg State Teachers College and has done graduate work at Columbia University. She is now entering her second year as president of the Allegany County Branch of the Association For Childhood Education. She also has been a leader in Child Study Groups in the county.

Listanti To Teach

Webster also announced the appointment of Samuel Lisanti, 126 West Third Street, as an elementary school teacher. Listanti will divide his time between Gephart and Columbia Street Schools, teaching half day in each.

The superintendent explained

Mystery Woman Is Arrested At Bus Terminal

City Police are trying to solve the mystery of "Mary Doe," a silent woman who showed up here almost broke late Tuesday night and has been in jail ever since.

Who she is and where she came from Miss Doe isn't saying.

All the police know about her for sure is that she refused to leave a bus terminal waiting room when the place was closing up for the night.

Somebody called police, and Officer Harry A. Iser picked up the woman and booked her at City Jail for investigation.

Detectives who questioned her later brushed aside the possibility that she might be an amnesia victim. She talks, they say, but when the conversation gets around to her identity, she clams up.

Police took her fingerprints and sent them to the FBI Laboratory in Washington just in case the mystery woman might have a record somewhere.

"Miss Doe" is about 40, has brown eyes, and was wearing a corduroy jacket, slacks and tennis shoes when she was arrested.
